No. 64.

SENATE

TUESDAY, JUNE 20, 1961.

The Senate met at 1:00 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor John Morgan Davis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rabbi MORRIS PICKHOLZ, Congregation Bnai Jeshurun Ahavas Chesed, Philadelphia, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God and Creator of man, once again, as we open this Session of the highest legislative body of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, we look to Thee for divine guidance. We are aware that in these deliberations, our democratic way of life receives its highest and noblest expression. Grant, therefore, we pray Thee, of Thy divine wisdom to these men who represent Thy people in man's struggle to achieve a better world.

May they always be aware of the tremendous responsibilities they shoulder, and may they discuss the agenda with wisdom and intelligence in the light of Thy eternal truths. Bless them, we beseech Thee, O Lord, with sincerity and devotion so that the trust and confidence of the citizens of this great Commonwealth achieve their ultimate goals.

May this august Body recognize that they are in a unique position of service to man, and that they continue Thy work by using the God-given right to make laws for a better and peaceful world.

Cast, therefore, upon them, we pray Thee, the rays of Thy divine guidance so that they may, in full measure, give of their earnestness and intelligence to these problems which face them today. Spread Thy tabernacle of peace over us and over all mankind. Amen.

GENERAL COMMUNICATION

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
HARRISBURG

June 3, 1961

Hon. John Morgan Davis
Lieutenant Governor, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
Harrisburg, Penna.

My dear Governor Davis:

I have not received the transcript of the unwarranted attack on me made by Senator Donolow in the Senate on June 1, 1961.

On the basis of the information I have received from responsible sources, I have written him a reply, copy of which I am attaching for your information.

I respectfully ask for equal time to discuss this matter on the floor of the Senate. I know that you would not want to be a party to an injustice.

Sincerely,
Anne X. Alpern,
Attorney General

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
HARRISBURG

June 3, 1961

Honorable Benjamin R. Donolow,
Seat 21, Senate
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

My dear Senator Donolow:

Many of your colleagues have interrupted their laughter long enough to tell me some of the ungallant comments you made about me in the Senate. The transcript is not available. It is an elementary principle of self-defense that a low blow must be answered before time dulls the edges of its impact. May I, therefore, make the following observations:

1. I am sure you did not realize the unmanliness of attacking me without giving me a chance to hear and reply. There have been other more memorable soliloquies. It is ironic that Hamlet's Soliloquy touches upon the very issue that impelled your remarks. You will recall that Hamlet stated that he was ready to shuffle off this mortal coil because he could not stand, among other things, the "insolence of office . . . and the law's delay."

The Pennsylvania Constitution in Article one, section eleven, guarantees justice without delay. This is fundamental to our democracy. It is the basis for the Court Administrators Bill which will give a blood transfusion to the business operation of the Courts and help achieve the speedy justice required under our Constitution.

2. Your speech was seemingly prompted by my answer to a question from a reporter of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. He asked your motives in offering amendments to the Court Administrators Bill. I stated—generously, I thought—that I did not know your motives since you were from Philadelphia and the Philadelphia Judges had approved the Bill. I added that on Capitol Hill, Death-by-Amendment was a known technique for defeating a Bill's passage. You had just been engaged in hearings on Capital Punishment and I thought you were confusing the two issues.

The headline in the Bulletin stated that I accused you of attempting to kill the Administrators Bill. The headline was more graphic than my own statement. The Court Administrators Bill is not dead—there is no reason for getting into a lament on Who Killed Cock Robin. I still believe the Bill will pass since it is in the public interest and the Senators of Pennsylvania would want to pass legislation so needed for the protection of the people.

You had never evidenced any interest in Court Administration previously. In 1959, a Court Administrators Bill covering the entire State was introduced by this Department. It never got out of Committee in the House. You were on the Judiciary General Committee and you could have readily sponsored a companion bill. Apparently, you were not interested in the problem then. The present Bill, limited to the metropolitan areas of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, where the backlog of untried cases is most critical, was drafted in accordance with the express wishes of Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones. All provisions of the Bill were approved by him.

3. Do not call me Sister Anne. I respectfully request that you get off our family tree or someone will cut off the limb. I would be disturbed at what might happen to you should you fall from the heights of your own oratory.

4. I am informed by my own CIA that you mentioned casually that I was a hardworking Attorney General and referred to the opening of the Barnes Gallery by the efforts of the Justice Department. The Gallery had been closed for 38 years under a Trust Agreement and 3 Court decisions. I gathered you are not an admirer of Renoir and Picasso and not too impressed with this achievement or any of the other major victories of the Department of Justice. You did not refer to the doors I helped close—the doors to the jail in Schuylkill County. I have tried consistently not to operate in a revolving door which goes in circles and leads nowhere. My own course is clear and direct—the achievement of justice.

I respectfully ask for equal time to reply to your unwarranted remarks. In this Twentieth Century, we find the Great Debates more stimulating than ex parte oratorical fireworks. I offer to debate the question of Court Administration with you any day, any hour, between sunrise and midnight. You may bring your Seconds. I will come alone, fortified by the integrity of my position.

Sincerely,
/s/ Anne X. Alpern
Anne X. Alpern,

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

SB 687 (Pr. No. 800)—Read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I want to take a moment to explain this bill.

The reason this measure is necessary and the reason the department is interested in having it is that it has been very difficult to recruit the appropriate personnel they need so badly. There are many vacancies in this department in certain areas, such as home visitors and people of that type.

They are asking a relaxation of the Civil Service Act primarily to hire these people, even on a short-term basis, to meet the needs of the department. One of the requirements they are removing is the residence requirement. If they could possibly fill these jobs with local people, they would be delighted to do so. Unfortunately, they have been unable to do so and they have been hampered by this requirement. Therefore, they are requesting some help in this area.

This bill does nothing other than what I have just explained, unless somebody else has a different version of it. This is the department's version, and I think the version to which the Administration subscribes.

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, I would like to request that this bill go over in its order today. I have requested some information on Senate Bill No. 687, and it may be available to me by next Monday.

This bill has just recently been placed on the Calendar. I would like to vote for it if I see that it is not going to be abused. I am not so sure that it will not. Therefore, I would like to request that the bill go over in its order until Monday, if possible.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, as a fellow sponsor, I can hardly refuse that request.

The PRESIDENT. There being no objection, the bill will go over in its order on Final Passage.

SB 688 and 690—Without objection, the bills were passed over in their order at the request of Mr. HAYS.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

HB 1082 (Pr. No. 1199)—Read at length the third time, On the question, Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

AMENDMENTS TAKEN FROM THE TABLE

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, at this time, I would like to request to remove from the table certain amendments to this bill, which were placed on the table last week.

By way of explanation, Mr. President, you were not presiding at that time. When this bill appeared before the Senate for action, I offered certain amendments. Then, by agreement of the parties, we placed those amendments on the table, awaiting certain events.

The PRESIDENT. Are the amendments now being called from the table?

Mr. SCOTT. Yes, they are now being called from the table.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, these amendments are being called up at this time, and I would ask my colleagues to vote "no" on them. I have previously stated my objections to these amendments.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, at the time when these amendments were introduced and presented to the Chair, last week, the Majority Leader raised the question as to the propriety of offering amendments of this type to the bill being considered by the Senate. At that particular time, there was an agreement that the Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania would be consulted as to the correctness of my procedure.

Senator Weiner was good enough to contact the Attorney General and requested a ruling from her. She has submitted her reasoning in writing, and has ruled that it is perfectly satisfactory to offer amendments of this type to the bill before the Senate. I think the opinion of the Attorney General, in this particular situation, should be entered on the record of this Senate. If the Majority Leader has no objection, at this time, I would like to offer the opinion of the Attorney General.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I could hardly have a serious objection, since I was the one who obtained the opinion and gave it to Senator Scott. However, I happen to differ with that opinion on legal grounds. I will not go into them here in detail. If the gentleman wishes to offer the opinion, I have no objection.

The PRESIDENT. The opinion of the Attorney General may be offered and it will appear in the Journal.

June 19, 1961.

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO HOUSE BILL NO. 1082, PRINTER'S NO. 1199

Article III, Section 1 of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania reads as follows:

"No law shall be passed except by bill, and no bill shall be so altered or amended, on its passage through either House, as to change its original purpose."

In 82 C.J.S., Statutes, Section 30, it is said:

"A constitutional provision that a bill shall not be so altered or amended, in the course of its enactment, as to change its original purpose does not prevent the insertion of amendments germane to, and within the scope of, the original."

"A constitutional provision that a bill shall not be so altered or amended, in the course of its enactment, as to change its original purpose is not to be so construed as to prevent the introduction of matter merely extending the purpose or scope of operation of the bill, or limiting it, or the substitution of a measure or insertion of amendments having the same purpose as the original or germane to, and within the scope of, the original; and a bill thus limited and extended by the amendments of the two houses in its scope or purpose, or otherwise amended, but embracing no matter not germane to the original purpose or the subject of legislation as expressed in the title of the act which it purports to amend, may become a valid law. Also, such a restriction should not be so embraced as to prevent the substitution for a bill which is essentially amendatory in character of another related to the same subject and having the same general effect on existing laws, although some changes may be proposed by the substitute which would not have resulted from the passage of the original.

"The 'purpose' contemplated in such a constitutional provision is the general purpose of the bill, and not the mere details through which and by which that purpose is manifested and effectuated. Such a constitutional provision should be given a reasonable construction so as not unnecessarily to embarrass proper legislation. * * *

In 158 A.L.R., in the annotation appearing at page 421, in discussing constitutional provisions against changing the purpose of the bill during passage, it is said:

"III. Types of alterations or amendments which do not change original purpose:

"a. Immaterial changes, 424.

"b. Extension of scope, 426.

"c. Limitation of scope, 428.

"d. Changes in time, 428.

"e. Substitution of other measures having the same purpose as original measures, 429.

"f. Additions of matters germane to original purpose, 429."

In the case of Black Hawk Consol. Mines Co. v. Gallegos, 191 P. 2d 996 (1948), the Court at page 1005 said:

"The purpose of Article 4, Section 15 of the New Mexico Constitution prohibiting the altering or amending a bill on its passage so as to change its purpose is, solely to prohibit amendments not germane to subject of legislation expressed in the title of act purported to be amended.

"See Stein v. Leeper, 78 Ala. 517; Hall v. Steel, 82 Ala. 562, 2 So. 650; Alabama State Bridge Corp. v. Smith, 217 Ala. 311, 116 So. 695." (Emphasis supplied)

In Cone v. Garner, 3 S. W. 2d 1 (1927), the Constitution of the State of Arkansas reads:

"No law shall be passed except by bill, and no bill shall be so altered or amended on its passage through either house as to change its purpose."

At page 4 the Court said:

"It is said that the object of this section of the Constitution was that the Senate and House of Representatives of the state might not be hampered or embarrassed in amending and perfecting their bills and thus be driven to accomplish by a number of bills that which might well be accomplished by one bill, but the purpose of the section was to forbid amendments which should not be germane to the subject of legislation expressed in the title of the act which it purports to amend. Hickey v. State, 114 Ark. 526, 170 S. W. 562."

In a later case, the Supreme Court of Arkansas, in Pope v. Oliver, 117 S. W. 2d 1072 (1938), said, in speaking of an alleged violation of Section 21 of Article V of the State Constitution, that:

"* * * The purpose of this provision in our Constitution is to prevent amendments to a bill which would not be germane to the subject of the legislation expressed in the title of the Act, which it purports to amend. Loftin v. Watson, 32 Ark. 414; Hickey v. State, 114 Ark. 526, 170 S. W. 562; Cone v. Garner, 175 Ark. 860, 3 S. W. 2d 1; Matthews v. Byrd, 187 Ark. 458, 60 S. W. 2d 909." (Emphasis supplied)

It may well be argued that since the purpose of House Bill No. 1082 was to amend the Election

Code, that any other amendment included in the bill concerning elections was but an extension of the scope of the original amendment.

The initial amendment in the bill regulated the time for opening and closing polls. The Election Code provides for the appointment of watchers and also provides they may, with certain exceptions, be present during the time when the polls are open as well as closed. The second amendment was well within the subject of the original amendment and was certainly germane to the general subject of elections in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

It is, therefore, the opinion of the writer that the proposed amendment to House Bill No. 1082, Printer's No. 1199, as proposed by Senator Scott, is not in violation of Article III, Section 1 of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Attorney General

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, I would request that the amendments now be read by the Clerk.

The PRESIDENT. The Clerk will read the amendments. The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend Title, page 2, last line of Title by inserting after "polls"; and changing residence requirements for watchers

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 1 by striking out "Section" where it appears the second time and inserting: Subsection (b) of section 417 and section.

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, line 2 by striking out "is" and inserting: are.

Amend Bill, page 2, by inserting between lines 2 and 3: Section 417. Appointment of Watchers.—

(b) All watchers so appointed must be qualified registered electors of the [district] municipality or township in which they are authorized to act Only one watcher for each candidate at primaries or for each party or political body at general municipal or special elections shall be allowed to remain in the polling place at any one time prior to the close of the polls and all watchers in the room shall remain outside the enclosed space After the close of the polls and while the ballots are being counted or voting machine canvassed all the watchers shall be permitted to be in the polling place outside the enclosed space Each watcher shall be provided with a certificate from the county board of elections stating his name and the name of the candidate party or political body he represents Watchers shall be required to show their certificates when requested to do so Watchers allowed in the polling place under the provisions of this act shall be permitted to keep a list of voters and shall be entitled to challenge any person making application to vote and to require proof of his qualifications as provided by this act

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. SCOTT. On the amendments themselves, Mr. President, I would only like to reiterate what I said the last time when these amendments were before the Senate. These amendments are one of the recommendations of the Senate Vote Fraud Committee. In my estimation, it is the most important recommendation and, therefore, I would request my colleagues to vote "aye" on the amendments.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, before the roll is called,

I would also like to have the record clearly show that just because these are recommendations of the committee, there was not a minority report, but there were persons who differed with what the feelings of the majority were in this report. Just because a committee makes a report does not mean that all the things it contains are absolutely true.

I would also like to put into the record that after all this intensive investigation, with quite a bit of help from the news media in the area, the Committee of Seventy has come up and said, through one of the people on whom they rely very heavily, that the election was clean and there was no fraud found. Also, Senator Scott I believe was quoted as saying, and fairly so, that the election was a clean election in the city of Philadelphia.

I might also add there was a recent election for one of the legislative seats in the city of Philadelphia, right in my own District, in which there were charges made against a certain person or persons. This has since been identified by the Philadelphia Bulletin, which ran quite a large article on it. Unfortunately, it was buried back among some of the ads which usually appear in that newspaper. However, the article also stated that the Committee of Seventy had found nothing and that the election was clean. It stated that our Registration Commissioners helped them not only with personnel, but also with an agency which held a complete investigation by interrogating persons and said that this also was absolutely a clean election. There was no fraud of any type found.

I wish to bring this to the record for the purpose of showing that I wish some other counties would also undertake this type of an investigation. I have none in mind, although I did make certain allegations here during the last Session of the Legislature about certain other areas. I think an investigation of those would be in order as well. If the Senator would like to look into that, I would like to present to him the concrete evidence. If he looks into this matter, I think he will find that much of it will bear some rather tight scrutiny.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, I am delighted that Senator Weiner raised the quotation which was attributed to me following the 1960 November election, wherein I was reported to have said that as far as I could see, that election was a clean election in the city of Philadelphia. I do want to say to you Mr. President, that before I made that statement,—and I did make such a statement—I checked with many agencies and groups in Philadelphia.

I have been criticised by some of the leaders in my own Party for making a statement of that type. However, I am confident that the November election of 1960, in the city of Philadelphia, was a clean election. The proof of that is that, as yet, I have not heard of one illegal election irregularity having been pointed out at that election, or being brought to the front. However, Mr. President, that does not mean there have not been illegal elections in Philadelphia in the past. That does not mean there have not been frauds perpetuated at the polls. There certainly have been.

One of the reasons why the election was so clean in Philadelphia last November was that there were many vigilante committees patrolling the streets and the polling places in the city of Philadelphia. You cannot expect that this is going to take place in every election, by private groups and private individuals doing that type of a job. There have been cases of fraud in elections in Philadelphia. There have been convictions for those frauds.

I am convinced that this particular recommendation will go a long way toward aiding the stopping of frauds in elections. This particular provision of the Election Code should be changed. This does not only apply to Philadelphia, but to the entire Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I am convinced this will go a long way in aiding the cause.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to point out to the gentleman that the people who come around at watch the watchers are not allowed in many of the polling places. They must stay within 300 feet of the polling place. This is the Election Law. Unfortunately, in other areas, this has hampered the operation. However, in most of the election areas which exist in the Philadelphia area, most of them are held in stores and areas of that kind, in order for them to be easily accessible to anyone who comes around. The Committee of Seventy and all these other people who patrol these elections have patrolled them much more closely in the last number of years than they ever did in previous years. I would like to institute this same type of procedure in other areas.

In other words, I am sure some other counties could bear watching. Just to name one, I recently read in the Harrisburg Patriot-News about allegations against Dauphin County for wholesale fraud and things of that nature. A gentleman, who is the namesake of a great Philadelphian, by the name of Franklin, I believe.—I do not know whether that is a first or last name—was also honorably mentioned. I do not know whether these people have done these things or not. I have no way of knowing it, other than what I read in the newspaper.

If they want to look into these matters, I think they should expand it. I think they should go into Montgomery County, Delaware County, Chester County and Dauphin County. I think they should give the entire sixty-seven counties an opportunity to bare themselves in the light of day. I am sure any area which has nothing to fear will be very happy to cooperate, as our people were in Philadelphia. As a matter of fact, our people presented themselves to the committee. They offered themselves as witnesses and offered to bring in their books, records or whatever else was needed. Then they went ahead and did this thing. Where there was any wrongdoing, a Democratic Administration and a Democratic Attorney General prosecuted, in a Democratic Administration, in Philadelphia, the people who were involved. The District Attorney, who also happened to be of the same political faith, also took part and participated in these matters.

I do not say that we should begin witch-hunting or go out and hammer these people. However, I think, by the same token, the facts as they exist should be brought to the light of day. There are some people who find some reason to obscure these facts, muddle them or confuse them, because it leads to erroneous conclusions or conclusions which they might in some way be prejudiced to make. However, I think that is up to them.

I hope no one in this room will feel that just because I did not mention their counties as being ones which should be investigated that I am slighting them. I do not intend this at all. I think we should go into some of these other areas which might bear looking into. It might be there is nothing to look into and I think this fact should also be reported back to us from time to time. I think in all areas, we should constantly keep a close watch. This is one of our inalienable rights and we should see that it is not sullied in any way.

Mr. MULLIN. Mr. President, the Registration Commission in Philadelphia received the award of the American Heritage Foundation for the cleanest city in America. I do not think the people from Philadelphia have to tolerate, without any word at all, the attempts to blacken the reputation of the finest city in the United States and, of course, the largest city in Pennsylvania. We have been subjected to all types of vilification and slander from people, just for the sake of slandering. This solicitousness for our city is not borne out by any facts or justification. Philadelphia is the best governed city in the United States, it is the best run city in the United States and its elections are the cleanest in the United States. We can challenge comparison with any city in the United States and in Pennsylvania.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, if Senator Mullin has a quarrel with the metropolitan newspapers of Philadelphia, I suggest that he take it up with them and not with the Senate of Pennsylvania.

As far as Senator Weiner's suggestion is concerned, Mr. President, may I point out that at the time when the Vote Fraud Committee was formed, the resolution contained the provision that our committee would go into any other county in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, if it received any communication from anyone in any of those counties requesting us to come in. As Chairman of that Committee, I can say to you that I received no request from any person in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, asking our committee to go into any other county in Pennsylvania to make an investigation of vote fraud irregularities.

As a matter of fact, in my estimation, Senator Weiner made the best argument as to why we should adopt these amendments. If he feels there is vote fraud in any other section of Pennsylvania, certainly these amendments will go a long way to alleviate that vote fraud. The present law on the subject, as far as watchers are concerned, is antiquated. These amendments will change it so that watchers can come from any section of the particular area and serve as watchers in an election district. That is most certainly needed in Pennsylvania and, particularly, in Philadelphia today.

Mr. DONOLOW. Mr. President, at the outset, I would like to say that the Senate Committee which investigated election frauds in Philadelphia, under the chairmanship of Senator Scott, did an excellent job. Of all the investigating committees which have been assigned by this legislative branch of government, that was a fair and impartial investigation. There is certainly no complaint from anyone in Philadelphia regarding the job that was done. The report was a fair and just one and the recommendations, to a great extent, had some substantial basis for them.

However, Mr. President, on this particular recommendation, I cannot agree. In order to eliminate fraud in any division in the city of Philadelphia, or in any big city, it is important that the watcher be acquainted with the people in that division. Bringing people from one section of the city to another, in order to stand guard on election day, is not going to be the safeguard which is necessary for fair elections. I am sure Senator Scott will agree that the investigation showed that a number of people who were caught, fictitiously voted for others. The Election Board, itself, which came from the particular division, could not recognize or know the persons who were voting.

Mr. President, this is the reason why I am voting against these amendments. I feel this is not the thing we need to safeguard against fraudulent votes being cast.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendments?
The roll was called and resulted as follows:

YEAS—22

Berger,	Keller,	Propert,	Van Sant,
Chapman,	Kessler,	Scott,	Wade,
Ehrgood,	Kromer,	Stevenson,	Wagner,
Flack,	Madigan,	Stroup,	Ware, III,

So the question was determined in the negative, and the amendments were defeated.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I request that House Bill No. 1082 now go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. There being no objection, the bill will go over in its order.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

HB 1181—Mr. WAGNER. Mr. President, I request that House Bill No. 1181 go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. WAGNER. Mr. President, I think it is very important that I tell the Members of the Senate why I made this request.

This bill calls for an Anthracite Mine Law Study Commission which will review all of the mining laws and probably compile a code which will be very comprehensive. It is important that all of the anthracite interests be represented on that committee.

The bill was introduced in the House and referred to committee on April 10th, and was passed on the 22nd of May by a vote of 196 to 1. It came over to the Senate, was referred to the Mines and Mineral Industries Committee, was reported as committed, and reached Third Reading yesterday without any amendment or without any comment. Then the Majority Leader, for some reason, saw fit—in a surprise move so far as some of us were concerned—to strike out from the bill, by his amendments, the make-up which would have given every part of anthracite a voice in this very important study.

I was quite happy that the very numerous sponsorship in the House was agreed that the commission should be made up of every segment of anthracite. Now the amendments which were put in yesterday will eliminate what has become a very substantial and very successful part of the anthracite industry from any participation in compiling this code.

I would suggest, Mr. President, that if we are not going to get into a later hassle on this matter and probably have it become another case of love's labor lost in this voluminous work and this great undertaking, at least the part of the industry that has been eliminated by these amendments be given an opportunity to know what has happened to it and to voice their opinion of it.

I respectfully request that the bill go over in its order until next week's session.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I want to explain the only thing that the amendments do, so that we can completely understand each other. Seven members made up the board or panel. Of these seven, one was the Secretary of Mines, three were union representatives, and three were operators. We have not changed that at all. The bill still remains with seven, and it is still the Secretary of Mines, three union representatives, and three operators.

The only difference between what we had yesterday and what we have today is that the operators were broken down into those who had no bargaining agents—I think I can speak more plainly than that and say those who had no union setup or contract, and who are known as independents—and those that did have them. That has not been changed. That still remains the same, except that we have just left in the word "operators." The Governor, or whoever makes up this commission,—and I am sure the Governor will by consulting the Secretary of Mines—will also continue to have independents as well as those mine operators who have union representation.

I do not see that there has been any real change, except that we have changed the generic term back to what it was—the word "operators."

Suppose the bill remained as it was yesterday. They could still appoint these people and if at some later time they became unionized, that would mean those people would have to be dropped from the board. That was the only concern we had and that was the reason why we brought it back to the generic term of "operators". Their number or their make-up is no different. It remains the same, except that it is not spelled out now as compared to Senator Wagner's reference to the bill prior to the amendments.

Mr. WAGNER. Mr. President, I quite agree with the gentleman that the number of people participating in this is the same as it was before. However, as a matter of fact, in Schuylkill County and adjacent counties, there is probably more coal being mined today by the people who are excluded from this bill than is being mined by those who are included.

Whether it be coal or any manufacturing, it seems to me that those who are a very large element in the business ought to have a chance to confer on the kind of code under which they are going to operate.

I would respectfully suggest to the Majority Leader that between now and Monday, he might give some thought to adding one more representative of the operators and leave the original provision in there. There are still three representatives of the operators, but the so-called independent operator, who is doing a vast coal business and providing a great amount of employment in distressed areas, is excluded from consideration in this entirely.

I would suggest to the Senator that if the language be restored and one additional representative of the operators be put in there, everybody you have in now will still be in, and the voice that is crying in the wilderness may get a little closer to the microphone than he has ever had a chance to be from out in left field where you have put him at the moment.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, will the gentleman allow himself to be interrogated for one moment?

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Wagner, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WAGNER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, will the gentleman advise me whether it would help if we add another operator? In other words, instead of three, make it four operators in order to make it two and two,—two independents and two who are unionized—and add one more union representative; the purpose of this being that now there are three and it would bring them up to the same number. Would that help the situation?

Mr. WAGNER. I would think, Mr. President, that it probably would. However, I do feel that these folks apparently were in agreement with all of the sponsors, and there was a verry happy family situation up until today and now there is considerable discord. Since we have had Father's Day recently, we might change it enough to make a happy family day next week sometime.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I want to thank the gentleman for his suggestion. I will certainly follow through on it, and I will try to advise him sometime tomorrow on what the thinking is on this subject.

The PRESIDENT. There being no objection, the bill will go over in its order.

GUESTS OF SENATOR ALBERT R. PECHAN PRESENTED TO SENATE

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, I have the happy pleasure to introduce—I think for the first time since I have been in the Senate—a group from my home town. It is the Girl Scout Troop of which my niece, Susan Callahan, is a member.

They are chaperoned by Mrs. Ted Stanko, who is the Leader of Troop No. 55; Mrs. Andy Johns, who is the Coleader; Mrs. Richard Reitler, the Registered Nurse who is accompanying them; and Miss Margie Dietz, the Senior Aide.

The members of this Troop are Kathy Ball, Paula Bernot, Susan Callahan, Cherie Cunningham, Lesley Jackson, Andrea Johns, Cynthia Kijowski, Wanda Klaput, Joanne Krukar, Linda Labutka, Sally Madzy, Carol McGuire, Carol Mikula, Jane Pepper, Barbara Reitler, Valerie Simmons, Anna Marie Stanko and Pamela Stanko.

For over three years, this group has been raising money to make this educational trip to Harrisburg. They are going to spend a few hours here, and from here they are going on to Washington. They are traveling on "Traveler's Badges" and "My Country Badges".

They have sold peanuts, candy and cookies to everybody in Ford City. We have forgotten what bread looks like. Everybody has been eating Girl Scout Cookies, candy and peanuts until they are coming out of our ears. However, I am happy they raised enough money to make this trip. They have also had bake sales, movies and many, many other affairs.

Mr. President, I would like for you, in your very gracious manner, to welcome this group to the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. Will the girls from Ford City please rise?

We are very happy to have you here with us. As a very strong customer of the Girl Scouts in the matter of Girl Scout Cookies, I have two Girl Scouts in my own family, and I am sure that every Senator here has someone in the Girl Scout movement, of which we are very proud.

We are very happy you worked so hard to put across the Girl Scout idea with the cookies and earned yourselves a trip to Washington. We are also very happy that you decided to include the Capital City of Harrisburg in your itinerary. We are certainly happy to have you with us.

I think we ought to have Miss Susie Callahan stand up alone so that we can give her an extra bit of applause, because I am sure she was the one who wanted you to stop in Harrisburg.

We have, of course, respected Ford City for a long time because of the presence of Senator Pechan in our Senate. Now we have other reasons for respecting Ford City. Thank you for dropping in.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Messrs. VAN SANT and ROONEY, by unanimous consent, presented to the Chair SB 792, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 15, 1933 (P. L. 624), entitled, as amended, "Banking Code," further providing for investments in common trust funds.

Which was committed to the Committee on Banking.

They also, by unanimous consent, presented to the Chair SB 793, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 26, 1949 (P. L. 1828), entitled "Fiduciaries Investment Act of 1949," further providing for investments in common trust funds.

Which was committed to the Committee on Banking.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. VAN SANT asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. VAN SANT. Mr. President, I was surprised to read in the Harrisburg paper today that delegates from the Pennsylvania Sons of Veterans of the Civil War, meeting in convention in Harrisburg yesterday, passed a resolution calling upon the State Legislature to make Memorial Day a holiday that must be observed in all schools throughout the Commonwealth.

At a business session, Monday, during the encampment of the Allied Orders of the Grand Army of the Republic here, the Sons of Veterans' Resolutions Committee pointed out that school children in Wyomissing Borough, Berks County, attended classes as usual on this past Memorial Day.

When this was called to my attention, I recalled that in the 1959 Session of the General Assembly, Senator Pechan and I sponsored a bill, amending the School Code, requiring the closing of all schools on Veterans Day and Memorial Day. At that time, we were assured that the schools were observing the closing on Memorial Day. Therefore, I was quite surprised when I read the paper this morning.

After consulting with my colleague, Senator Pechan, we decided that we would introduce the following bill. So, Mr. President, on behalf of my colleague, Senator Pechan, and myself, I am introducing this bill.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Messrs. VAN SANT and PECHAN, by unanimous consent, presented to the Chair SB 794, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30), entitled "Public School Code of 1949," requiring the closing of schools on Veterans Day and Memorial Day.

Which was referred to the Committee on Education.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. STIEFEL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I want to make a brief statement about the bill which I am about to introduce.

Gradually, there emerges in Pennsylvania a picture of highway safety. However, there are certain phases of it which still have to be completed. One of them is the mechanical perfection of the automobile, and safeguards against fraudulent automobile mechanics, which I am going to go into in the future.

This bill is a product of Senator Pechan's thinking about two years ago. At that time, Senator Pechan and I jointly sponsored a bill, which was entombed in one of the committees. Maybe now it will see the light of day. This bill provides for the placing of the blood type and RH factor on operator's license cards, so that in case of an accident where blood transfusions have to be made, they can be made speedily without fateful delay.

On behalf of Senator Pechan, Senator Kalman and myself, I am introducing this bill.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Messrs. STIEFEL, PECHAN and KALMAN, by unanimous consent, presented to the Chair SB 795, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 29, 1959 (P. L. 58), entitled "The Vehicle Code," providing for the placing of blood type and Rh factor on operators' license cards.

Which was committed to the Committee on Highways.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair will now turn the gavel over to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Donolow.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Benjamin R. Donolow) in the Chair.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. WARE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. WARE. Mr. President, a few moments ago when we were discussing an amendment to House Bill No. 1082, some reference was made by Senator Weiner to the failure of this Body to investigate the voting procedures in Chester County.

May I suggest to Senator Weiner, and my other colleagues here in this Senate, that if they have any knowledge or indication of any vote frauds in the county of Chester, I shall be happy to cosponsor a bill with them which might prevent the recurrence of such irregularities.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. WEINER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, that is the best offer I have had this afternoon, but I am not going to avail myself of it. However, I want the gentleman to feel that this was not meant to be against Chester County, against Delaware or against Montgomery. These counties just happened to be close to Philadelphia and came to my mind immediately. I could have said, Elk, or Forest or some of the others, but I did not.

I also stated—if the gentleman remembers—that because I did not mention someone's county, I hope they will not feel slighted. We hope to get to them also. It was nothing personal against Chester County.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. WARE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. WARE. Mr. President, may I assure Senator Weiner that I understood that. However, the offer is valid, just the same.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, early in the Session, I, along with several of the Senators, sponsored some legislation which would make the Bureau of Mental Health a separate department, having autonomy and having the head of the department responsible only to the Governor. Incidentally, this very same legislation—the identical legislation—was introduced in 1959 and was then known as Senate Bill No. 912 and Senate Bill No. 913. These bills were the result of an investigation, which I chaired, of the Welfare Department. The majority of the committee felt that such a department should be separate from the Department of Public Welfare.

I want to call the attention of the Senate at this time to items that appeared in our newspapers, which I believe are symptomatic of what is going on in our mental health program. I refer to the announcement of Doctor John S. Solhaug, Assistant Superintendent of Mayview State Hospital, who says he is resigning effective June 30 because of the "bleak and dismal future" of the mental health program in Pennsylvania.

This is the second resignation from the staff at Mayview State Hospital in a very short time. Previously, Doctor Stephen D. Ward, Senior Clinical Director, announced he was resigning for the same reason.

I do not know anything about the problems of either of these gentlemen at Mayview State Hospital. However, when you have outstanding members of a mental hospital staff resigning in this manner and for this reason, I think it is time we take stock. I would like to see the Senate invite these gentlemen down here, and let us listen to what they have to say.

Why does our mental health program face a bleak and dismal future? What has been happening to our mental health program during the past three years?

As a Member of the Senate, I have voted for increased appropriations for mental health. Until now, we have practically doubled what has been given to this program in the way of money. I feel certain, in my own mind, that it is not a matter of money. The truth is that in the last fiscal period, the lapses made by the Governor included several million dollars which we appropriated in 1959 to the mental health program. The money was then used for Public Assistance. It is clear from this that it is not a question of appropriations.

What I believe these gentlemen are talking about is a growing suspicion that the mental health program is slowly being steered back into politics again. The Administration is taking more and more advice from the politicians, and less and less advice from the doctors, psychiatrists, and lay people who are genuinely interested in mental health.

I believe unless we take action now to halt this drift, all the gains we have made in fighting for mental health in recent years will be lost.

The big problem, as I see it and as people who are expert in the field see it, is personnel. It is getting and keeping competent and dedicated people. The problem of mental health is so great, and the competition is so keen, that we cannot afford to lose the dedicated people we have because we have failed to recognize the problems they face.

The time has come, in my view and in the view of those competent to judge in these matters, to make the mental health program a separate department of our State Government. We must give this program the status it deserves. We must place at the top of this program, with the power to make decisions, a capable and able psychiatrist with whom are associated sympathetic and competent administrators.

I recognize there are two opposing views on this matter. There are those who believe that doctors and psychiatrists should confine themselves to the care and treatment of patients, and that the business of running our institutions should be left to competent administrators. I think that is what we have now in Pennsylvania.

I believe that the Secretary of Public Welfare is a very competent woman, and is doing the best job possible under the present setup. However, I also believe the present setup does not permit, and never will permit, the complete development of a mental health program which will attract and keep the kind of personnel we need in Pennsylvania to advance our mental health program.

As I said earlier, the big problem is personnel. We need additional personnel in every professional category, and even though we raise their salaries, we are not only not getting them, but we are not keeping the ones that we have. This clearly calls for a new approach. We should find out what is the trouble, and then act upon it or all the gains we have made will be lost.

We have a chance right now to improve our program immensely without it, in the end, costing us too much more than we are spending right now. The first step toward that improvement is the establishment of a separate Mental Health Department, whose head could concentrate on this one program and would not be forced to vie, within the department, with five other equally important but largely dissimilar programs.

Two Senate bills—Senate Bill No. 249 and Senate Bill No. 250—bipartisan in their sponsorship, which would establish a separate Mental Health Department, are now in the Senate Appropriations Committee. While I know it is unusual, I am proposing that the Senate Appropriations Committee set up a hearing and invite these two members of the staff of the Mayview State Hospital down here to tell us what they mean when they say the program faces a "bleak and dismal future." I think I know, but I want other Members of the Senate to know and the public to know, because, after all, it is the public which has the greatest stake in the mental health program.

I believe the Appropriations Committee should also give other interested parties a chance to be heard, including those who might be opposed to this legislation. If we do this, I am sure of what will be the outcome. We will pass these bills and establish our mental health program in a separate department because I feel that is the right thing to do.

I would like to say, Mr. President, that sometime ago when the bills were in the Committee on State Government, a public hearing was scheduled, and many people who are interested in this problem were invited to come to this public hearing. Without any advance notice,—I did not know it until after I came here—we found that the meetings were canceled. The bills were then—by courtesy of Senator Mullin, who was very gracious about it because he felt that the bills belonged in the Committee on Public Health and Welfare—rereferred to the Committee on Public Health and Welfare. They were reported to the floor, and then put into the hands of the Committee on Appropriations. I see nothing wrong with that because the bills do carry appropriations, and some moneys that are appropriated to the entire Department of Public Welfare certainly would have to be earmarked as to the amount that is going to be spent on mental health.

I would like to take a few more moments and just read the names of some people who have written to me; people who are interested in this program and who feel that we should have a separate department. I am just going to read over these names. I am not going to give you the contents of the letters. You are all welcome to read them. They are all in favor of those bills.

Here is one from James M. Henninger, a doctor with the Pittsburgh Neuro-Psychiatric Society; Charles F. Taylor, Chief of the Psychiatric Staff of the York Hospital—

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, the gentleman does not have to, but I would appreciate it if, after mentioning these people's names, he would let us know what they say, or the gist of their letters, in order for me to follow this discussion. Perhaps I would like to contact these people myself.

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, I will be very happy to give the gentleman the letters. I will turn them over to him and he can read what they say. They are all in favor of this. I will be very happy to give them to the gentleman as soon as I read off the names.

I have a letter from Leonard T. Beale, who was Chairman of the Governor's Advisory Council of the State's Mental Health Activities. I have a letter here from Doctor Kenneth E. Appel, Professor of Psychiatry and Chairman of the Department of the University of Pennsylvania. I have a letter here from Doctor M. Royden C. Astley, President of the Pennsylvania Psychiatric Society of Pennsylvania. I understand now that Pennsylvania Mental Health, Incorporated has come out strongly in favor of a separate department.

I have a letter from Doctor Robert A. Matthews, Professor of Psychiatry and Head of the Department of Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia. I have a letter here from Doctor Philip Q. Roche, of Conshohocken. He is a former President of the Pennsylvania Psychiatric Society. I have a letter from Doctor Herbert H. Herskovitz, of Ardmore; another letter from Doctor Frederick H. Allen, of the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology, Incorporated; another one from Doctor Charlotte G. Babcock, Professor of Psychiatry, University of Pittsburgh; and another letter from Mrs. Alfred M. Sadler, First Vice President, Mental Health Association of Lehigh County. I have a letter from Mr. Arthur P. Noyes, of the Department of Public Welfare, Norristown State Hospital.

Mr. President, I feel that something should be done about the people who were invited here sometime ago to testify. Perhaps it is too late to do anything during this Session. However, we certainly do have a problem. When I first came to the Senate, our State mental institutions were custodial institutions. However, just in that short span of twelve or thirteen years, we have learned a great deal about mental health. Instead of patients being held in custody, they should now be treated as sick patients. I understand, from the available statistics, that over sixty-five per cent of all those who are committed are returned back to society in six months. I think it behooves everyone of us to take a personal interest in this matter.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I believe I was here at the time when Senator Pechan served on the committee to unify the Department of Welfare and the Department of Public Assistance. At that time, there were extensive hearings held and I believe—if I am incorrect, I hope the gentleman will correct me—the Senator served on this committee and he attended both the public hearings and meetings. At one point toward the end of the Session, he submitted one evening here at quite a late hour the report of the committee. The following week, around noontime, he went into the final phases and recommendations.

The Senator, myself, and other Members in this Chamber also went for this unification. My question is: Where were those people at that time? When we were delving into this problem and coming to conclusions about it, that would have been a good time for them to have brought this problem up.

It appears to me a little late at this date to claim there are politics in the department, which there are not. One of the criticisms made of the department is that there are not any politicians to deal with certain matters. The employees of the department are strictly on the basis of Civil Service, and they try to handle the matters as best they know how.

All of us have found ourselves that people living in the communities need the aid or assistance offered by the institutions under the Department of Public Welfare, and they cannot cope with these matters due to the fact there are not sufficient funds to handle all the myriad problems that come before the department.

At this stage, to start rebuilding this area and appoint a new commissioner and a new hierarchy is something that we ought to do some serious thinking about. Just because we are dissatisfied at the moment, I do not think this is the time to do this. We have been living under the unified program approximately three or four years and to decide this is bad, before giving it a real test, is unfair also.

One of the problems the Senator pointed out was the money. This is a very serious problem. The reason the bill remained in committee was in order for the committee to delve into the problem, and we do not know where the additional funds are coming from. There is nothing magic about holding a public hearing with professional people and general personnel testifying. There is always, as in politics,—and the two are akin to each other—fascism and one group might go to the extreme right and another group might go to the extreme left, and those who remain in the center are dissatisfied with both groups. You have this problem here as well. To throw this away, after taking the trouble to put it together, requires real mature judgment.

I did not mean to be rude and interrupt the gentleman when he was speaking, but I would like to see these letters and who these people are, and find out how they would suggest we get the money to do this job and some indication of how they truly feel about it. It might be that they are dissatisfied with something in the department and they have their own candidates whom they want to get appointed. This is also true in politics and to accomplish this, they use this means to travel this road.

I respectfully suggest to Senator Pechan that we look at this matter before we jump into it in order to find out where we are going on this whole problem. I would like to take it up with the present Secretary and get her view before going any further. Senator Mullin is concerned about the problem and he spent quite a bit of time looking into it. The Committee on Public Health and Welfare can cope with this better because they are in touch with some of these professional people.

Mr. MULLIN. Mr. President, I want to join with Senator Pechan in his request for more serious consideration of the mental health program. I think this is one of the most important parts of our future program for mental health in Pennsylvania and America. We have not even begun to delve into the science of mental health.

I do think these doctors, who were mentioned by Senator Pechan, are certainly doing a big thing in trying to bring this to the attention of the people of Pennsylvania and the Legislature of Pennsylvania.

Senate Bill No. 249 was in committee and I did call for public hearings, but reported the bill out because nobody on the other side was ready for public hearings. The bill was then rereferred to the Committee on Appropriations.

In the course of having this bill in my committee, I interviewed Doctor Sielke, who is in charge of the Philadelphia State Hospital, and he did say that we do have a good mental health program, but we do not provide enough funds to put it across. He further stated that even after the funds are provided, it seems like an awful job trying to get personnel. Because of the slow process of getting personnel onto the payroll through the red tape of State Government, by the time they are ready to O.K. somebody, the man or the nurse and so on has a job some place else.

We do have a very tough job with these hospitals. However, I do believe that if we were to appropriate, as I think Doctor Sielke said, $11,000,000 to the Philadelphia State Hospital, that he could manage very well provided he was allowed to spend just $1,000,000. That was another big thing because every year they get an appropriation but before it can be spent, the year is over and it is back in the State Treasury again. We really appropriate more money than they get an opportunity to use.

I think if we could pay the doctors enough money—and it boils down to that. Senator Pechan did say that they wanted more qualified personnel and increased compensation for the personnel. I am speaking of professional personnel, nurses and doctors, because that is what the personnel consist of. The only political aspect may be the laboring men who are employed, but I do not think that has a thing to do with the mental health program.

I do think we ought to give this proper consideration, and I think that we can only do it by more public backing; backing by the newspapers and backing by people interested in mental health. We are making progress along those lines. Perhaps by the next Session we will have gained enough support in drawing public attention to this problem that we may get the requests being made in Senate Bill No. 249.

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, I want to thank the gentleman. I received some support from a source which surprised me. I want to thank the gentleman for what he said. His support for Senate Bill No. 249 really came as a surprise to me. I know that I have talked with him about the bill and he talked very favorably about it, but I did not know exactly where he stood or why he stood for it.

To follow up on what Senator Weiner said about the consolidation of the Department of Public Welfare, I think if Senator Weiner will look it up, he will find that it was my committee that finally drafted all the amendments. We spent days and days and days on these amendments in order to make the Department of Public Welfare a workable department. We thought we would save a great deal of money. It was sold to us on the premise that we would save money if this were in one department instead of having a mass of several bureaus.

Regarding the appropriation, Mr. President, I think that the Office of Mental Health, if it were allowed to spend the money which is appropriated in the budget for it each year, would not need one additional penny. I think the Commissioner of the Office of Mental Health, in the Department of Public Welfare, Doctor John E. Davis, is doing a very fine job. I think he is one of the outstanding men in the United States and I am afraid we are going to lose him. I am not putting him on the spot. I have not discussed this with him because I do not want to embarrass him.

Senator Weiner said he would like to see these letters. Senator Mullin mentioned the name of Doctor Sielke. I have letters from many, many other people who are working for the Department of Public Welfare, in these hospitals. I will not expose their letters because I do not want their jobs to be in jeopardy. However, I think, if you will talk to these people privately, you will find that they want to do a good job if they are permitted to do so.

Perhaps we are coming to the close of the Session and I would be only too happy if we would just take this one problem and study it. It probably cannot be passed this year, but let us highlight it. Every county, for instance, has a mental health group which is interested in this problem. If we can get those people alerted, and have everybody who is connected with this problem see what they can do about mental health,—as is being done in those States where they have a separate division and return a much larger percentage of people back to society—I think we will have done our job. I do not say that it must pass this year, but let us, at least, look at it and study it so that when we do come back, we will have something concrete to offer.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would just like to point out to the gentleman that, for many years, we went along under many Secretaries of Welfare. I am sure they were dedicated people, but, because of the lack of money, they were not able to do a job except to keep these people in custody. Along came Secretary Shapiro, who was a former Senator and who had some command of the situation and who got more money spent in the Department of Welfare than any other Secretary, I think, either before or since. Many of the things which he did were rather radical in the sense that they had never been done before and that they were a novel approach to an old problem.

All of us who were here at the time realized that he was roundly criticized, lambasted and belabored for his pains. Yet, he did a remarkable job in the field of mental health. However, this dedicated man has left government service and a new person has taken over who does not have the same approach to the problem. I do not say that her approach is incorrect, but it is not the same approach. Therefore, maybe the people who started under Secretary Shapiro feel that they are being left out. This is a natural reaction which may take place, but it may not be a true one. I believe we have to wait and see, after three years under this present Administration, where we are going and where we are headed for. I think we should give it a fair chance to operate before we take any radical action ourselves.

This bill would amend Section 2004 of "The Third Class City Code," which is concerned with the hours of service; exceptions; and vacations of police officers. The amendatory language provides that members of the police department shall have an annual vacation of not less than fourteen working days and those who have been employed as such for less than one year shall have an annual vacation of not less than two weeks.

The law presently provides in Section 2004 that cities shall permit every member of the police department to have an annual vacation of not less than fourteen days without diminution of the salary or compensation fixed by ordinance.

In Section 2001 of "The Third Class City Code" it is provided that:

"* * * Council shall prescribe all necessary rules and regulations for the organization and government of the police force."

This bill is an unnecessary interference with the principle of home rule. A survey made from this office indicates that one half of the cities involved now give a two-week vacation with pay. To have the State Government arbitrarily increase such allowance to almost three weeks without regard to the financial condition of those municipalities, would be most inappropriate. I hasten to add that the present law establishes the two weeks as a minimum and that all of the cities possess the authority to establish longer vacation schedules as this bill would have done.

It is unfortunate that the time limitation does not permit the bill to be recalled for further consideration and, therefore, for the above reasons the bill is not approved.

DAVID L. LAWRENCE.

COMMUNICATION AND BILL LAID ON TABLE

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the communication from the Governor together with the bill be laid on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEES TO MEET DURING SESSION

Mr. FINEMAN asked and obtained permission for the Committee on State Government to meet during the session of the House.

Mr. HAMILTON asked and obtained permission for the Committee on Insurance to meet during the session of the House.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, last week we had something to say about reapportionment. Before I left to go home last week we had before us this newspaper called "The Observer" and every now and then we get some pretty hot tips from that particular paper. My attention was called to the article in there about reapportionment, and I will just read what it says and then I want to comment on the situation that this would result in.

Mr. Green, of Philadelphia, is supposed to have said that if the city organization is pressed too hard on reapportionment, Green may "go for broke." "We are not hogs," said this source, "but if they do not agree to let us have our six seats in the new Congress, we may wind up by electing 12 or more."

If all of the State's Congressmen under the new quota as fixed by the 1960 census have to run at-large the politico made it clear that Philadelphia's tremendous Democratic majority could easily vote for any number it chose and see that those Green favored would be elected.

When I got home I talked to our election officials there and asked them what would happen in a typical county like McKean if congressmen ran at-large. The observation was made that on each party there could be from 200 to 300 candidates who would seek the congressional nomination in the spring primary.

Why would that be so? It would be so because a person could file a nominating petition for congress and run a chance on getting the draw, so that he would be in the first 27 congressmen, so that his position on the ballot would be within the first 27. That would be the reason for attracting a large number of candidates who would fare well on just the chance of a draw. I could well become a congressman of the United States by running these candidates at-large.

What would happen in the typical small voting district which has voting machines? In my community they would not have room on the voting machines for this large number of candidates. Therefore, we would put on the voting machines just the candidates for congress, governor, lieutenant-governor, members of the General Assembly of both parties. That is about all the machine would handle. Then we would have to provide separate secret polling booths for those who would vote for Congress and we would then give them a ballot, two by three feet with 400 names on it, as the case might be, and they would then go into the secrecy of the polling booth and with a pencil mark the ballot for their first 27 congressmen for nomination in the primaries, which I am now talking about.

Now another big problem we envision would be the absentee ballot. They are specially printed. If we have an absentee ballot especially printed and with these 300 or 400 names on them, it would be quite a big parcel to mail out. It would take special mailing envelopes and so forth in order to send out the absentee ballots. That would mean a cost of, someone estimated, at least a dollar apiece to have that special type of absentee ballot printed. It is estimated that the cost of a special ballot for congressmen to run at-large, plus the cost of the absentee ballot, if you print from 5 to 10 million ballots in the State, depending on the number they feel will be necessary to provide everybody with a ballot and a sample ballot, it could well cost $500,000 to $1 million for getting the ballots printed, that is, the absentee ballots and the State ballot itself. So, it would then mean that we would have the most chaotic, the most expensive, and I say the most unfair, election of congressmen that we have ever had in history.

Why? It is unfair because a congressman should be elected from his own back door, not be elected by the State at-large.

It would be chaotic because it would take all day long to conduct your vote and with the double voting it would almost be impossible to handle the large number of people who would want to vote in a primary.

Here is another case where chaos could prevail:

I looked in the Philadelphia phone book. There are 60 people there by the name of Bill Green. I am sure that four or five of them would like to run for Congress. The point of chaos would be the similarity of names just in a city like Philadelphia. There are a lot of Bill Greens all over Pennsylvania, I am sure, that would like to run for Congress and could do it on an at-large basis.

I suppose most Republicans could say, "Well, with that type of election and the chaos that prevails, why fight so hard about reapportionment? If the Democrats give you a rough time, give in to them and let them run at large." But we cannot do that. We should, as I said last week, sit down together, let everybody get together and come up with a fair reapportionment bill. If Philadelphia should lose one congressman, they ought to give in and lose one. If Republicans are to lose one or two, and that is the way the die is cast, we should. But we should sit down and have a reapportionment bill this week so we can end this session.

I understand, to repeat what I said last week, that Senator Weiner says we are going to be out of here in three weeks' time. That I want to see. But you are going to get out if we get reapportionment. Then these appropriation bills can pass and things will really hum around here.

Now another thing before I sit down. The non-preferred appropriation bills in the 1955 session did not pass until March of 1956. In the '59 session the non-preferred appropriations did not pass until the latter part of November 1959.

We all want to work together. We want to get this reapportionment bill. We do not want this chaos to reign throughout the State if we have to run these congressmen at-large.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Long.

Mr. WILLIAM JOSEPH LONG. Mr. Speaker, members of the House, I thank you very much. I never thought I would live to see the day when I would have a hundred and some Republicans sing happy birthday to me. Thank you.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I also bring to the attention of the House that I believe last Saturday was the birthday of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand. Am I correct?

The SPEAKER. Did we miss the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand? Is there some way of making up for that neglect, Mr. Dengler?

We will wish him a happy next birthday.

Mr. DENGLER. Let us all sing, "Happy birthday, dear Gene."

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I know the members of the House know that I am generally not at a loss for words except on an occasion like this when I do not know what to say. However, it is with the deepest gratitude to all the members that I say thank you. Certainly some of the most pleasant associations that I have had in my entire life I owe to the members of this House. So, sincerely and with the utmost heartfelt thanks I say that I hope that our relationship continues for a long, long time into the future.

SENATE MESSAGE

The clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented extracts from the Journal of the Senate:

Amended House bill returned for concurrence Nos. 410 and 428.

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED SENATE BILL CONCURRED IN BY SENATE

The clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to Senate bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 95.

An Act amending the act of August 5, 1941 (P. L. 803), entitled as amended "An act providing for the creation maintenance and operation of a county employes' retirement system in counties of the fifth sixth seventh and eighth class . . ." requiring retirement credit to be given for certain per diem employment.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, on page 7, I request permission to call the first bill up today, bills on final passage, House bill 1331, printer's No. 2308 for the first roll call for today.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House bill No. 1331, entitled:

An Act authorizing the Department of Highways with the approval of the Governor to construct a highway and to erect and maintain a bridge over the Schuylkill River in Montgomery County.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Fetterolf.

Mr. FETTEROLF. Mr. Speaker, during the past week we had quite a bit of oratory on House bill 1331, concerning a bridge over the Schuylkill River at Norristown.

I would like to make this very clear, that all Republican members from Montgomery County are wholeheartedly in favor of this bridge and have been for several years. Since 1959, Republican bills of authorization and bearing a $3-million tag have died in committee. Now this bill calls for an appropriation of $3 million out of the Highway fund, but it in no way binds the Secretary of Highways to use the money. The department should have $3 million as the result of the two cents a gallon gasoline tax increase, which we in Montgomery County also pay.

Therefore, it would be welcome and long awaited good news if Secretary Martin could tell our people, at last we are going to earmark $3 million for the Norristown bridge and we are going to build it. Promises plans and specifications are fine, but the people of Montgomery County want a definite commitment. Let us hope that following the passage of this bill Mr. Martin will make that commitment.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

On the question,

It was agreed to.

Ordered, that the bill as amended lie over for printing.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 997, entitled:

An Act amending the "Building and Loan Code" approved May 5, 1933 (P. L. 457), permitting mortgage loans on industrial property.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, as I understand this bill, it will permit building and loan associations to take mortgages on industrial properties. To my mind, and I have been connected with building and loan associations for some 30 or 35 years and was very familiar with the trouble that the building and loans got into during the depression years, this type of industrial loan is one of the things that got the buildings and loans in trouble during the depression years and made a lot of them go into liquidation.

I think this is very bad legislation. I do not think it is within the province of building and loan associations to make loans, industrial loans on industrial properties. They essentially make loans for residential purposes to help people buy property.

There is a provision in the building and loan code, of course, that semi-business properties where there is habitation in the building can be financed by building and loan associations. But to make outright industrial loans, I do not think is within the province of our building and loan association business.

I, therefore, respectfully ask all the members of the House to vote against this bill. I think it is a step backward in building and loan business in Pennsylvania.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Tomascik.

Mr. TOMASCIK. Mr. Speaker, I desire to speak on this bill 997.

One of the most substantial problems encountered in the areas where the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority money is being fully utilized is the limited resources of local banking institutions in providing first mortgage money. A contributing factor to this situation is the fact that State chartered savings and building and loan associations are prohibited under the building and loan code from lending money for industrial mortgages. Since the three State-authorized savings and loan associations in the greater Hazleton area in Luzerne County have assets in excess of $8 million, their ability to lend money for industrial first mortgages would have a substantial effect on the very tight money market.

There are two additional things that should be noted in this connection. First, the savings and loan associations chartered by the Federal Government do allow industrial first mortgage money, and the Hazleton Federal Savings and Loan Association of Hazleton, just to cite one case, has contributed a total of $239,000, representing slightly more than 10 percent of the total amounts of the bank participation in the so-called CAN-DO, INC., an activity which is an industrial fund in the Hazleton area.

Finally, it should be noted that pursuant to the act of 1959, a State chartered savings and loan association can contribute by way of a donation to an industrial development agency, yet it cannot lend money for such purposes.

Therefore, it is strongly urged that the building and loan code of Pennsylvania be amended in such particulars in order to allow State chartered building and loan associations to participate in lending money for industrial mortgages.

This bill 997 is a very good bill. It is very much desired by the business people in Luzerne County, and I urge its enthusiastic support.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I listened to the gentleman very carefully. I do not think it is any argument for this bill that the Federal building and loans associations are allowed to make such loans. They are under an entirely different charter and an entirely different law than we are here in Pennsylvania. I still repeat my argument that it was this kind of loan that got us into trouble and made many building and loan associations liquidate during the depression years. I know what I am talking about when I say that.

Now, with reference to the act that was passed in 1959 allowing building and loan associations to make donations to help an industrial development fund, certainly it is no analogy in the way of an argument to allow them to make loans. Sure, we passed a bill in 1959 to allow building and loan associations to make donations, because you are increasing the industrial business or helping the industrial climate in any community. Certainly there are going to be—probably and possibly—more people buying homes and more people looking for a way to finance their homes. In that sense, yes, it was a good bill that we passed in 1959, but I cannot see the analogy between allowing the building and loan associations to make donations to an industrial development fund which has very little, if anything, to do with their reserves, their surplus and earnings and their risk loans, as loans on industrial establishments would have. Industrial loans of any kind are more or less, considerably more, of a risk than loans on residential property. I certainly do not think we should pass any law here that would allow building and loans to take further risks in any way, shape or form than they are allowed to take under the present law. I think we have gone far enough. I believe the code has proven successful throughout the last 14, yes, 21, 22 years, the way it has worked out. And we adopted that code and we learned by the experience of the depression years. That was one of the reasons why industrial loans were cut out of the present building and loan code.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Doughten.

Mr. DOUGHTEN. Mr. Speaker,—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For what purpose does the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Filo, rise?

Mr. FILO. Mr. Speaker, we would like to hear the debate on the floor of this House. The microphones are in terrible condition. We could not hear what the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auken, was saying.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would like to inform the gentleman that the chief clerk has had installed speakers around the hall of the House on an experimental basis. We are trying to find out if they will work.

The engineers are present in the hall of the House and they are making notes of the things that they find wrong with the present system.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Doughten.

Mr. DOUGHTEN. Mr. Speaker, I have the honor of representing a district in which the building and loan organizations were first born.

In my district is also located the first home which was ever financed through a building and loan mortgage. These building and loan associations have been the real backbone of home financing in Philadelphia throughout its history and it is known as the "City of Homes."

They are composed of small investors and the investment made by these corporations are small in amount so that if there is a failure of the investment then no one is severely hurt and these building and loans have had a beneficial and very salutary effect upon the building of homes in the city of Philadelphia and throughout other parts of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

At a time like this, when we are struggling to get funds to build homes, it seems to me a poor bit of statesmanship to advance legislation which would take some of that money away from the home-building field. I think it would also jeopardize the investment of these many small investors who put their money in building and loans in the event that a commercial investment would go bad, and sometimes they do.

I say the investment in commercial property is too big an undertaking for building and loans; it is too big a risk.

I think this is bad legislation and I ask the members on both sides of the aisles to vote against it and protect this source of funds for the building of small homes.

Thank you.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair now returns the gavel to the Speaker of the House.

The SPEAKER (HIRAM G. ANDREWS) IN THE CHAIR

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Helm.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1009, entitled:

An Act to protect the public safety by regulating the mining of bituminous coal prescribing duties for certain municipal and township officers and imposing penalties.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Municipal Corporations.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Murphy.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the motion to recommit this bill. On March 21, this House passed by a substantial majority House bill 67 which would provide the same type of protection to the anthracite coal mining business as this bill will provide to the bituminous mining districts.

Subsequent to the passage of House bill 67 and the reporting of this bill from committee to the House calendar, we passed also the anthracite and bituminous mine subsidence insurance bill which is now before the other body for their action. That insurance fund, as you know, would provide a type of a State-regulated insurance fund to cover mine subsidence.

In order to coincide with the insurance bill which we passed about two weeks ago, the original bill on subsidence in anthracite districts, I am asking the members of this House to oppose this recommittal motion and act favorably upon House bill 1009 so that we in the bituminous regions will have the same type of protection as they will have in the anthracite region.

Thank you.

The SPEAKER. The Chair notes with a great deal of interest that there has been no indication on the part of the House as to whether this is to be a voice vote or a roll call vote. If there is to be a roll call vote—

Mr. McCANN. The gentleman from Washington is standing and requests a roll call vote. I will second the request if that is what is necessary.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. MURPHY and McCANN and were as follows:

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1044, entitled:

An Act to create a regional agency by intergovernmental compact for the planning conservation utilization development management and control of the water and related natural resources of the Delaware River Basin for the improvement of navigation reduction of flood damage regulation of water quality control of pollution development of water supply hydroelectric energy fish and wildlife habitat and public recreational facilities and other purposes and defining the functions powers and duties of such agency.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, if I may, Senate bill No. 350 is the Delaware River Compact which was reported from the Committee on State Government and read the first time replacing this bill. We held this bill until we would see if the Senate would pass a similar compact. We were in a position to vote on this for weeks.

Therefore, I ask that it be recommitted so we will be in a position to vote on Senate bill 350 on Thursday.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1438, entitled:

An Act amending the "Bituminous Coal Open Pit Mining Conservation Act" approved May 31, 1945 (P. L. 1198), further regulating bituminous strip mining operations changing provisions with respect to bonds filing dates reports registration backfilling and overburden including certain persons within the provisions of the act and providing for the use of funds in certain cases.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. FOX asked unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 10), page 14, lines 4 and 5, by inserting brackets before and after "such an extent as"

Amend Sec. 4 (Sec. 10), page 14, line 5, by striking out "is satisfactory to the secretary and" and inserting a surface which will be a gently rolling topography so as to minimize erosion due to rainfall and make the surface more suitable for agricultural grazing or tree cutting or logging operations and

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lawrence, Mr. Fox.

Mr. FOX. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say, first, in offering these amendments that I am not trying to weaken this bill nor, on the other hand, am I trying to penalize the strip mining operators. House bill No. 1438, the bill under discussion, makes more stringent the provisions relating to the backfilling of the pits of the coal mines. These pits, of course, when they are excavated, it is necessary to have great amounts of earth removed from them and piled into piles; they are called soil banks. As we drive along the highways of the Commonwealth and see the unsightly strip mining operations, it is usually these rough, eroded soil banks that we see.

Under the present law, the only requirement is that these soil banks should be leveled to such an extent as would permit the planting of grass or trees. I have seen in communities near my home, and I might say that we are surrounded by strip mines in my district, these soil banks that have not been leveled to any degree whatsoever. The trees have been planted on the almost perpendicular side of the piles of earth, and since there are a few trees clinging tenaciously to the sides of the soil bank that fulfills the present law.

I have looked up the Ohio law on this matter and I find that there is a provision very similar to what I am offering here in their law. As we look at the strip mines in Ohio we do not see so many unsightly soil banks as we do in our State.

It is for that reason that I am offering these amendments, so that after the bill is passed and the pits are filled, as required, these unsightly soil banks will also be rounded off and leveled to such an extent that there will not be unsightly eroded piles such as there are now. It is for that reason, and for that reason only, that I offer these amendments to improve the bill. I ask consideration from both sides in accepting the amendments.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rovanseck.

Mr. ROVANSEK. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose these amendments to House bill 1438.

I mentioned last week that I had talked with quite a number of different organizations and they are highly in favor of the bill. I am going to ask the members of this House to vote against the amendments.

I believe it is a good piece of legislation. I believe the bill, which was debated last week and brought back in its original form—and I have consulted with quite a number of different organizations and they have a lot of respect for the wording, the language, in this bill—I believe it is a good bill and therefore I ask the members to vote against the amendments. I believe it would be no more than proper to vote on the bill as it stands.

I ask for a roll call on the amendments.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. ROVANSEK and FOX and were as follows:

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Clarion, Mr. Varner.

Mr. VARNER. Mr. Speaker, I find myself in a rather unusual role today representing the coal miners. The coal miners seem to be on the defense in Pennsylvania, if that last roll call was any indication.

One thing I want to bring out: in the Sunday Pittsburgh paper there was an article concerning the Harmon Creek Coal Company from Pittsburgh district and they are the only operators in the entire bituminous region of the Commonwealth who have come out in support of House bill 1438. In 1950, 445 additional coal strip mine operators were registered with the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries. They are all opposed to this legislation.

In 1950, Harmon Creek had a strip mine production of 380,000 tons all from one mine. Over 60 percent of the total number of operators in Pennsylvania had a production of less than 25,000 per year.

At their Florence Mine in Washington County, Harmon Creek stripped a coal seam 54 inches thick. The average thickness of the coal seam stripped in Clearfield County, or in Clarion County, for example, would be less than 27 inches, with some seams ranging as low as 13 inches, less than one-quarter of that of Harmon Creek. Consequently, production per acre at Harmon Creek will range as high as four times that of some of the Clearfield or Clarion County mines, and twice as much as most. Naturally the cost per ton will be lower.

Much publicity has been given to a restoration job in Pike Township, Clearfield County, under contract from the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries. The bid totalled $4,747, slightly less than $250 per acre for the 19 acres involved. From the mine, 23,539 tons of coal were removed. The costs of restoration then amounts to 20 cents per ton, already twice as much as what Mr. Hillman says his restoration costs are.

Mr. Speaker, I might interject here to say that it would appear to me that this is a fight between the big operators and the little operators and I think that through this legislation Mr. Hillman and his big company will be favored over the little operators as are represented in my county.

A recent release in the "Pittsburgh Press" says, "He," the contractor, "wasn't enthusiastic about the job.—" Now this is a job that was given much publicity by the Department of Mines. In talking with this same man he stated to us that he was receiving less than half what he normally bid a job for. To do restoration such as this he normally bid to receive between $17 and $20 per hour for his equipment; for this job his total realization was under $10 an hour. Consequently, the cost per ton for restoration should actually be around 40 cents per ton. In many recent releases, Mr. Speaker, the figure of $250 per acre for restoration has been stressed. We have yet to see or hear of the $1,225 per acre paid for restoring an abandoned operation on Game Lands 95 in Butler County. Here $51,200 was expended to restore 41.8 acres of land which originally costs the Game Commission less than $5.00 per acre. In other words, they were paying $1,200 per acre to restore land originally purchased for under $5.00 per acre. Thus it can easily be seen that restoration costs will vary greatly for each operation. It is entirely unrealistic to base costs on only one job.

Dr. Wilber, Secretary of Health, is quoted as declaring that "the new law would go a long way to help stop stream pollution by acid mine water." This is absolutely not based on fact. No valid study has ever been made upon which such conclusion can be arrived at. Other reliable authorities that have spent many years studying this drainage problem say that such restoration will not change the drainage picture to any appreciable extent.

The Sanitary Water Board, of which Dr. Wilbar is Chairman, administers the Clean Streams Law of the Commonwealth. Before any mine can be opened or reopened a permit must be secured from the board. One requirement of most permits is that there shall be no acid discharge. If an acid discharge does occur during operation, such permit may be revoked. The permit remains in effect years after the operation ceases mining. If an acid discharge occurs after the mining stops, the operator must correct the violation or no further permits will be granted until the alleged violation is corrected. A company, if it is to stay in business, must abide by permit conditions. This is not a clean streams law as the press has so flamboyantly played it up to be.

The majority of the coal operators have been opposed to this proposed bill because of the greatly increased costs which they as operators know such restoration will cost. They are basing their position on long experience, not on one operation or on hearsay evidence. They know the effect such increased costs will have on their particular operation and their consequent inability to compete with the coal industry in neighboring states.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to depart for a minute from my prepared text to say that up in my county we are struggling to get new industry just like they are in the other 66 counties in Pennsylvania. Here we have existing, going industry, and for us to sit down here in Harrisburg and legislate this industry out of business to me just does not make sense.

We in my county have gained some fine new industries in the last 8, or 10, or 12 years. Some of them were helped here by legislation. In 1955 we passed a bill here that would give some relief to mobile homes and we got a new trailer plant in my county to make mobile homes. Several other counties were beneficiaries of this legislation. Now here we are on June 20, 1961, in this House, passing a bill which will affect the livelihood of thousands of my people, and for that reason I ask that you oppose this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. Marsh.

Mr. MARSH. Mr. Speaker, ladies and gentlemen of the House, this is a highly technical bill. I doubt that very few people in this House understand the real implications of the passage of this bill.

You hear all about spoil piles, so many cuts, so many degrees, up to the high wall, but how many of you understand just exactly what it means? I doubt very many do.

Strip mines are mostly, especially in Clearfield County, the stripping operations occur over where the deep mines have been. These acid conditions which we hear so much about, acid discharge into the streams of Pennsylvania, and the discharge from the strip mining operations actually come from the deep mine operations. That is where acid starts. As many of you might know, the formation of acid is a chemical formation. It forms in the deep mines where you have chemical action of air, plus water, plus the other materials which form this acid. And you do not have that in the strip mining. Of course, you do have some sulphur.

A lot of us are swayed by emotion. We go through the countryside and we see these strip operations and it looks as though bombs have hit the place, but actually a lot of this damage was done many, many years ago. Previous to 1941 road building contractors, with no roads to build, got into the coal stripping business and took out a tremendous amount of coal and simply replaced much of the land to its former use.

Our present day operators are doing a very good job and under the existing law are living up to the qualifications that have been laid down. They have been putting back the soil as required, although the new requirements of putting the dirt back up to the high wall of 40 degrees is an impossibility. It just cannot be done. It cannot be done physically nor can it be done financially, that is, to make the present coal stripping business operate.

Now then, I am concerned about this perhaps more than any other members from any other county because Clearfield County produces twice as much strip coal as any other county in the State. It is our principal industry. It is our life blood. It is a case of bread and butter with us. In Clearfield County we employ 1778 people in our coal stripping operations. It is one of the few mining operations we have because the deep mines are not able to operate any longer profitably. Our production in Clearfield County is 20 million tons a year, with an annual payroll of $6.5 million. Some of our coal operators have a payroll of $6,000 a week; one other operator I know, a friend, has a payroll of $4,000 a week.

So there is a tremendous amount of fresh money coming into Clearfield County. It amounts to something like $20 billion a year which comes from other States on the Eastern Seaboard, and other parts of the country where our coal is sold. Remove this industry from Clearfield County and we will certainly be in desperate shape.

It seems to me—we cannot understand why we are spending so much money to bring in industry, running industrial development programs of all kinds when we already have a good industry in Clearfield County and through the action of this bill we will not have it. That certainly is a truth without a bit of exaggeration, because this backfill that we talk about, which Mr. Hillman claims he can do for 10 cents a ton, we cannot operate in Clearfield County for less than 46 because of the terrain, the mountainous area, that we have there; it is simply an impossibility to do it. Our machinery instead of cutting coal will be used for the replacing of soil. They are doing a good job now covering the coal beds to the depth of three feet and it has been working out satisfactorily.

Mr. Hillman talks about being able to do the job for 10 cents a ton. I know one road contractor who built nine miles of highway for $45,000 a mile. So it does not prove that because one person could do it for $45,000 a mile that everyone could do so.

All of us would like to see clean streams in Pennsylvania, but we must be realistic, too. We know that is impossible. As I said before, streams are polluted by the hundreds of deep mines which were abandoned years ago and the efforts to seal them have been ineffective. The best sealing of these mines is stripping the outcrop and sealing the open pits so that the water seeps out gradually. The strip mining by nature is confined to contours that hold the water in the spring and during dry weather. The complete sealing of the high wall is unnecessary and is only expensive. The soil bank is filled and gradually after trees are planted on it, you can hardly tell it from ordinary land as to the wonderful job that is being done.

Now, then, I know much of this opposition is coming from Allegheny County, from Pittsburgh, and I know that many of us certainly do not like the belching yellow smoke and the green and black smoke that belches from the steel mills of Pittsburgh. But the people there have learned to live with it and we have learned to live with our own strip mining operations in Clearfield County.

One thing, from the economic viewpoint which I want to stress to everyone of you is, that if this bill passes, the coal stripping business in Clearfield County and our bread and butter will just go out the window. After all, there is only one important law, the most important law in life, and that is the law of self-preservation, and on this point, and from an economic standpoint, I ask all of you to oppose this bill.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Cambria desire to be recognized?

Mr. ROVANSEK. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Clarion, Mr. Varner, has made reference to the fact that this is a battle between the big operators and the small operators. Such is not the case. This is fundamentally a battle between those who believe in the preservation of our natural resources and the natural beauty of the Commonwealth, and those who believe in leaving a business enterprise like a scarred, bombed battlefield.

Reference has also been made to the fact that an outstanding citizen of Allegheny County, Mr. James F. Hillman, believes in the principles of House bill No. 1438. We believe that Mr. Hillman is to be congratulated upon his stand as a businessman who is willing to do more than the law requires.

Now if we go back through the history of our Country, we would find that from time to time, when we were a logging and forest nation, that there was a source of battle between people who wanted to destroy our forests and those who wanted to preserve same. Let us not make the same mistake that we did scores of years ago when we destroyed our forests and were compelled to spend untold millions of dollars to restore same.

I believe all the members of the House would be interested in hearing a short letter from Mr. James F. Hillman, who is the president of the Harmon Creek Coal Corporation, which was addressed to me and which he desires, I believe, should be heard by the members of this House.

The letter is as follows:

"Secretary of Mines Louis Evans stated, I believe, for the record that he had taken bids for the complete restoration of a stripped area in Clearfield County, and that the cost of restoration of this land, including backfilling, had amounted to $245 per acre. Perhaps you will be interested to know that this company has been recontouring their coal acreage, including backfilling, at our Florence Mine for many years. This has been accomplished while operating under contract with the UMW, including the payment of 40 cents per ton to the Welfare Fund. Under the present wage scale, which has been effective since January 1, 1959, the cost of this full land restoration has been 10 cents per ton of coal mined and shipped. In our contouring and planting we go beyond the requirements of the present regulations of House bill No. 1438 and Senate bill No. 470. We believe that these restored areas of our Florence Mine has economic value, and they have also provided hunting and fishing recreation.

"We extend a warm welcome to other coal strippers who may be apprehensive of the costs of full land restoration. I am informed that figures have been submitted approximating $1,700 per acre for this full restoration, and I feel that whoever compiled this figure unfortunately made gross errors in calculations.

"Sincerely,
/s/ James F. Hillman, President,
Harmon Coal Creek Corporation."

We say that if Mr. Hillman's company can do it for 10 cents a ton, that the other companies could do the same. We also say that under the Ohio law today the regulations are stricter, and the Ohio coal strippers are not going out of business.

If you are in favor of conservation of our natural resources and are against the destruction of our Commonwealth from a scenic standpoint, you must vote for House bill 1438.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rovanseck.

Mr. ROVANSEK. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this amendment. I believe it is bad, I am opposed to the amendments on the merit of what they—

The SPEAKER. We have disposed of the amendments. The question is: shall the bill pass finally in its present form.

Mr. ROVANSEK. Mr. Speaker, I understood that Mr. Varner from Clarion County submitted amendments to this bill.

The SPEAKER. Mr. Varner does not have any amendments.

Does the gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. Breth, desire to be recognized?

Mr. BRETH. I do, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. Breth.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, I want to say a few things concerning this bill.

First of all, I am firmly convinced that a great many members of this House are not aware of what the bill will do.

Secondly, I am also convinced that a great many members of this House are in no way familiar with the problems of strip mining restoration.

I have for many years, in this House, insisted that the strip mine laws were inadequate and that they were under-enforced. Today I want to compliment the Lawrence administration and the previous administration for putting that situation back into perspective so far as the law is concerned. I am very unhappy to say to this House that from the time the present strip mining bill was passed in 1945, in Clearfield County we lost many, many miles of pure streams; probably 50 to 60 miles of pure streams. I am very happy to say that in the last six years we have not lost a hundred feet, due to the proper enforcement of the present law.

Some years ago we started a program of revision of the strip mine laws to bring them up to date, to modernize them, and today proves that the work of the past six years was not lost. In other words, we wanted to tighten up those rules and regulations so that the record of the past six years could be maintained.

I was very happy last week to see an amendment put into this bill which might make it workable and not a financial disaster to the present strip mine industry, particularly in my own county. However, I was very much disappointed to see this House reverse itself and restore this bill to its original form.

It is almost impossible to tell you the effects of this bill, but I will try to illustrate it. I would say that a great many, perhaps in over half the instances where land is stripped, a 45-degree restoration is possible, and probably financially possible. But in many of the sections of Clearfield County, we have many, many hills on a 45-degree angle where it is economically impossible, and it is almost engineeringly impossible to take the overburden that has gone down the hill and restore it on 45 degrees. The machinery is not made, the bulldozer is not made, to push it uphill. If you are an operator—and most of these smaller operators do not have this big equipment to have a drag-line up on top—it is impossible to reach down and do it. In fact, I do not think that nature would let you do it.

I am placed in a very, very sad position today. I know strip mining; I know what will work and what will not work. I have lived with it and I understand its problems and I know that this particular bill in this form is unworkable and I will guarantee you it will not pass in this form.

The point is this: As a matter of pure conservation, the amendment which was proposed and put into the bill last week was to restore it to 50 percent of the high wall. What happens is the top falls in; you get a rolling restoration. This way, if you backfill it, and you can backfill it at angles of 30 degrees, 20 degrees, or a similar wide angle, but you cannot restore a 45-degree angle. Then you get a terrific amount of erosion, and you do not comply with the simple rules of nature. A rolling restoration will conserve water after there has been a terrific, good, fast, run-off of rainfall.

I understand that speeches made on the floor of this House at the time bills are up are usually ineffective, they change few minds, but nevertheless I am going to be a prophet. I, very much against my will, am going to vote against this bill because it is engineeringly impossible and unworkable and economically punitive to a great industry that serves a great segment of our population.

I am also going to say to you that this bill will not pass in its present form or become law.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Rovanseck.

Mr. ROVANSEK. Mr. Speaker, I am asking the members of this House to vote for this piece of legislation.

In all the years of experience that I have had in mining and I have seen holes, water holes, that were a danger to the children and to other people, and I also saw dirt dumped on peoples' back porches by strip mining; I believe that this is a sensible piece of legislation. I have had consultations with people who told me through experience that it would not be too much of an added cost to the people who are in this business, that it certainly will not harm them.

The gentleman from Clearfield states that it is impossible to fill the angle that is required under this legislation. I say that it is possible today with present day equipment that we have in mines. I say it can be done. I think it is good legislation and I am asking the members of this House to vote for this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Venango, Mr. Gramlich.

Mr. GRAMLICH. Mr. Speaker, I could not resist getting in on this ear-drawing conversation and speeches by my colleague in Clarion County and, I believe, two of them from Clearfield County. I think maybe I can address my remarks to all three of them.

I take it—

Mr. VARNER. Mr. Speaker, I object to his remarks.

POINT OF ORDER

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Clarion, Mr. Varner, rise?

Mr. VARNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. VARNER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is singling me out as one of the proponents of, or one of the opponents, of this legislation, and I do not think that is necessary.

The SPEAKER. Well, it may not be necessary, but I think the gentleman is within his rights to express his personal opinion.

Mr. VARNER. Mr. Speaker, I think it is quite obvious. He should address himself to the Chair.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will kindly confine his remarks to the merits of the bill rather than the merits of either the proponents or advocates of the bill.

Mr. GRAMLICH. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I believe I did address my remarks to the Chair in the beginning.

I hear a lot about the poor coal stripper. How much have I heard about the poor water of which we have a lot in my part of the country and particularly in other parts of the northwest country that we have discussed here? I heard one gentleman say, I do not believe there is 100 feet of bad water in his county. Well, I will tell you, Mr. Speaker, there are many, many miles of bad water in my county and in the adjoining counties, particularly on the east and in Clarion County. These streams were pure. Only this morning as we came by I called attention to one of those operations along the highway, and not too long ago I tasted the water coming from this operation and I will guarantee that you could not drink it. You must never forget the number one resource is water; I mean good water. I know something about strip mine operations, not to operate the coal, but the results of strip mine operations. A couple weeks ago I traveled back in the strip mining area and it was shameful when I saw a man's well destroyed, I saw his pumphouse with a foot of water in it pumped during the night from a strip mine.

I am not against coal operators, but I cannot believe they can still put the dirt back and restore our scenic beauty.

How many times have I said to the gentlemen over in the Department of Forests and Waters, it is not the streams that we need, we get plenty of fish to stock, but we have no more good water. I ask the gentleman from Clarion County—he knows where Hemlock Creek is—can we put any more creek in there? No. I can tell him the name of the strip mine that polluted that stream. I can tell him why Porcupine Run is polluted; I can tell you that 2,400 fine trout died this year two days after they were released, from pollution from the strip mines.

I say this strip mine bill is a good one and the sooner we get this kind of legislation the better and more fresh water we will have. I say we all should vote for it. It is high time that we get some good fishing water. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Clarion, Mr. Varner.

Mr. VARNER. Now, the fishermen have had their say. The fact remains, I would like to have someone tell me what my people in Clarion County are going to do for a living if House bill 1438 becomes law? Are we going to ship them all down to work for the Pittsburgh Press, are we going to ship them all over to Brownsville to work in the refineries, or to Franklin to work in the refineries? That is my contention. This has been the law for a number of years. We have been down here listening for years and I have voted for every industrial development program that was ever brought before this House. And I am for industrial development programs. But I cannot, for the life of me, see how we are going to give up a good growing industry for a few fish in a few streams in Pennsylvania.

Now most of our lost streams were lost as a result of deep mines, not strip mine operations. I could go into a lot of detail on this, Mr. Speaker, I know that there are a lot of bills here on the calendar and a lot of other people probably want to go out and eat dinner at the Colonial Country Club or someplace, but I would like to just take this much time to plead to you to postpone passage on this bill. And if we can not do that, I would like to have you vote against that, because, believe you me, there are now fifteen hundred or so people that are on public assistance in my county and, if this bill becomes law, this administration and the people in here who vote for it can feel that they are driving more people onto public assistance.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. Marsh, who is speaking for the second time.

Mr. MARSH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the same question that the gentleman, Representative Varner, asked? Will the people of Allegheny County and Philadelphia accept many of our unemployed if this bill goes through?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Murphy.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the previous gentleman's inquiry, it would appear to me that if they have 100 men employed digging this coal up, it will take that same 100 men covering up the hole. There just will not be quite as much profit in it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Holliday.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, I have heard a lot of talk and arguments on contaminated streams and this bill 1438. Now, 1438, as far as I can see, increases the bond and changes the angle of backfilling. Now, as far as contaminated streams are concerned, I think my colleague from Clarion County, and I think the gentleman from Clearfield County, Mr. Breth, will have to agree with me that great many streams in Clearfield County were contaminated long before they were ever stripped, through deep mining there. I doubt very much if any new streams have been contaminated by stripping, because under the present law, if it is lived up to, if the various departments see that it is lived up to, I do not believe you would have very much contamination.

Now, in the first place, before you can strip you have to file an application laying it out on a plan, 400 feet to the inch I believe, and you get a permit from the bureau of mines. Also before you can strip you have to get a permit from the sanitary water board to show that your stripping is not going to contaminate any clear streams. Now, if those two things are lived up to by the various departments, before you can get a permit, where is the stream going to be contaminated? If the stream is checked by the inspectors—and that is where I would like to call your attention. If you recall a few weeks ago I spoke on the floor of the House here about a stripping operation that was contaminating two reservoirs and killed the fish. They were put in one day and they were all dead the next day. Now, that has been going on for a number of years. This operation was on the water shed of the Allegheny Mountains. Now, in the first place, that person should not have been given the permit. In fact, he did not have a permit to operate a strip mine up there. He claimed that it was a clay mine. Well, you cannot take the clay out until you have taken the coal because the clay is lower than the coal and consequently the moment you strip the coal you are going to get some contamination. Now, after we called their attention to it, they made an investigation and stopped the operator from stripping. But we had to tell them about the operation before they took any action on it.

Now this last week I wrote to the bureau of mines and called their attention to an operator who was contaminating another tributary of that same stream. He said, in reply, "Mr. (blank)"—I will not mention the inspector's name—"does not know of any illegal mining operation on Loup Run, but this company has a permit . . . for drainage to a tributary of Bell Gap Run, which may be the tributary referred to in your telephone call." Well that stream is contaminated now, and yet they say there is no contamination.

Now, I claim there is nothing wrong with the present law which, if it is strictly enforced by the various heads of the departments, the department having to do so, you would not have any trouble with your stripping operations. Right at the present time, I understand they have about $9 million in bonds which have been put up by the stripping operation. I also understand that less than 4 percent of the bonds that have been put up have been let go by the stripping operators. So there is very little cause for saying that the strip operators are not living up to their agreement. If the State checks them carefully, I think you will have no trouble with the stripping operations, and, when you get down to contamination, just remember the streams were contaminated long before stripping operations ever went into effect. And as the gentleman said, a great deal of that has been deep mines and some of those deep mines are still draining contaminated water into the streams. The State has not sealed them off and a great many strip operations that you see, driving along the highways today, are those operations which were done or stripped during the war when there was no law at all. Anybody could go in and strip anything they wanted to. There was no law or regulation, and the State has not done anything to backfill those places. In fact, the operators did not have to backfill it. Now, if the State would take some of this bonding money which they have for backfilling and fill up those places that were allowed to be stripped during the war, when there was no law, I think a lot of your trouble would be over. I am going to vote "no" on this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Buchanan.

Mr. BUCHANAN. Mr. Speaker, the basic issue, I believe, in this bill is, can a strip mining industry of Pennsylvania compete with the strip mining industry in other States? If we make our laws too strict, it means that there will not be any stripping in Pennsylvania. The companies in Ohio and West Virginia will be able to get the contracts. Under this bill, Pennsylvania will require a $500 bond per affected acre. Ohio now requires $220 per affected acre. West Virginia requires $500 per acre. Now, that is not affected acre; that is per acre, the actual cut not including the soil. The requirements in this bill are more strict than those in West Virginia and Ohio.

Now the gentleman from Allegheny County said that a certain company in the southwestern section of Pennsylvania can backfill at 10 cents a ton. That is probably true in southwestern Pennsylvania, but that is not true in the regions from Clearfield to Butler Counties.

Have you men noticed the opponents of this legislation? Have you checked their counties? They come from the districts of Clearfield, Blair on the west, through Butler County. Why? In southwestern Pennsylvania, if you uncover or if you remove 40 feet of dirt from the coal, you will probably find 5 feet of coal under that dirt. In our counties you will probably find 24, 30, 36 inches of coal. Now that means that with probably half as much coal, you are going to have to pay for this backfilling. Now there is one other factor, which the gentleman from Allegheny County did not mention. In southwestern Pennsylvania you may be able to have 6, 8 or 10 cuts. In our section, you will have possibly 2, 3, or 4 cuts. The more cuts you have, the less it will cost per ton. We have to compete with West Virginia and Ohio companies. When a utility in Cleveland wants to buy coal, we submit bids, and the lowest bid will get the contract. Naturally, if the bid is for 500,000 tons, and a West Virginia company is able to underbid us by 5 cents a ton, it means that utility in Cleveland will save $25,000 and we lose the contract. I am standing here today pleading with you men to save jobs in Pennsylvania. We need more employment, not less. I ask you to vote against this bill.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

NOT VOTING—9

Johnson, A. W.,	Mihm,	Royer,	Trusilo,
Klein,	O'Donnell, J. P.,	Tompkins,	Willard,
McCormack,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1354, entitled:

An Act amending the "Municipal Borrowing Law" approved June 25, 1941 (P. L. 159), further regulating the time of holding special elections and for certifying desire ordinances to increase the debt of the municipality.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate one of the sponsors of the bill, Mr. Lamb from Allegheny.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LAMB. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BOWMAN. The gentleman from Allegheny did discuss this bill briefly with me, but I would like him to explain to the House the problem incident to the absentee ballot voting which was posed by the present law, Municipal Borrowing Law.

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, the present law regulating absentee ballots provides that the county election districts 25 days before the election shall begin sending out absentee ballots. The Municipal Borrowing Law provides that a municipality desiring to place a question on the ballot with respect to a borrowing problem, for example, that a certain municipality be permitted to borrow X-number of dollars, shall advertise their intent of placing this on the ballot within 25 days of the election involved. So you can see there is an inconsistency, that the absentee ballots have to be out, or they start putting them out, 25 days before the election. If the municipality can announce its intention of holding a special election within 25 days from the election, then this question cannot be placed on the absentee ballot. So it is the intent of this law to provide that any municipal election with respect to any special question to be voted on by the voters has to be announced within 50 days of the date of the election, thereby allowing the question to be placed on the absentee ballot.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman and would like to speak on the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order and will proceed.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, I will only call to the attention of the members of the House that the present law, the Municipal Borrowing Law, permits the question to be certified 30 days before and for special elections 25 days before, as has been explained by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb.

However, I would point out to the House that by moving the last day in which the local government can act back 55 days before the special election, you are to a certain degree restricting the local municipality in requiring them to act more promptly than many times they feel they can act. I would have hoped that the period for certification or change here would not be the 55-day period, but perhaps a 30-day period.

However, I will not ask that the bill be held over. I will just call that to the attention of the members that all municipal governments, if this bill passes, must present their question to the county within at least 55 days before an election. It is a little long, but I will not oppose the bill.

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

NOT VOTING—12

Bachman,	Horst,	Mihm,	Tomascik,
Boies,	Klein,	O'Donnell, J. P.,	Varnar,
Elvey,	McCormack,	Royer,	Willard,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1469, entitled:

An Act amending the "Building and Loan Code" approved May 5, 1933 (P. L. 457), further defining and limiting the rights powers duties and liabilities of such associations further specifying types of collateral for mortgage loans.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose this legislation.

I am going to preface my remarks somewhat. We had at one time in Altoona about 42 building and loan associations. They all prospered, or thought they were prospering, through the "Roaring 20's" until the boom was lowered in 1929, '30 and '31. People, especially the older members of the House, who remember those "Roaring 20's" and the bad years of 1929, '30 and '31, on up to '39, '40 and '41, will well remember the great wave of building and loan failures that occurred over this State.

We liquidated practically all the associations in Altoona, except possibly two or three that were real small and were not affected by big loans and by close risk loans, as many of the other associations were and which got them into trouble.

I was one of the liquidators who liquidated a group of six of those building and loan associations, and I can say with absolute certainty and authority that the losses that we took were on the big loans, the loans of $10,000, $12,000, and on up, even above $6,000, $5,000 or $6,000. The building and loan associations lost very little money on the smaller type loans, that is, market values of $3,000, $4,000, up to $5,000 and $6,000.

I believe that here again we are stepping into a realm that is a dire risk, a very grave risk, to the people who have their money invested in these associations. Many of them have their life savings invested therein. Many of them have invested in these associations to provide educational expenses for their children when their children grow up and become of age to go away to school.

Mr. Speaker, before speaking further, I would like to interrogate one of the sponsors of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LAMB. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman what is the purpose of this bill?

Mr. LAMB. Briefly, Mr. Speaker, the purpose is this:

As the gentleman may know, all of the Federal chartered building and loan associations in this State now have the same rights which House bill 1469 will give to the State chartered associations. That is the main purpose of the bill.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman if, in his opinion, he does not consider a loan wherein you are lending above what the present law requires, above 80 percent of the market value of the property, a greater risk loan than under 80 percent of the market value of the property?

Mr. LAMB. I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, I did not get the last part of that question, although I tried to hear it.

Mr. AUKER. I will repeat the question, Mr. Speaker. There is a good bit of commotion and, possibly, it is hard for the gentleman to hear. There is considerable conversation in the House and it makes it hard to hear.

The SPEAKER. It simply delays the proceedings when there is too much conversation.

The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman if, in his opinion, there is not a greater risk attached to a building and loan association loaning money on a property to an amount above 80 percent of the market value of the property, than on a loan that is made below 80 percent of the market value of the property?

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, in any loan, whether the amount involved is above or below 80 percent of the market value of the property, of course, there is a certain risk. So in answer to the gentleman's question as to whether or not there is a risk, I have to say there is a risk in any loan. I do not feel that there is any greater risk, however, on a loan in an amount in excess of 80 percent. I might point out to the gentleman that many, many such loans are being made throughout the State with the sole purpose, of course, of aiding the house-building industry and aiding those people who for one reason or another do not have sufficient money to come up with a substantial down payment, but who are good credit risks and over the period of time will pay this amount off.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman if it would not be possible under this bill, depending on what appraisal is put on the market value of the property, that in some instances, probably in many instances, there could not be loans made up to 100 percent of the market value of the property?

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, the bill does provide that the limitation on the amount of the loan shall be 80 percent of the stated purchase price. If the gentleman asks me whether or not it is not possible for someone to inflate or to lie about the purchase price, my answer to that would have to be, of course, that is possible. But in the event that something like that happened, I feel certain that such a real estate broker who would permit something like that to occur would not receive the services of any home financing agency throughout the State at some future time.

Mr. AUKER. I thank the gentleman. That is all.

I cannot agree with the gentleman's argument in support of the bill as stated on my examination. The fact that Federal savings and loan associations allow this kind of risk loans is no analogy that I can see that we in Pennsylvania should allow this sort of risk loan above 80 percent of the market value of the property.

Let us take the person who is going to buy a property, and they only have 10 percent, or under this bill possibly 5 percent of the value of the property, invested in it themselves. So they make the loan and they go along and make their payments for a time. Then they get into a lot of economic hard luck, and they have not lost anything except the bare 5 percent of the property. Otherwise, all they have been paying is rent. Now, if a person has 20 percent invested in a property under the present law, let us take a $10,000 property, he has $2,000 invested in that property. I am not thinking now so much of the people who are seeking to buy these properties, a lot of them on a shoestring; I am thinking about the people who have invested their hard-earned money in these associations and whom the law as it stands now in Pennsylvania is designed to protect, and whom I believe we should go on to protect. That is the main criteria, the investor should at least be protected. A man who is going to lose $2,000 in a property, if he has $2,000 invested in a property, is going to make every possible effort he can and in every way possible to hold onto that property, and a good association will help him.

Now, when it comes to lending up to 90 or 95 percent of the value of a property, as I say, I believe that is too much of a risk loan for a building and loan association in this State to participate in. As I said before, the mere fact that the Federal savings and loan associations are allowed to do so, and they are taking a bad risk, is no reason why we here in Pennsylvania should also assume that risk. It seems to me that the thing to do would be to persuade Congress to pass legislation to reduce those rates and protect the people in those Federal savings and loan associations.

Mr. Speaker, I want to read into the record, I had a man, a very good accountant, who does accounting work—while I am possibly somewhat reluctant to mention this at this particular time, he is a certified public accountant of statewide reputation—and he does accounting work for various associations. He says here that this bill, if enacted into law, and I quote:

"... would enable subsequent builders to get control of building and loan associations and use them as a verification for financing 100 percent of certain types of loans.

(2) The 10% variation (from 90% to 100%) on appraisals of property is a very slim margin and could result in many cases in financing 100% of the property.

"(3) I do not believe it necessary to compete in this type of financing which could cause the same difficulties that are now arising and causing building and loan associations to become bankrupt in Arizona and California."

That is the decided and very definite opinion of a man who really knows building and loan work and building and loan financing, and I certainly believe, in view of this, in view of this risk problem and in view of the fact that the building and loan laws in the State are designed primarily—I would like to repeat that, the building and loan laws in this State are designed primarily—to protect the investor, that this type of loan is not good for investors in building and loan associations.

I, therefore, ask all the members of this House to vote against it.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I, too, rise in opposition to this legislation. The reason for my opposition is this: During the last few years, in almost every successive session of this legislature, we have had legislation of this nature introduced which would increase the lending capacity of building and loan associations insofar as mortgage loans on real property are concerned. I can well remember last session, I believe, or the session before, when I stood up at this microphone and demonstrated to this House that if we passed legislation increasing the lending capacity—

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Berks rise?

Mr. GELFAND. I am not finished, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will please be seated.

Mr. GELFAND. As I was saying, Mr. Speaker, I can well remember last session and the session before when we discussed similar legislation that I stood at this microphone and predicted that if we did so we would only be confronted in the future with additional requests to permit additional lending capacity on the part of building and loan associations with respect to real estate loans. Now I see the prediction that I made has come to fruition, and the only excuse for this type of legislation is that the Federal Government permits Federal savings and loan associations to do so and, therefore, the building and loan associations of Pennsylvania must be in a position to compete successfully.

I do not believe that such an argument is a good one, because if the Federal Government is willing to permit Federal savings and loan associations to tread into areas which may be unsafe financially for them, I do not believe that this Commonwealth should permit the building and loan associations of Pennsylvania to do so.

Actually, what we do now by permitting this change would be to allow a building and loan association to tread in the area of more than 80 percent of the real value of real property in order to make a mortgage loan. We all know that in the event of a foreclosure it is a very, very rare instance that at a forced sale such value is recovered, and what would happen eventually is that the savings and loan associations would find themselves in distressed financial circumstances, buying back or taking back properties for less than the money they had actually loaned for same.

Since these institutions have always been considered of a conservative nature, they are institutions in which small savers save their money, I believe it is incumbent upon us to be careful of what we do in increasing the risk that these institutions can take. Permitting such an institution to lend more than 80 percent of the market value of real property moves into an area which I believe would endanger the savings of small people who invest and save in such institutions. As a consequence, I believe that in consideration of this legislation we should tread carefully, we should consider fully what we do because competition in financial areas only leads to dangerous financial investment.

If we permit continued competition in an area such as this, all we do is endanger savings of people who may be in a position not to protect themselves adequately.

In conclusion, I think that, as I said before, it is incumbent upon us, in order to protect the small savers of this Commonwealth, those who use building and loan associations, not to pass this type of legislation, but that we defeat it wholeheartedly and resoundingly so it will not rear its head again, at least in this session, because once we allow legislation like this to get by us, we will find at coming sessions that we only tread into more and more dangerous areas, we will be requested to be more liberal, and what we permit insofar as lending is concerned ultimately will result in our doing the very things we want to stop insofar as financing is concerned and so far as preventing a great real estate depression as we had one time before. I think we all ought to vote down this legislation.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb.

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, I just wish to point out for the House that the bill itself has the required safeguards written into it; I wish to also point out that it was approved by the Department of Banking.

I am sure that this is the type of legislation that is going to be necessary, if the State chartered building and loan associations are to continue in the State of Pennsylvania.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Adams.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate you. What is the procedure to get recognition here?

The SPEAKER. All that is necessary to obtain recognition is to rise in your place and, according to the rules, address the Chair.

It used to be that members rose and said, "Mr. Speaker," and the Chair recognized them. Now, the member rises and they do not say anything and the Chair does not know whether they want recognition or whether they are simply talking to a neighbor.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I was waiting until the gentleman was finished, to get recognition. Several times, on previous legislation, I moved my toggle switch which, I understand, is to light the light in front of the Chair, to get recognition, and I have been informed by the Chair that it got covered with papers frequently and I did not get the opportunity to speak.

The SPEAKER. If the gentleman was seeking recognition by the toggle switch and was not recognized by the Chair, the Chair apologizes to the gentleman.

He can do either one of the two things: if he fails in operating his toggle switch to get recognition, he can rise in his place and address the Chair loudly and forcefully.

Mr. ADAMS. From his seat?

The SPEAKER. From his seat. That is the rule that applies so far as the rules of this House are concerned. To get recognition a member rises in his seat and addresses the Chair. It is not generally observed, but it is, nevertheless, the rule by which this House is supposedly governed.

Mr. ADAMS. I have tried that a few times and failed.

The SPEAKER. I would like to have the gentleman catch me sometime when he addresses the Chair audibly and the Chair fails to recognize him. The gentleman has the floor and will now proceed.

Mr. ADAMS. I cannot hear you.

The SPEAKER. There is a way of terminating debate if the members want to resort to it. They can terminate it by calling for a roll call when a member has the floor.

Mr. ADAMS. I would like to speak on the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order and the Chair has recognized him.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, it has been stated here that there is opposition to the bill because of hazards to investors in the building and loan associations. I believe the fact has been overlooked that a large percentage, if not all of these building and loans and savings and loans, are insured with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation up to $10,000. At least in the city of Reading they are because I have had dealings with a number of them.

There certainly is a greater percentage of risk in investing in these organizations, but the dividend that is paid is also higher than it is in the banks. If the investors feel that the hazard is too great under this type of legislation, they have the prerogative of withdrawing their money and putting it in the bank at a lower rate of interest, and with, perhaps, a greater degree of security, at least in their minds.

We have heard a lot of talk about trying to help people, the poor people. As I understand this bill it is for the purpose of making it easier for the poor people to buy homes. Now we are either for the poor people or we are against them. I know it is very difficult for a lot of people to buy homes and I think there is nothing wrong in making it easier for people to buy homes so they can eventually own them and call them their own. There are certainly plenty of safeguards under which the building and loans and savings and loans operate that they can protect the money they have invested there. I feel this is a step in the right direction.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry to take up the time of the House so much, but when we consider that we are trying to protect the investments of some 3½ to 4 million people in this State, then I think there is some merit to airing this problem fully just as fully as we can possibly air it.

I am wondering why there is a law on the books that banks cannot lend above 60 percent of the market value of the property. And for whose protection is that and this present law on the books? This law was put on the books primarily because of our experience, and if we never learn by experience, we certainly are not going to learn. I do not know how hard we have to be hit over the head to really learn what we should know and to profit by what we should know. We went through the depression, yes, and, as I said, and it has never been disproved and it is a fact beyond argument, I believe, that this type of loan is the type of loan that caused building and loans to fail during the 30's, just this very type of loan. That is what I am concerned about. We know, of course, that they are insured. So are banks insured, and yet the banking law is still 60 percent of the market value. Why should the banks have greater protection than the building and loans, or people who have their loans in bank stocks or invested in banks? So far as the gentleman from Berks saying that they can withdraw their money from building and loans, that, Mr. Speaker, is probably true in theory. But we are not talking theories so much as we are practical talk and practical debate.

People who invest in building and loans have confidence in the directors that they as stockholders elect; they have confidence in their officers. Of course, they are not going to go around and ask whether or not they are making 80 percent loans, or 60 percent loans, or 50 percent loans. Building and loan business is just not conducted that way in practice. It is one thing to say such a thing in theory, but the fact is, in practice it does not work out that way.

So I say to you in all seriousness, let us not take a backward step in Pennsylvania. Let us profit by the experience we had in the depression years, and let us protect these people who have their money invested in these associations, so that these extra risk loans—and I call them extra risk loans because that is what they are in my estimation—cannot be made and the investors in these associations can be fully protected. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Adams, who, under the rules, is entitled to speak the second time.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to correct some incorrect statements that were made by the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

He made the statement, if I understood him—it was difficult to understand part of what he was saying because he seems to make his speech rather mushy—I am hoping that mine can be understood, in spite of these boxes sitting on the wall.

He made the statement, as I understood it, that the banks were limited to 60 percent mortgage financing. In my section of the State they are not. It is 66-2/3 percent, and, in some instances, some categories of banks are 75 percent, and as far as FHA financing is concerned, mortgaging is taking place on a like setup in the banks of 90 and 92 percent. Now that is a fact and it is accurate because I have been handling some of those deals in my business. That 60 percent is not correct and it is entirely misleading.

I think the bill is a step in the right direction.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

SENATE MESSAGES

The clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented extracts from the Journal of the Senate:

Amended House Bills returned for concurrence, Nos. 254, 255, 530, 728 and 1165.

CORRECTION

Mrs. S. A. ANDERSON submitted the following statement on House bill No. 430 to replace statement of April 17, 1961 (Legislative Journal page 1161) which was submitted in error:

Mr. Speaker, I rise to ask the membership of the House to support enthusiastically House bill No. 430. As a former school teacher and as a mother of children born and raised in this Commonwealth, and as a citizen of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, I intend to vote for this measure because, in my opinion, it broadens the educational opportunities for the finest natural resource we have in this Commonwealth—our young people.

The history of this country, Mr. Speaker, clearly shows that immediately after men had fled from the narrowing restrictions of Europe to the freedom of America they sought to guarantee the continuation of this freedom by establishing systems of public education. It is obvious, Mr. Speaker, at the beginning of the sixth decade of the twentieth century, that this country could not have grown to greatness and cannot continue to grow in greatness unless we utilize fully the educable ability of our young people.

I am proud, Mr. Speaker, of the high position the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania holds among the States of this Nation in its educational planning and in the success of the graduates of our schools; however, unfortunately, in several areas of education in our Commonwealth, highly destructive prejudices have crept in. These prejudices, Mr. Speaker, have acted in the past to prevent boys and girls of various races, colors and creeds from obtaining the education which is not only their right but which is our necessity. House bill No. 430 again states the proposition that all men, having been created equal, have an equal right to the educational facilities of this Commonwealth. This bill, Mr. Speaker, places no burden on those educational institutions which subscribe to this principle and it will, in time, I trust, eliminate from our educational system those practices which have held us back in our progress towards a truly free democracy.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. SULLIVAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn until Wednesday, June 21, 1961, at 11 a.m.

The motion was agreed to, and (at 6:00 p.m., e. s. t.) the House adjourned.

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21, 1961.

The Senate met at 10:30 a. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor John Morgan Davis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The following prayer was offered by the gentleman from Cuberland, Mr. WADE:

Let us pray.

O God, give us clean thoughts, clean words and clean hands. Help us to stand for the hard right against the easy wrong. Save us from habits that harm. Teach us to work as hard and play as fair in Thy sight alone as if all the world saw. Forgive us when we are unkind, and help us to forgive those who are unkind to us. Keep us ready to help others at some cost to ourselves. Send us more chances to do a little good every day, and to grow more like our Lord, Jesus Christ. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. WEINER and Mr. LANE, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

GUESTS OF SENATOR ALBERT R. PECHAN PRESENTED TO SENATE

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, yesterday, you will recall, I said that for the first time in thirteen years I had as guests a group of young girls—a Girl Scout Troop—and their chaperons. This was the first time that we had an organized group here from my town of Ford City in thirteen years.

This morning, when I came down from Caucus, I found this very lovely group of ladies and friends of mine. Some of them I have known since I have been a young boy. They consist of the Ladies Auxiliary of a Fire Department in Ford Cliff. You might wonder whether we are cliff dwellers or not, but I want to tell you that Ford Cliff is almost a part of Ford City since it joins Ford City.

I am very happy to present to you, Mr. President and my colleagues in the Senate, this very fine group of ladies. They left Ford City at 5:00 a.m. this morning. They are on their way to Hershey. I would like the Chair, not to go into the beautiful thing that you did for me yesterday, but just greet these ladies in your gracious manner.

The PRESIDENT. Will the ladies from Ford Cliff please rise?

We are indeed very happy to have you ladies with us. We realize that it did take an early rising to get you here so early this morning. However, we are glad to have you.

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, these guests are here under the leadership of Mrs. Teresa Rupert. If Mrs. Rupert will step forward, we can give her an extra bit of recognition.

The PRESIDENT. We do hope that you will have a wonderful time in Hershey, and we do hope that the rose gardens are in full bloom for you.

The PRESIDENT. Are there any earth shaking measures which will not wait while we consider the Calendar? Are there any objections to proceeding to the order of business of consideration of today's Calendar? There being no objection, we will now proceed to consideration of today's Calendar.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

SB 230—Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Mr. WEINER.

BILL POSTPONED

SB 247 (Pr. No. 258)—Read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, I find myself in a very unusual position. There is an old saying that you should never look a gift horse in the mouth. However, if you do not know what the gift is and perhaps do not even know whether it is a horse, it might be important to pause for a few minutes or maybe a few days.

Senate Bill No. 247, Printer's No. 258, has an unusual history. Being very charitable about the thing, I think there may be a misconception or a misunderstanding as to how my name got on this bill.

The bill was introduced without my name. It was added yesterday, I believe inadvertently, and I would like to have my name removed from the bill under all circumstances since it was not put there with my permission.

Mr. President, I have asked for this bill to go over, and it has gone over on Second Reading since May 24th, when it was reported out of committee.

Being a mere mortal, and being from Lebanon County, I could not quite understand what this bill was all about, and I thought by having it put over in its order, someone would be good and kind enough to explain the full situation to me. I do know that it is granting a piece of land in the borough of Cornwall, Lebanon County, to the State of Pennsylvania. I do know this is a gift to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, because I see that in the bill. It is a gift from the Bethlehem Minerals Company, which is a subsidiary of Bethlehem-Cuba Iron Mines Company. Perhaps it is not a subsidiary. They have so many corporations in Bethlehem Steel that perhaps they do get mixed up and do not know what each corporation is doing.

However, under any circumstances, Mr. President, I do not have the faintest idea of what the Bethlehem Minerals Company is conveying to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. No one from that company ever contacted me or any Member of the House of Representatives. Of course, being one of these mortal individuals, I may have a small bit of pique because of that situation. Then, of course, neither did the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission contact me.

The two sponsors of the bill are not from Lebanon County. Of course, we would not allow Democrats in Lebanon County and Lancaster County to represent the Seventeenth Senatorial District. However, I wonder, Mr. President, if someone would be good enough to allow themselves to be interrogated in order to explain to me a few facts concerning this bill.

I do not see Senator Stiefel, who is the main sponsor of the bill. I think of Senator Rooney as a great friend, and I am not going to put him on the spot because I am sure he does not understand anything about the bill. Perhaps the Majority Leader, when he finishes his telephone conversation, could explain a few things and allow himself to be interrogated.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Weiner, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WEINER. I will, Mr. President. I also want to assure the gentleman that I was paying attention to what he was saying and I want to add a few remarks as an addendum. I will allow myself to be interrogated.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, would the Majority Leader explain exactly what this land, which is being conveyed in this bill, will be used for?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, as I understand this matter, the gentleman is absolutely correct in all of his remarks about the corporation that is giving this land. They are turning it over because it has some historical value. As a matter of fact, I think we are getting hysterical at this point with all of the to-do being made about this bill.

I am sorry that the expert on this matter, Senator Stiefel, is not here to discuss it in detail with you. However, the Museum Commission does have some program in mind for this land. I would be very happy to get those plans and submit them to you, Senator.

If you would allow me, in answering your question, Senator, I would like to make a brief remark and point out that there was an error made here, and I want to apologize on behalf of my colleagues for the error that was made in not extending the Senatorial courtesy of asking you to join them on this bill. As a matter of fact, I believe I suggested it to you. I also said to you that if these gentlemen persisted in this, I would not support this measure, and that I would ask that it be dropped from the Calendar. On that basis, I think since this is in your District and this is the kind of rapport we have maintained in this Body, I, as part of the leadership, will see that it is continued to be maintained. If it is your request at this time that this bill go back to committee until we have had more time to go into it, I will accede to that request without any further ado.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, yes, I would desire that. However, I would like to further interrogate the gentleman. Also, I want the understanding that my name will be removed from the bill, under these circumstances.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I will be very happy to go along with him if the gentleman wants his name removed from the bill. However, instead of cluttering the record with this, I think it would be easier if we sent this bill back to committee and took care of those problems right then and there without going into a great to-do here.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, prior to having this bill go back to committee, would the gentleman allow himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. WEINER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, will the gentleman explain to me whether this bill will cost any money?

Mr. WEINER. I am sorry, Senator. Would you repeat the question?

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, would this bill entail the cost of any money to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania?

Mr. WEINER. It is my understanding, Senator, that it will not cost the Commonwealth a single penny. There is no appropriation attached to this and, for that reason, it was not even sent to the Appropriations Committee for their consideration.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Thank you, Senator.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Ehrgood, do you wish to move that the bill be recommitted?

Mr. EHRGOOD. No, Mr. President, I would like to make a few remarks first.

The PRESIDENT. More?

Mr. EHRGOOD. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I think the Majority Leader is in error as to whether this bill will cost the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania any money. It just so happens that the General State Authority Bill,—House Bill No. 1335—on page 16, has a little item in there for $70,110 for the construction of a museum building, orientation area and office. Of course, that is under the General State Authority, and I do not know whether you can construe that as not costing the taxpayers of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania any money or not, although in my humble opinion, it does cost money. The fact that perhaps it will be in twenty, thirty or forty-year bonds adds up to a great deal more than $70,000 over a long period of time.

Also, Mr. President, since the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will be taking over and having a museum, I am sure that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will have to maintain this building and, of course, it will cost money.

Therefore, Mr. President, I do not desire to make a motion for recommitment. If the Majority Leader wishes to do so, that is up to him. Otherwise, I am very happy to have the matter brought to a vote. Of course, under the circumstances and the tremendous lack of knowledge about what is entailed,—I do not even know exactly where the property is located in the borough of Cornwall—I must certainly ask everybody to vote "no" unless the bill is recommitted.

Mr. MULLEN. Mr. President, anyone who drives along Route 322 and rides through Cornwall cannot help but see this big open mine. It is a great big hole—the biggest I have ever seen. It looks like it was originally a strip mine. They dug so much and got so far down that it is really a sight to see. If anyone travels by there who has not seen it before, it is very likely that they will stop there and look down at this massive hole in the ground, the like of which I do not believe you will see anywhere in Pennsylvania.

I think this may have some historical value; I do not know. However, I certainly think those who are interested in this project should come here and explain to us the historical value of this place. If they do not, it may be that every strip miner in Pennsylvania might want the State to take over a mine because, while this is a big hole in the ground, they also have big holes over the ground.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, I really appreciate Senator Mullin's remarks because this points up completely the lack of knowledge that I am talking about as to this area I am sure they do not want to put a museum on this tremendous open pit mine, which is still being operated, incidentally. They have a lot of shafts at the bottom of this pit. I am hoping the Bethlehem Minerals Company is not deeding over a valuable ore mine. I would be hopeful that is not the situation. That, again, I appreciate, Senator Mullin, because it points up this lack of knowledge.

The PRESIDENT. Perhaps the museum is to be built on several levels.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, with Senator Stiefel not being here, I would just like to say a few words, but not in detailed explanation of what this bill would entail because I must confess that I am not prepared, as I am sure Senator Stiefel would be.

However, I want to say that this bill, as I understand it, originated from the Historical and Museum Commission. There are many sites in Pennsylvania which have historic importance. Not all of the history of Pennsylvania was made in the courthouses and Independence Hall. A lot of the very important history of Pennsylvania was made by the men and women who built up our industry.

In York County, for example, we have a historical site which is preserved at the present time, the Codorus Furnace, and which from the time of colonial days—and it played an important part in the Revolutionary War—was a pioneer in the manufacture of iron. It seems to me that the sites which attest to the greatness of industry and its development in Pennsylvania are just as important of preservation and commemoration as the site of a courthouse or some place where perhaps our political history has been stressed more than we have stressed the progress of industry.

I would say that the people of Lebanon County might be very happy to have within their boundaries a historical institution of this sort, which would commemorate a contribution made by that county to the industrial development of this great Commonwealth.

I suggest, as a practical measure, that if more information is desired, we should wait until the person who is the custodian of that information—namely, Senator Stiefel—is present.

Therefore, I would ask, Mr. President, if it is agreeable to the gentleman from Lebanon, that the bill go over in its order. As I understand it, that is what he requested, and if he is satisfied with that, I would ask that that be done.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, I did not ask that the bill go over in its order. Unfortunately, next week I have to be at the Bar Association Meeting and cannot be here. Therefore, I would be hopeful that either the Majority Leader takes his course of action or that it be brought up for a vote today, since it is here on the Calendar and has been called up.

I do have some more remarks, but not on that subject.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, I cannot, of course, speak for Senator Stiefel, but I believe I would be correct in saying that Senator Stiefel would not wish to bring this legislation to a vote if the Senator from Lebanon were absent. Therefore, if the gentleman would permit the bill to go over in its order, I feel certain that it would be intact at the time of his return. Then the information could be given, and we would consider it.

I would formally ask, Mr. President, that the bill go over in its order, and if the gentleman wishes to object, of course, that is his privilege.

The PRESIDENT. Is there an objection to the bill going over in its order?

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, of course, I would not object to anything like that. However, I would like to point out that the bill has been on the Calendar for a long time, and the opportunity has been afforded the Senator from Philadelphia, since May 24th, to bring forth that information to the Members of this Senate, which he has not done.

I would also like to point out that no one in Lebanon County—and that includes myself—knows anything about this bill. Nothing has appeared in the newspapers about it. There have been no letters from any historical societies or anyone else concerning this bill. It comes out of the blue. This is a case of people from the central State Government going ahead and telling the local people what they have to do.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, may we be at ease a few moments?

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I request that Senate Bill No. 247, Printer's No. 258, be placed on the Final Passage Postponed Calendar.

The PRESIDENT. There being no objection, the bill will be placed on the Final Passage Postponed Calendar.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. VAN SANT. Mr. President, it has been long my contention that our so-called reciprocity agreement with the State of New Jersey has created a terrible hardship on the Pennsylvania motorist, largely due to the fact that the State of New Jersey establishes radar arrest-fining mills on the thoroughfares leading from Pennsylvania to the shore resorts and to the city of New York. This so-called reciprocity agreement has been in effect for several months now, while many phases of the so-called reciprocity agreement have been working out advantageously to both States, there are still certain phases of that agreement which I object to very strenuously.

It has been my contention that the radar arrests in New Jersey are causing the loss of licenses here in Pennsylvania unjustly. At a recent meeting with Mr. Shipley, our Director of Highway Safety; Senator Rooney, the Chairman of the Senate Highways Committee; and Mr. John Simonetta, an enforcement officer in the Bureau of Highway Safety, Colonel Rucker, Commissioner of the New Jersey State Police, assured me, as did Ned J. Parsekian, Head of the Department of Highway Safety, there was no discrimination against Pennsylvania motorists. They also said there was no intent on the part of the New Jersey State Police to arrest, but rather to be there to create safety.

I have in my possession today, a letter which would give an opposite thought to the statements of Mr. Parsekian and the State Police Commissioner of New Jersey. The following letter is from the Municipal Court of Union Township, in Clinton, New Jersey. It is addressed to the Union Township Committee and is written by the Magistrate, Bruce D. Herrigel. The letter reads as follows:

"Gentlemen:

"At the last meeting of the Township Committee, I requested that an ordinance be passed authorizing a salary of $1,200.00 a year for a municipal court clerk for this township, for the reason that the volume of the court work warranted such a salary. Pursuant to that request, you passed on first reading an ordinance authorizing the requested salary.

"The records for the month of May are nearly complete and indicate that costs in the amount of $395.00 have been collected by the Municipal Court. The State Police have arranged to set up radar on our highways on June 18 and June 25, and the court date for those operations will be June 26. The State Police have completed their schedule through the month of July, and have arranged to set up radar on our highways on July 2, 7, 17 and 24. We have arranged for a radar night for that month on July 31.

"This radar schedule has been worked out between this court and the State Police on the assumption that we will have the personnel to administer the program. The State Police are anxious to operate the radar in Union Township in a manner similar to the July schedule.

"I therefore urge upon you the passage of this ordinance, in order to enable us to carry out the program planned."

This letter is signed by Bruce D. Herrigel, Magistrate of Municipal Court of Union Township.

Mr. President, this letter certainly implies that they plan to do a lot of business on Route 22, in Union Township, New Jersey, on the aforementioned dates, because they are asking for an increase in salary for the clerk and they are assuming there will be many arrests made. It is my belief that this is not being set up in order to create highway safety but it is being set up as a fining mill, which I have contended New Jersey runs discriminately against Pennsylvania motorists, particularly those who live in the eastern part of the Commonwealth.

I have another letter from J. Robert Proctor, Executive Director of the York-Jersey Committee, dedicated to serving the people's right. This is a road group. I would like to quote the following from that letter:

"Please note paragraph (2), lines (4) and (7) of the attached letter: 'radar on our highways.' There are no other highways in Union Township except State Route #22 where the State Police could set up a radar trap for unwary out-of-area, out-of-State motorists, unless they desired to trap their own township taxpayers on some few third class rural roads which would be very unlikely in view of the anticipatory statement."

Mr. President, I am taking the floor of the Senate primarily to call to the attention of the motorists those dates when the radar will be operating, July 2, 7, 17 and 24, and also on June 25. The June 18 date is passed and, of course, I imagine they are very busy now assembling the court for June 26 and also on the night of July 31.

Gentlemen, I do not know how many of you are familiar with it, but if you are going sixty-one miles an hour on a New Jersey road,—many of which are far superior to some of our highways in Pennsylvania which have a sixty-mile speed limit—you lose your license because you are going eleven miles over the speed limit. The Bureau of Highway Safety has many, many cases on the docket wherein they are revoking licenses. It is my contention that sixty-one miles an hour is going over our speed limit by only one mile per hour. Yet, in the State of New Jersey, they arrest you when you go over fifty miles an hour.

Therefore, Mr. President, it is my contention and my belief that we should not take away Pennsylvania drivers' licenses when we have such existing things as this radar trap, which is anticipated in Union Township, operating with wholesale arrests and stopping as many as eight, ten and twelve Pennsylvanians at one time and arresting them. It is my belief that we should not recognize this phase of our agreement with the State of New Jersey until such time as we have equal speed limits or until such time when they agree to give us a tolerance of the ten mile difference between Pennsylvania and New Jersey. This type of thing has been going on for years and I sincerely hope that we, in the Commonwealth, will see fit to terminate this portion of our agreement. Pennsylvania motorists and truck drivers are losing their livelihood daily because of these terrible speed traps in our neighboring State.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Van Sant.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Van Sant, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. VAN SANT. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. Senator Van Sant, I believe you made a statement that the Magistrate stated they had collected $395 in costs for the month of May. Is that correct?

Mr. VAN SANT. That is correct, sir.

Mr. LANE. Do you know what the cost is on an individual case in the State of New Jersey?

Mr. VAN SANT. I believe it is very similar to what it is here in Pennsylvania. On a speeding arrest, it amounts to about five dollars.

Mr. LANE. You stated that this Magistrate requested an allocation of $1,200. Is that on a monthly basis?

Mr. VAN SANT. That is $1,200 for a year for the Municipal Court Clerk.

Mr. LANE. That is an additional clerk. In other words, this municipal clerk is going to receive a salary of $100 per month. Is that correct?

Mr. VAN SANT. That is correct.

Mr. LANE. Have you supplied the Bureau of Highway Safety with a copy of the letter which you read into the record today?

Mr. VAN SANT. As of now, I have not. However, it is my intention to do so. I just received this letter this morning.

Mr. LANE. Senator Van Sant, I would like very much to know the outcome of this. I, too, am not in favor of any radar speed traps. I do not feel the motorists of Pennsylvania should be penalized by the operation of speed traps in any surrounding State. I will be very happy to take this matter up with the Bureau of Highway Safety at your convenience.

Mr. VAN SANT. Thank you.

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. A. M. LEE asked unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Title, page 2, line 1, by inserting after "elections" changing residence requirements for watchers.

Amend Bill, page 2, by inserting between the enacting clause and line 1:

Section 1. Subsection (b) of section 417, act of June 3, 1937 (P. L. 1333), known as the "Pennsylvania Election Code," is amended to read:

Section 417. Appointment of Watchers.—

(b) All watchers so appointed must be qualified registered electors of the [district] municipality or township in which they are authorized to act. Only one watcher for each candidate at primaries, or for each party or political body at general, municipal or special elections, shall be allowed to remain in the polling place at any one time prior to the close of the polls, and all watchers in the room shall remain outside the enclosed space. After the close of the polls and while the ballots are being counted or voting machines canvassed, all the watchers shall be permitted to be in the polling place outside the enclosed space. Each watcher shall be provided with a certificate from the county board of elections, stating his name and the name of the candidate, party or political body he represents. Watchers shall be required to show their certificates when requested to do so. Watchers allowed in the polling place under the provisions of this act, shall be permitted to keep a list of voters and shall be entitled to challenge any person making application to vote and to require proof of his qualifications as provided by this act.

Amend Sec. 1, page 2, lines 1 and 2, by striking out "act of June 3 1937 (P L 1333) known as the "Pennsylvania Election Code" and inserting: of the act

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Mr. Speaker, these amendments would change section 417 of the Election Code. That section presently requires that watchers in connection with elections must be residents of the district, that is, the voting precinct, in which they are to serve. These amendments would change that restrictive residence requirement and merely require that they be residents of the municipality or the township in which they desire to act as watchers. That is the substance of these amendments.

An awful lot has been written about the subject of watchers. I have before me the report by the special Senate investigating committee of the last session which investigated the allegation of vote frauds in the city of Philadelphia. I have the report to Attorney General Anne X. Alpern by Victor Wright, who is chief of the investigations division of the justice department. I also have a memorandum by the Citizens' Charter Committee which was furnished to the special committee. I also have the material from the ADA in the city of Philadelphia, and all these agencies are in agreement that the restrictive requirements, as far as the residence of watchers, is a contributing factor as far as election frauds are concerned. So I think the amendments are easily understood. They do not change, in any way, the present method of the appointment of watchers; they only make eligible people in the municipality or township, whereas they are now restricted to the division or the district in which they are to act.

I think if anyone is interested in clean elections, they should take the advice of all these rather imposing groups and adopt these amendments.

Mr. Speaker, I move the adoption of these amendments.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg.

Mr. EILBERG. I rise to oppose these amendments and call to the attention of the House that this is not merely a matter which concerns Philadelphia but is statewide in its operations.

There are many good reasons why the amendments are not desirable. I would suggest that persons who become watchers in districts other than where they reside might themselves be deprived of their opportunity to vote.

Mr. Speaker, one of the most compelling reasons against the amendments is due to the very nature of the watcher. A watcher presently must live in the district where he is a watcher. He knows or is in a position to know and ought to know all the residents in that particular election district, and he can do an effective job. If you bring someone in from outside that election district, I ask you how the watcher can do an effective job because the chances are he does not know anyone in that particular district in which he is a watcher.

Mr. Speaker, during the recent special election in Philadelphia there were some comments indicating there was a mail check and that a lot of the mail to registered voters was returned, presumably indicating that persons did not live at the addresses indicated.

Mr. Speaker, it is a matter of record and can easily be determined that there is an extraordinary substitute ratio in the post office. Many of these people simply do not do their jobs. As a result mail is not delivered.

Now let us visualize the situation as being someone perhaps from one of the low economic classes coming to the polls and being challenged. Let us take Philadelphia.

He is challenged because someone says he does not live where he knows that he lives. He has been reading a lot of things in the newspapers and he is not going to sign anything. He is not going to sign any challenge affidavit. And I say, Mr. Speaker, that many people in these low economic classes will be intimidated and will not vote; they will be denied their right to vote.

Mr. Speaker, I ask you further, someone, a watcher, presumably a watcher with a certificate, comes to an election district, no one knows him there, the election bureau does not know him, how do we know that this person has been duly authorized by the county board of elections to be a watcher? We think there would be ample opportunity for fraud to bring people in from the outside.

One thing that also concerns us is this, just what kind of people will these watchers from outside be? Would they be fingerprint detectives, would they be anti-labor, would they be hired thugs, would they be ghost squads? The idea of bringing people in from the outside is absolutely reprehensible because we do not know what kind of lawless element or motivation might be involved.

I say further, Mr. Speaker, that the introduction of these amendments by my colleague from Philadelphia comes to me as somewhat of a surprise because I have in my hand a clipping from the Sunday Bulletin of June 4, which indicates that the minority floor leader would introduce these amendments. Now I am a bit confused. I do not know whether it is the Republican State Committee that is offering these, or the Republican Alliance, or the regular Republican organization of Philadelphia.

Mr. Speaker, it is important that we examine the motives involved. I say the amendments are no good and should be voted down.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I can set the gentleman's mind at ease as to who is offering these amendments. I am. It is my right as a member of the House to offer them and I am offering them. And that is all there is to it. There are no motives of any kind behind these except the implementation of recommendations by recognized citizen agencies, and these amendments will go a long way toward bringing about clean, honest elections, which is something that we are all interested in.

I would like to say in reply to some of the things that the gentleman from Philadelphia said that, first, they are certainly statewide amendments, statewide in effect, because the Constitution of Pennsylvania requires that the laws regulating the conduct of elections must be uniform throughout the Commonwealth. The second thing is, he makes a lot of to-do about watchers coming from outside the election district and being in the polls and not knowing the people. Well, the difficulty that we have in these areas is that within the division it is impossible to get someone who is reliable to act as a watcher. Now certainly the best thing in the world would be to have a watcher who knows who the people are, but if we cannot have that, we want somebody in the polling place who knows the election code and can recognize illegal assistance and other violations of the election code, because he does not have to know the actors to know when the election code is being violated. And that is the purpose for having these people in the polling place during election.

Now he raises the other question about how are we going to know whether they are authorized to act. Well, in Philadelphia, every watcher is issued a certificate under the seal of the county commissioners, so that if any of these people are appointed who come from outside the election district, they should be armed with that certificate. And I can say that if people come into my polling place and they do not have the certificate, I ask them to leave. And that is the situation that would obtain if these amendments are adopted.

Mr. Speaker, it is a very simple issue. You are either interested in clean, honest elections or you are not. If you are, you will vote for these amendments. And I ask for a roll call on the amendments.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the majority leader. Does he desire to yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand?

Mr. McCANN. I will be most pleased to yield, Mr. Speaker, to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I rise to address myself to the amendments.

It pains me greatly that we get into partisan recriminations when we talk about something which should be in all events what might be considered good government legislation. I say it pains me greatly because Mr. Lee equates the amendment that he gives with good, clean, fair elections and that any opposition to them must be in favor of unclear, unfair, unjust elections.

The fact of the matter is this, the purpose of a watcher is to watch at the polling place to see that people who are not authorized to vote do not vote. It certainly appears to me that the person who is best qualified to do that is someone from the community who would recognize the people who live in the community and therefore would be in a position to say that this individual either does or does not live here and, therefore, he is either qualified or unqualified to vote. That would appear to me to be the best possible way for the system of watchers to work.

Mr. Lee says, I agree that this is a good system and this is the system we should have. However, because of the fact that in Philadelphia it is impossible in certain areas to obtain watchers in a given division or a given community, we have to bring outlanders, people from outside the division, or outside the community, into the community to do a job of watching.

My statement in response to him is this: If you feel there is such a thing to be afraid of or if you feel that in a given community it is impossible to get a watcher, perhaps the fault lies in the inadequate spade work you do in order to obtain a watcher from that given community.

It also occurs to me, what evidence do we have that if we brought someone from outside the community, or what evidence do we have that we could get someone from outside the community, and that this particular individual would come into this given division where there is a lack of watchers and do a fair, honest job of watching?

What evidence do we have that this particular individual would not featherbed—no, I will not say feather-bed—but show a lack of interest in doing what he is supposed to do?

I object strenuously to the position taken that unless you agree with me, then you have to be dishonest, because I do not think that is true. I happen to believe that watchers should come from the community in which they live and that if you bring a man from outside the community the possibility of unfairness or dishonesty is greater. Just because somebody says to me that somebody has made a purported investigation and says that he is in favor of good, clean, fair elections, and says that it should be done this way and, therefore, it is so, I do not take that as rote. I think this body is the body to make that decision. The time-honored and traditional reason why we want watchers to come from the community where they are watching is because they are acquainted with that community and because they know the people in that community who are entitled to vote. For that reason I think the amendments should be voted down.

The SPEAKER. The majority leader has the floor.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dougherty.

The SPEAKER. The majority leader yields to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dougherty. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dougherty.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate Mr. Lee on the amendment.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. What I would like to know of the gentleman is, if he were assigned as a watcher in, say, my ward in South Philadelphia and it would take him an hour to get there, how would he exercise his right of franchise and be able to cast his own vote?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I would say, Mr. Speaker, the solution to that is very simple, because in a primary election, of course, each candidate is entitled to watchers, so there can be a number of watchers at a polling place. In the general election, each political party is assigned two watchers, so if there are two watchers at a polling place, one of them can leave for a sufficient length of time to cast his vote. That is no problem at all.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. The gentleman admits, then, that he would not be performing his duty as a watcher to be there before the polls open and be there until the polls close?

Mr. A. M. LEE. Not at all, Mr. Speaker, because both watchers can be there before the polls open and can be there for an hour or so after they open, and then during the course of the day one of them can leave for whatever period of time is necessary for him to vote, and the other one can do the same thing when the person returns. It is very simple.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the amendments, not coming from the metropolitan area of Philadelphia.

As the law now provides, a watcher comes from the precinct in the township or the borough or the city of the respective election district. There is no question that each of them has the proper certificate, must have it, issued by the election board of the respective county.

We at least believe, and will until someone shows us any different, that we have clean, honest elections in all the counties, and you do in your county. The person who serves as a watcher, at least in our counties, in our precincts, is a registered voter, male or female, who lives in that precinct, and in the rural areas those people can call 95 percent of the people by name and know where they live.

If you took any person from another precinct within the same township or borough or another ward in a city and asked him to be the watcher over in the other precinct, he would serve probably as useless a watcher as you could place in the polling house, because a watcher serves a true purpose in a primary. If you, as a candidate, have that watcher, he is serving you in seeing that the people who vote there are properly authorized and registered to vote in that precinct, and they know this. In a general election it is your party or my party who has the watchers there.

I oppose this amendment on those very grounds, because the present election law serves us best and has been proven to serve well in this field for quite a few years. For that reason I oppose these amendments.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I also rise to oppose these amendments. I would like to say initially that I certainly agree with my colleague from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand, and I want to echo the sentiments that he has expressed. I resent, not only the inference, but the clear statement as made by the gentleman from Philadelphia to the effect that if you do not believe in the principle espoused in the amendments he is offering then you are, in fact, not a believer in good government. Nothing could be further from the truth. We on this side of the aisle from Philadelphia are just as much concerned about the integrity of our voting processes as is the gentleman from Philadelphia.

I will not dignify that assertion any further by seeking to defend it any more. Let it rest on that.

The second point I want to make is this:

In the city of Philadelphia the average political division has approximately 900 to 1,000 voters in it. There has been no demonstrable evidence indicating that there is a need for this type of amendment. Does the gentleman mean to indicate to me that out of 900 registered voters in any political precinct in the city of Philadelphia he cannot find two good Republicans with integrity who will do the job, who will understand the election laws of the State of Pennsylvania? Such a conclusion is preposterous.

If the gentleman is trying to help the Republican Party, I suggest that he does not use this vehicle, but, in fact, that he help his party give to the people of Philadelphia and to the State a platform, a project, a mark, that they can find attractive which will solicit their favorable vote at election time. This is not the way to do it.

Incidentally, I might say that I am all for the Republican Party doing the sort of thing that will attract voters to their party because I believe firmly in a two-party system. It makes for good government. I say that the way to get your voters, the way to keep honest elections and to assure good government is to have a strong two-party system and not by the type of amendment which is being offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia today.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Sherman, and will give the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee, the opportunity to close the debate, I believe.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, some of us, perhaps, may seem to be getting a little old, but not old in the sense of common sense or decency. We who are getting a little old in years still remember the days of the 1920's and the early 1930's. There was a reason to maintain the law that we have presently existing on the statute books.

In those days in the city of Philadelphia the organization, whether Republican or Democrat—and I am not talking as a Democrat or Republican, because back in early 1932 I was registered Republican—but in those days we had men coming from all over the State, from all over the city, and attempts being made from one section of the city to the other to bring gangsters and those who lawfully had no right in the particular district, unknown to the people of the particular district, to come with whatever weapons they had to try to maintain what they said was their right to vote the way they wanted. That is the thing that we should avoid in this State.

Mr. Speaker, furthermore, I defy Mr. Lee or any member of the House to say that we do not have a remedy existing on the statute books today, whether it is the law of 1931 or 1933, that we exercised during those sad days of gangsterism among the Republican organization. That is why, when we saw there was anything wrong, or knew of anything wrong, or thought there would be anything wrong, we had a right to petition the court and ask for overseers, a law that we have on the statute books today, and the courts must under that law appoint one overseer of each party to maintain order, and that overseer's only responsibility would be to the courts. That law is presently existing on the statute books. Therefore, I request, to avoid gangsterism in any city or section, to maintain order and to observe the laws we have existing on the statute books today, that the members override these amendments.

The SPEAKER. The Chair believes the sponsor of the amendments should have the privilege of closing the debate, unless there is some other member who desires recognition.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I did not want to speak on this amendment, but since the gentleman from Philadelphia has a habit of irritating a lot of Democrats, I do not want to be precluded from answering him in case he irritates me in his closing speech. Therefore, I want to answer him in case he does.

The SPEAKER. Is the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, claiming the privilege of closing the debate?

Mr. McCORMACK. Just a conditional privilege, which I might not ask the Speaker to indulge. I do not intend to debate the bill, but Mr. Lee might say something that I would feel to be offensive and I would like the privilege of answering him.

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not believe that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee, will make such personal allusions as to cause any excitement. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee, in the hope that he is closing the debate.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Just briefly in reply, Mr. Speaker.

In the first place, on the question of overseers, that is obviously a cumbersome and expensive method when it can be done through the media of watchers in all the polling places who are reliable and who understand the election code and can do their job.

Let me say that in all the major cities in the country the only other city besides the city of Philadelphia that requires watchers to be residents of the voting district is the city of Newark. All the others have much broader requirements as far as watchers are concerned.

Just in conclusion, as far as the gentleman from Greene is concerned and the other gentlemen who have spoken, they bear down on the question of the watcher recognizing the voters when they come to the polls and, Mr. Speaker, there is a lot, lot more to a watcher's responsibility than merely challenging people on the basis of identity.

As I indicated before, it would be fine if we could get people who are familiar with the voters and could do all the other things, but, because we are unable to get people in the division who know the voters, we have to take what is second best in those areas and that is someone who is familiar with the election code and can blow the whistle on illegal assistance and the other types of violations of the election code.

All of the non-partisan and objective agencies that have considered this matter have recommended the substance of my amendments and those agencies include the justice department of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

So again, Mr. Speaker, I move the adoption of these amendments and ask for a roll call.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

NOT VOTING—4

Mihm,	Odorsio,	Walsh,	Willard,
-------	----------	--------	----------

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to state briefly that the defeat of my amendments does not affect my position on the bill itself. I personally see no objection to it and intend to vote for it. I just did not want the impression to be created that because the amendments were not accepted I was against the bill itself.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Lippincott.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate one of the sponsors of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Which one?

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Mr. Petrosky, if he will consent to be interrogated.

Mr. PETROSKY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman state why the order of appointing these officials should not be made when the final order is entered making the change as the present law provides? In other words, what is the reason for this bill? It seems to me you get into two hearings now when it could easily be accomplished as it is now in one hearing.

Mr. PETROSKY. I would suggest to the gentleman that I do not know why they would have to be in a hurry to do it at this time. I think it would be proper that in this division the election board officials, whom you have recognized, are appointed from the majority party in the area and the minority party, and there would be a sufficient time for the county chairman of each respective party to get in touch with their local people, their local committeemen and committeewomen, and ascertain as to whom would be given sufficient time to ascertain who would be the best to represent the election board in that particular locale. I think this is a reasonable request.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I oppose this bill because it seems to me completely unnecessary to have a second hearing and a second order appointing the officials. The present law has been working very well and it seems to me we should retain it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I do not think the position of the gentleman, a good friend of mine from Delaware, Mr. Lippincott, is very strong inasmuch as the appointing order is a matter of procedure alone in the courts. It is not that tremendous a job. We have this occurring solely prior to elections upon the resignations of various board members or upon their moving from one district to the next. It is strictly a procedural matter and I feel that this area that we request a short, reasonable time to bring about what I answered in the interrogation by the gentleman is a valid reason, and I would request the membership of the House to support the bill that is before us.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, from the point of view of Philadelphia, we have had and are having in certain parts of our city a population explosion. As a result, it is necessary from time to time to go before the court to ask for the division or creation of new election districts.

Now we have no way of knowing prior to the hearings, whether or not the new election division of the district will be created. Because of the uncertainty, it is extremely difficult to get people to say in advance that they would be willing to serve as election board officials. As a result, what happens as a matter of practice is what we are proposing as I read the bill. The court, after it decides that the new district shall be created, then makes it possible for the political parties to go out and obtain people who are willing to serve as election board officials.

Now it seems to me this is a natural, orderly process. As for the objection of my colleague from Delaware, Mr. Lippincott, there is certainly no intent nor does it appear in the bill, to my way of reading, that there is any second hearing required at all.

It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that this is a good bill and we should vote for it.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

STATEMENT BY SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. Some members of the House have criticized because today we have an over insistence on decorum and attention. Why do we do that? Sooner or later, every member of this House will want to address the House and be entitled to address the House. And if we create the condition of attention and decorum, that member, however obscure he may have been, will be accorded a hearing. And if we get into the habit of not having decorum, only the leaders of the House and the more forceful members will be listened to.

The Chair would like the cooperation of the House in creating a tradition of decorum that will insure every member a hearing as, if, and when he may desire one.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1510, entitled:

An Act amending "The Insurance Company Law of 1921" approved May 17, 1921 (P. L. 682), requiring certain domestic mutual insurance companies to accumulate unearned premium reserves within a prescribed period.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

NOT VOTING—12

Blair, Cianfrani, George,	Lamb, Mihm, Monroe,	Odorisio, Reibman, Rudisill,	Willard, Yetter, Zimmerman,
---------------------------------	---------------------------	------------------------------------	-----------------------------------

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1515, entitled:

An Act amending "The First Class City Permanent Registration Act" approved March 30, 1937 (P. L. 115), providing that persons otherwise qualified to vote may vote if their names appear either on the street list posted in the district or on the list accompanying the district register.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Mr. Speaker, House bill 1515 is an amendment to the first class city permanent registration act, and the net effect of this legislation would be to permit someone to vote on election day even though his card was not in the district register as long as his name was on the street list at the polling place.

Now I would only say, briefly, in opposition to the bill, Mr. Speaker, that the inaccuracies in our street lists in the city of Philadelphia run in the neighborhood of 10 to 15 percent. That is, there are that many people on the street lists throughout the city who are no longer residents of the division or who have died or for some reason have not been removed.

I would only say that I do not think this is the type of legislation we should enact. It appears to me to be clearly a blueprint for fraud in the election process, and I therefore ask the members to vote against this legislation.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, I am sure the members of the House will be interested in knowing that our Democratic city solicitor in Philadelphia recognized the law as it is and that created the problem as a result of which House bill 1515 was introduced.

The law does say that if your name is not in the binder, you may vote only if your name is on the street list and the supplemental list and if you sign an affidavit.

Now for many years in Philadelphia both parties have been permitting people to vote whose names appear either on the street list or on the supplemental list, providing, of course, they sign the challenge affidavit.

Now our city solicitor discovered that the law required both the name on the street list and on the supplemental list and suggested that it would be a good idea, in order to insure honest elections, to introduce this bill so we could make the existing practice lawful.

I might say, Mr. Speaker, that where controversies have arisen the courts in Philadelphia, Republican and Democratic judges alike, have always permitted individuals to vote when their names appeared on the street list alone.

Now my friend from Philadelphia has indicated that inaccuracies range from 10 to 15 percent. I think his figures are exaggerated. I know that the Democratic Party, at least, is constantly engaged in striking off names of people who are deceased, who have moved, and the number of people we turn in are far, far in excess of what the opposition party turns in. We are constantly at work cleaning up the street lists so we are helping to insure that only people who actually are entitled to vote may vote.

I say, Mr. Speaker, that if someone were to come to the polls and, through a possible error on the part of the county board of election, the affidavit were not in the binder, that is, the card indicating that the voter could vote, if that person's name were on a street list, he and many others like him would be deprived of the opportunity to vote. I understand, Mr. Speaker, that there are many, many cases in every election where people would be honestly deprived of the right to vote because an error had been made as far as the card in the binder, and it seems to be very unfair to deny them the proper right to vote and we should support this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. M. H. Goldstein.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg, consent to be interrogated?

Mr. EILBERG. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, is it not the law in Philadelphia that if you wish to vote you must sign your name to a card and the board can compare your signature with the card?

Mr. EILBERG. That is right.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Now, under this bill, if the man's name is not on the registered list, there would be no card. Is that correct?

Mr. EILBERG. No, that is incorrect. Every voter who comes to the polls at the primary or general election must sign a voter's certificate, and it is the duty of the election board to compare every single signature with the signature that appears in the binder.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Well, this bill, Mr. Speaker, provides that your name is either on the street list or district register. Now, your card is in the district register, is it not?

Mr. EILBERG. Yes.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Well, under this bill, if your name is not in the district register and your name is on the street list, you are qualified to vote. Is that correct? Is that what you do in Philadelphia today, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. EILBERG. I did not hear the gentleman's question.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Is it the practice in Philadelphia today, which you want now made legal by this bill, that if your name is either on the street list or on the district register, you can vote?

Mr. EILBERG. That is not quite correct.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. What is correct, then?

Mr. EILBERG. The gentleman does not quite understand what has been said and I will try to explain. The registration commission provides a binder to every single voting place in the city. This contains the name of every registered voter, or should contain the name of every registered voter. In addition, there are street lists that are provided by the registration commission to the voting districts throughout the city. Occasionally someone may register late, and his name or card may not appear in the binder, and so the registration commission provides a supplemental list which accompanies the binder. The law presently says that if your name is in the binder, your name need not be on the street list, need not be on the supplemental list. The point of controversy here is that the law presently says if your name is not in the binder, it must be both on the street list and the supplemental list which I have just described. Now, as I said, there are many, many cases in Philadelphia where people have voted with their name being on the street list alone or where an objection has been made and in such cases the court has sustained the right of an individual to vote.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Now, Mr. Speaker, that is all, Mr. Eilberg. The answers of Mr. Eilberg do not satisfy me because my recollection of the law is that the name of the voter is set forth in the district register and there his signature can be compared. Now, in Philadelphia they want to have the choice that even if you are a non-registered or otherwise, if your name is not in the district register, you can take an informal street list and say you have the right to vote.

That will open the door to fraud, and we say that bill is unsound and against the interests of the people of Philadelphia as a whole.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. A. M. Lee, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FINEMAN. If I recollect correctly, you stated that this bill is, in effect, a blueprint for fraud, is that correct?

Mr. A. M. LEE. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FINEMAN. Now a blueprint as I understand same, is a plan or drawing or sketch. Is that correct?

Mr. A. M. LEE. Yes, Mr. Speaker, that is correct, as I understand the definition of the word.

Mr. FINEMAN. Do I therefore gather from your remarks that the gentlemen who drew these plans or these sketches, principally the sponsors of this bill, plus those who advocate passage of this bill, are people who have purposely drawn a plan for the perpetration of a fraud.

Mr. A. M. LEE. I would reply, Mr. Speaker, by saying that I merely referred to the bill as a blueprint for fraud. I did not in any way indicate as to how it was drawn or why it was drawn or what the motives were of those who drew it.

Mr. FINEMAN. Well, I am asking you now, even though you did not say what the motive was, I am asking you now, from the inference that I draw from your statement, is it correct that those who drew up this plan in the form of a bill have placed before the members of this House a plan for the perpetration of a fraud?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I would say again, Mr. Speaker, I do not know what they had in their minds when they drew the bill. I only know what the bill itself provides, so what was in their minds is not a matter that is within my knowledge and I cannot answer the gentleman's question.

Mr. FINEMAN. Would you agree that your choice of language was an unfortunate choice of language?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I would not so agree, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FINEMAN. Are not the binders in which the names of voters are contained, are they not under the jurisdiction and control of the registration commission in the city of Philadelphia?

Mr. A. M. LEE. Up until a few days prior to election when they are delivered to the county board of elections.

Mr. FINEMAN. And is it not a fact that the street lists in Philadelphia are prepared by the registration commission of the city of Philadelphia?

Mr. A. M. LEE. That is correct.

Mr. FINEMAN. Does it not, therefore, follow that if there be a margin of error, or a percentage of errors that you indicate in the street lists in the city of Philadelphia, since the binders are likewise in the hands of these same people who have committed the mistakes in the street lists, there can equally be the same number of mistakes in the binders?

Mr. A. M. LEE. That is not necessarily so, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FINEMAN. I did not ask if it were not necessarily so. I asked if the possibility does not exist?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I would be willing to answer the interrogation, Mr. Speaker, if I had a chance to explain my answer, which I understand is my right.

Mr. FINEMAN. I certainly will give you a chance to explain but I am asking you now, and then you can explain, whether or not the possibility exists. In other words, a class of workers will not confine their mistakes, if in fact they are making mistakes, to a particular document. If they are negligent in the handling of one thing, they will be negligent in the handling of the other.

Mr. A. M. LEE. The gentleman is assuming that all these names that are on the street lists or cards which are missing from the binder are the result of mistakes and he is assuming too much. I would be glad to give the gentleman my opinion of this process and some of the reasons I think are important as to why there are these inaccuracies in the street lists and also in the binder, but the way the gentleman is pressing the interrogation, he wants me to answer these things but does not want to give me an opportunity to explain.

Mr. FINEMAN. That is not so, at all. The microphone is yours, is it not?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I am sorry, I did not get that.

Mr. FINEMAN. I am not trying to preclude you from any explanations. I propounded a very simple question. I would like to elicit an answer and then you can further expound the answer.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Will you repeat the question?

Mr. FINEMAN. I said to you that since the same workers have under their jurisdiction both the street lists and the binders, and if you find they are making a mistake on the street lists, there exists the same possibility as to the same number of mistakes to be made in the binder. Now is that not a fact?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I would say, Mr. Speaker, that a possibility exists, but, on the other hand, the street list is an informal list. The binder is really the important record, and it is my understanding of the process over there that considerably more attention is given to insuring that the cards are in the district register than there is to the question of the accuracy of the street list. Because it just goes without saying, that since the binder must contain the card of the voter, as far as the registration commission is concerned, they spend a lot more time, especially in the later days just prior to closing the books, to make sure all the necessary cards are in the binder, and because of limited personnel in the office of the registration commission in the city of Philadelphia, why, it seems to me the possibility also exists that they may sacrifice the accuracy of the street lists for the purpose of improving the accuracy of the binder.

Mr. FINEMAN. Now, is it not a fact that the street list information is compiled from the names in the binder?

Mr. A. M. LEE. Well, to a certain extent . . .

Mr. FINEMAN. What do you mean to certain extent? Isn't it a fact that the street lists are made up from the binder?

Mr. A. M. LEE. But, Mr. Speaker, with the limited personnel in the registration commission, they are engaged in two separate tasks, trying to put their binders in shape and trying to get their street lists in shape, and it is my understanding that they have several people who are in charge of the street lists and sometimes the lines of communication break down.

Mr. FINEMAN. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I think the interrogation clerly indicates and clearly points up the need for the type of legislation involved. Now, Mr. Speaker, I am a working committeeman. I am out in the field at the election polls every election day and I do not know how many instances I have found repeatedly where the cards were missing from the binder and the person was disfranchised and could not vote although I know they were properly registered and had voted in previous elections. What happened in many instances was that the card was taken from one binder and inadvertently put into another binder of another election district so that, although the person's name appeared on the street list, they were not entitled to vote although they were properly registered and had previously voted. There very definitely exists a need for this legislation and by no means can this be construed as a blueprint for fraud.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, may I interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCORMACK. Preliminarily to the interrogation, I think before we vote on this we ought to get the facts of the procedure straightened out. As a result of the interrogation of Mr. Eilberg by Mr. Goldstein, I am not sure I know the facts, and I am not sure that Mr. Goldstein does, either.

Mr. Speaker, let us assume that I as a voter go to the polling place to vote and my name is not in the district register. Let us assume further that my name appears on the street list. Would I be entitled to vote if I still lived in, say, your division?

Mr. A. M. LEE. It is my understanding of the present law as interpreted by the city solicitor that you could not vote then and there on the basis of the fact that your name appeared on the street list. It is possible that you could vote.

Mr. McCORMACK. I did not ask the gentleman that.

Mr. A. M. LEE. I answered that.

Mr. McCORMACK. I asked: Assuming the facts I just gave, would I be entitled to vote in your division in the past?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I do not understand the interrogation. The gentleman said, would he be entitled to vote in my division in the past?

Mr. McCORMACK. Let us assume, Mr. Speaker, that I lived in his division, that the gentleman was one of the election officials, that I came there in November to vote and my name was not in the district register, but it was on the street list, would I have been permitted to vote at that time?

Mr. A. M. LEE. Is the gentleman speaking about the past or the present?

Mr. McCORMACK. In the November election, when Kennedy beat Nixon.

Mr. A. M. LEE. It is my understanding that under the interpretation by the city solicitor that you would not, last November, have been entitled to vote purely on the basis that your name appeared on the street list.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, let us not be naive. I think I am entitled to a direct answer based on past practice in the city of Philadelphia, not on what the city solicitor has told someone today or yesterday. I am talking about the procedure as of November, 1960, in the city of Philadelphia with respect to a person's right to vote whose name is not in the district register but whose name is on the street list. Is the gentleman saying that person would be deprived of a vote?

Mr. A. M. LEE. No, I did not say that, Mr. Speaker. I am trying to make it clear that merely because the name was on the street list it would not confer upon the election board the right to permit that person to vote. Now, that person could vote in one of two ways. The registration commission could be called and either the person's card or a duplicate of the card could be sent out and locked in the binder. At that point the person would be eligible to vote.

In the alternative, he could go to the election court and raise the problem and, if the court saw fit, they could give him a certificate that would entitle him to vote.

Mr. McCORMACK. There is no question then that in the past I would have been allowed to vote if I had signed an affidavit to the fact that I still resided in that district, although my name did not appear in the district register, is that correct?

Mr. A. M. LEE. That would have been correct prior to the ruling by the city solicitor to the effect that the name on the street list alone was not sufficient.

Mr. McCORMACK. I am not familiar with any ruling by the city solicitor; I have not seen any ruling. I have heard it alluded to and I assume that it is correct. This does not really change the law then, does it?

Mr. A. M. LEE. It does change the law, because under the opinion of the city solicitor they may not now do what this bill purports to permit them to do.

Mr. McCORMACK. Does the gentleman have a copy of that opinion by the city solicitor?

Mr. A. M. LEE. No, I do not. I would refer you to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg. He is familiar with the ruling and could probably furnish you with a copy of it.

Mr. McCORMACK. Did the gentleman read a copy of that opinion?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I took Mr. Eilberg's word as to what the opinion said and I feel perfectly secure that he interpreted it properly to me.

Mr. McCORMACK. When was the opinion written?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I would say several years ago. I do not know, exactly.

Mr. McCORMACK. In light of the practice that existed in Philadelphia and that you admitted existed in the city of Philadelphia, how is this possibly a blueprint for fraud?

Mr. A. M. LEE. It is just my opinion that as far as the city solicitor's opinion is concerned it was correct, that we should not permit people to vote merely because their name appears on a street list in view of the known inaccuracies in those street lists. That is my personal opinion.

Mr. McCORMACK. Then let me see if I understand the gentleman's philosophy.

Suppose I am a duly qualified resident of an election district and I go to the polling place half an hour before the polls close, I have lived there for 40 years and I sign the affidavit to vote, and they check the district register and my name is not in there but it is on the registration list, is the gentleman saying that I should not be entitled to vote?

Mr. A. M. LEE. It is my understanding that under the present state of the law you would not be entitled to vote.

Mr. McCORMACK. That is all, Mr. Speaker. I thank the gentleman.

I think this is a perfectly innocuous bill. I think we are dragging red herrings across the scene here. This is something that gives a person the most important, basic and fundamental right that he has in a democracy, the right to vote. Because of the fact that there are some errors made by the registration commission in that a person's name might be omitted from the district register, I think to deprive that person of a vote is a terrible thing in this day and age. We have all the safeguards necessary to insure that that person is duly qualified. He must take an affidavit that he still lives there, he must sign that affidavit and, in addition to that, there must be people on the election board or in that particular precinct who know that person and who can testify to the fact that that person is a duly qualified resident of that election district.

Therefore, I think when you set aside all the smoke and all the clever phrases, you have a bill here that is perfectly harmless and should be voted by both sides.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Gross,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. HELM IN THE CHAIR

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1105, entitled:

An Act amending the "Pennsylvania Election Code" approved June 3, 1937 (P. L. 1333), further regulating the form of applications certifications and declaration for absentee ballots the time within which applications for such ballots must be received and the canvassing of such ballots.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HOLLIDAY asked unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The amendments will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1303-B), page 9, line 3, by inserting brackets before and after "thirtieth" and inserting immediately thereafter: "forty-fifth".

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1303-B), page 9, line 4, by striking out the brackets before and after "seventh".

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1303-B), page 9, line 4, by striking out "fifteenth".

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1304-B), page 10, line 2 by inserting after "applicant": "not earlier than the thirtieth day prior to the election".

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1307-B), page 14, lines 2 and 3, by striking out "and as to his eligibility to vote under this act".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Holliday.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, these amendments are minor in character, I think, although the opposition may not feel that way.

One of them, the first amendment, changes on page 9, line 3, by inserting brackets before and after "thirteenth" and inserting immediately thereafter "forty-fifth," the time when a request can be sent out for absentee ballots.

The main one that I am interested in is amending section 1, page 9, line 4, by striking out the brackets before and after the "seven."

Now, as the bill is written, it has fifteen days prior to the date of the election as the limit at which time the absentee ballots could be applied for. In our particular community, and I think throughout the State, fifteen days is cutting the time too short to let a lot of people who are going to be absent to get their requests in.

Now you take our community. We have a lot of trainmen and they would not know fifteen days ahead of time whether or not they are going to be called out on a run and be away on election day. Now even seven days, some of them would not know in that time. But that is giving them more of an opportunity than it would be if they were cut off short at fifteen days.

So, we believe that this amendment is a good amendment and would make the bill a better bill than it is with the limit of fifteen days, and I recommend everybody to support these amendments.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the amendments. The gentleman has indicated that he wants a larger amount of time for the absentee balloting, but I would submit that the voter who stays at home, who is at home, and, of course, must cast his ballot in his precinct, has just one single day to cast that ballot.

Now, further, in speaking about the proposal to amend this section to make it no later than fifteen days preceding the day of election in which the ballot is to be cast, all other applications received would be void.

Now the mechanics of this is what the election boards are confronted with. You allow this situation to occur until the seventh day prior to the election, and with the limited help that the various election boards have throughout the Commonwealth, they find that it is very difficult to compile the necessary lists for the great number of precincts for which they must compile them and get them to the election boards, where they then are posted, and, of course, would disallow the possibility of a duplicate vote being cast by that elector were he to be at home.

So, in effect, the registration board of my county would want a longer period of time, and I am sure this would happen in other counties as well, so they could operate the mechanics of the absentee ballot law without too great an expenditure for additional clerks, and so on, to get back to each of the almost 300 election boards, the list of persons who have designated that they intended to cast an absentee ballot.

I ask the membership of the House to oppose the amendments offered by the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Holliday.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Holliday.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. I request a roll call.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the minority leader.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, House bill 1262 adjusts the State Workmen's Insurance into a field of insurance that they heretofore have not been allowed to tread. Now those of us who are familiar with the State Workmen's Insurance Fund and the Workmen's Compensation Insurance activities realize that this was set up at the time when the Workmen's Compensation Act was established. The reason for doing it was, of course, so that the State would have a standard to go by as to experience of companies for purposes of determining the standards of rates and also providing an insurance company where an employer would be able to get Workmen's Compensation insurance where he might be turned down by private companies.

The idea was not to put the State into the insurance business but merely to set up some kind of a system so an employer would be able to get Workmen's Compensation insurance.

Now what these bills do is project further the field of endeavor of the State Workmen's Insurance Fund and that is not what the act was intended to do originally. One thing when you build up the State fund and have more companies in the fund, that means, of course, that the premiums paid to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will be less, the tax on the gross premiums will be less, to the State coffers; also the money to the local fire companies will be less because of less money being paid in or available for the fire companies, as we understand it.

Therefore, we feel we should keep the State Fund as it was intended for this very haven for companies that cannot get insurance elsewhere and as a sort of a yardstick, then, for regulating other companies in this field.

I have the audit before me here of the State fund. I will not say that the fund is in bad shape financially, nor would I say it is in good shape financially. The assets are about $12 million and the liabilities are about $9 million which leaves a $3 million reserve. Understand in the past they have paid dividends out of the fund when there were not earnings justifying the payment of dividends. But that is a policy matter. If we load down this fund with more and more liabilities, of course, eventually they could well call on the General Assembly to bail them out or they would have to unduly increase premiums on the companies that are presently insured in the fund.

Now it was never the idea of the General Assembly that the State would embark on the insurance business. As I say, it was forced on us just so the companies would have a way of finding that type of insurance. But we find that the audits of the Auditor General in this language:

"Our analysis of travel expense vouchers submitted by the Board's field personnel indicated that in many instances the explanation of work done during the specific days included solicitation of new business."

In other words, the fund has sent men all over the State soliciting business as against our present insurance companies who are paying a pretty hefty tax into the coffers of this Commonwealth, paying money to make it available to our fire companies, and it was never intended that the State embark on this business and send out solicitors to build up this Workmen's Insurance Fund.

And what these bills do is to make it easier, make it greater and will expand and broaden the insurance companies of the State fund. Now private companies are writing this type of insurance that the fund is planning on going into and this bill is not a good precedent for the State to embark further and further into the insurance business. They are taking care of what has to be taken care of right now under the act as it was set up and there is no reason for projecting them any further into the private business endeavor of insurance.

I ask the House to vote against this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Andrews.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I have no intention of debating the bill. I simply want to correct the minority leader as far as the historical background is concerned.

This pending bill has to do with amending an act of 1915. I was there. I was on the spot. This present work with the State fund was originated by a man from Tioga County who happened to be State Treasurer. I have just forgotten his name. And the idea was that since the insurance companies did not have the business to begin with that the Commonwealth was not going to present them with this whole new range. Now I admit that they gave the business to the private companies, but they were going to have a State fund and they would write all the business. But it did not work out that way.

But, if you remember, for a long time boroughs, municipalities of various kinds insured with the State fund because they got better terms and gradually the big insurance companies over the years, little by little, have undermined the position of the State fund until it is a very poor creature at the present time. And whether or not a correct accounting would show whether it was practically facing bankruptcy is another matter. But the minority leader, I believe, is wrong when he speaks of the origin and the intent and purposes of the people who were back of the act creating the State fund.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Capano.

Mr. CAPANO. Mr. Speaker, this bill is not intended to put the State on a competitive basis with the private insurance companies. The State fund is compelled to take all insurance, workmen's compensation insurance, whether it is a good risk or a bad risk; whereas the private companies can be selective.

Now this is one type of coverage in which there exists an employer-employee relationship and many times it is difficult to distinguish whether or not an employee is or is not under coverage. And this will afford better protection to those who carry workmen's compensation, especially the small employer, because they feel that they are covered in all instances whereas there are many situations which are not covered and this would give them complete coverage and protect them against those borderline cases.

And as regards the firemen, no protests have been registered with me and I do not think it is going to in any way affect or hurt them.

I believe that this is a good bill because of the additional protection which it will afford individuals and, besides, in this same bill there is also provision for additional benefit coverage which is very much needed. That will give the State fund an opportunity to extend that additional coverage where in many instances now they cannot do it because the law says six months, unless before it they make a decision allowing them to give additional coverage, medical coverage.

So I think this is a good bill and it should be passed and I ask you to vote favorably.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Mr. FETTEROLF. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose this bill. House bill 371 would provide that the county chairmen of both major political parties could each establish three additional places for registration. I oppose this bill on the ground that the power is already in the hands of the registration commission, and also this commission, being made up of county commissioners, is made up of elected officials in whose hands, I believe, this power should rest. Also, the board of county commissioners has minority representation which assures each party of a fair say in where registration places should be located.

In the early part of the present act, the act provides that any commissioner or registrar, or any member of the commission, shall, during ordinary business hours, and so forth, receive personal applications from persons who claim that they are entitled to be registered. This is during normal business hours as the act now states. Under the amendment provided in this bill it also specifies that one of these times of registration set aside by the county chairman shall be Friday evenings. I question whether that can be construed as an ordinary business hour. Therefore, I find that it conflicts with the present act.

I ask all of the members of this House to oppose this bill as being absolutely unnecessary.

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

NOT VOTING—5

Mihm,	Odoristo,	Rudisill,	Willard,
O'Donnell, J. P.,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The bill having been called up from the postponed calendar by Mr. McCANN.

The House resumed the consideration on final passage of House bill No. 1109, entitled:

An Act providing that the Pennsylvania Game Commission shall have exclusive power to regulate hunting in this Commonwealth prohibiting ordinances and resolutions of political subdivisions which regulate hunting therein and invalidating such ordinances and resolutions.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate a sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Hartley, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HARTLEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know from the sponsor of this bill whether or not township ordinances would regulate hunting which requires permits, which requires registration, and which requires payment of fees to townships and/or boroughs, or would they be prohibited if this act should pass?

Mr. HARTLEY. Mr. Speaker, if the townships make hunting laws, this would be forbidden, yes.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I am sorry, did I understand the gentleman to say that townships and boroughs could continue to regulate hunting?

Mr. HARTLEY. If the townships and boroughs make hunting laws, which is the prerogative of this body, this is forbidden, yes.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. The gentleman's answer is "no," Mr. Speaker?

Mr. HARTLEY. Mr. Speaker, I did not hear that question.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Is the answer "no"?

Mr. HARTLEY. The gentleman had better repeat the question if he has another question.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. My question is the same: Would townships and boroughs be able to regulate hunting if this bill passes?

Mr. HARTLEY. The answer is no, they cannot regulate hunting.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to point out to those in the House who have not thought thoroughly about this bill that here is a situation where we come into the eternal conflict between the urban and suburban areas in Pennsylvania and the rural areas.

When someone stands on the floor of this House and mentions the effect of legislation on a second class township, I am sure there are some in the House who think of a township as a sparsely settled area in a rural section of the State.

There are second class townships in many of our counties, Allegheny, Bucks, Montgomery, Delaware and Chester, to name only a few, which are urban in nature, or at least suburban in nature. I know that in Bucks County we have many townships, at least eight of them, that have local ordinances prohibiting or regulating hunting. These ordinances have been passed because of deaths and injuries to children and adults as the result of indiscriminate shooting by hunters. There is no question, in my mind, that we must preserve as many of the rights of the hunters of Pennsylvania as possible, but I think that if you pass an act like this which would prohibit other townships and boroughs from passing local ordinances regulating hunting, and I think that is a home rule prerogative that they should have, you may negate ordinances which have been passed, and I think you will be taking a step backward in protecting the safety of the residents of Pennsylvania. I think the lines are drawn here between rural interests and suburban interests, between the rights of the hunter and the rights of the homeowners and their children.

I think this is a very dangerous piece of legislation and I hope that a sufficient number of members will vote against it to defeat it. Thank you.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Hartley.

Mr. HARTLEY. Mr. Speaker, at the turn of the century this House created a game commission in the hope of preserving the state rights to make gunning laws. Therefore, there are no rights given by this body to any other body, subdivisions, or otherwise, to make these laws. This body is only maintaining its proper right to make all game laws and regulations.

If it means that they have to have safety, we overcame that in Philadelphia years ago. We have hunting down there and we still do, but we do not fire firearms. Now all they need for protection is the outlaw of firearms. If they want hunting, and we have it in Philadelphia—I can go out with a dog and hunt, I can go out with a bow and arrow and hunt. And we have a large city that overflowed its banks, as it were, and there is no question that they should be concerned about safety. You do not need gunning laws because we have that right, right here. We are the ones who make all the gunning laws and should maintain that right to do so.

I ask the members to vote for this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, this bill was defeated in the House several weeks ago, I would have spoken on it at that time but it caught me unaware; it was called up quick and I did not have a chance to speak on it.

We have a game commission in this State, duly authorized by law, in whom we have placed the enforcement of the game law, the statewide law. If you are going to start a precedent when you pass laws that are beneficial and are made for the benefit of all the people in the State, all the hunters and all the fishermen in the State, and then allow those commissions in whom we have entrusted those powers to be usurped by local municipalities, I think we are getting ourselves into a very bad and a very dangerous governmental situation. I have a very strong belief in the integrity of the game commission. I have followed their activities and their enforcement of the law over a period of years, the game and the fish commission. I think, on the whole, they are doing a wonderful job. Of course, there are circumstances and instances where they do make mistakes. What law enforcement agency does not? I am pleading now to give the game commission the proper authority that they should have to regulate hunting throughout the State of Pennsylvania. It is not a matter of local home rule; that is beside the point entirely.

Let me state here for the members of the House, possibly a good many of you know it, but it is illegal to shoot off a firearm while hunting within 150 yards—not of a dwelling, but of any building. It is illegal to shoot any firearms or go hunting within the confines of any borough, first class city, second class city or third class city under the law as presently set up, and we have passed numerous laws this session to tighten the enforcement of the game commission laws, and rightfully so, and to clarify them.

Further, Mr. Speaker, I think if we are going to start this sort of thing, there are suburban townships down east, and certain suburban communities, Altoona my own city, for instance, is surrounded entirely by a second class township and there has been no call for this sort of legislation there whatsoever. Then possibly the townships up north, where the hunting and fishing are located, take it upon themselves to issue licenses and to whom they may be issued. I just want to point out to the people that go into these communities and do not live there, that if far and wide this sort of thing is carried out you may find a lot of your hunting and fishing grounds taken away from you.

I think that under the law, where a person illegally shoots a firearm, he is amply protected under the game laws today. If a person is maimed or killed, he still is protected under the game laws today, whether it occurs in a second class township or out in the vast wilds of the mountain regions. So, I see no call for voting down this kind of legislation. I think it is good. I think the game commission needs it, without local laws to control the game commission or to regulate game shooting and game law regulation throughout the State of Pennsylvania. I ask all the members of this House to vote for this bill.

Mr. DOUGHTEN. Mr. Speaker, there is no basic conflict here between the urban population and the rural population, or anything of that nature. This act merely underscores the law as it exists today. The game commission has the exclusive control of the regulation of the game seasons and the shooting of game. There is nothing in this law which would prevent any township or borough from saying, "You must not discharge a gun in our borough or our community." What we have found in Pennsylvania, and this is according to the information of Mr. Golden of the game commission, a hundred boroughs or townships have passed laws which affect the control of the game commission. If a man is arrested under those circumstances, he has to go and face a justice of the peace and then appeal. He is put to a great deal of trouble. We want to accentuate that the control of game is completely within the jurisdiction of the game commission itself.

Safety regulations which the boroughs may want to pass, they can. They can say, there will be no shooting, no discharging of firearms. There is no interference there. It simply says, "Thou shalt not interfere with the game commission's control of the game crop in the State of Pennsylvania. Thou shalt not regulate the time for shooting and you shall not say we cannot shoot ducks or certain kinds of birds within a certain area in Pennsylvania."

As far as safety measures in the discharge of firearms goes, there is no interference whatsoever.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Fetterolf.

Mr. FETTEROLF. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Doughten.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Doughten, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DOUGHTEN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FETTEROLF. Mr. Speaker, there is some confusion in my mind with respect to the provisions of this bill.

I live in Whitmarsh Township, Montgomery County, and a portion of this township borders on the city of Philadelphia. We have in the township two ordinances in respect to hunting. One ordinance bans hunting in the township except on land in excess of five acres and then only with the permission of the owner, written permission. The other ordinance provides that one may not use a high-powered rifle in the township of Whitmarsh. I simply want to inquire of the gentleman if these ordinances would remain in effect if this bill becomes law?

Mr. DOUGHTEN. I would separate them, Mr. Speaker, in giving my answer.

As far as the high-powered rifle is concerned, I would say that under the terms of this proposed law the ordinance would remain.

As far as restricting certain portions from hunting, I would say that ordinance would fail. It could easily be changed by substituting, "There shall be no discharge of firearms."

Mr. FETTEROLF. In other words, Mr. Speaker, it would be a re-wording of the ordinance to meet the satisfaction of the game commission?

Mr. DOUGHTEN. I would not say for the satisfaction of the game commission, but to comply with the act itself.

Mr. FETTEROLF. Then let me put one question, Mr. Speaker: If this bill becomes law, will our ordinance banning hunting in Whitmarsh except on areas of five acres or more with the written permission of the owner be negated?

Mr. DOUGHTEN. I would answer, Mr. Speaker, that that ordinance would fail.

Mr. FETTEROLF. That ordinance then would not be in effect, is that correct?

Mr. DOUGHTEN. That is right.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that what the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Doughten, has just said is that we hunters in Philadelphia, know that we cannot hunt in Philadelphia because there is no land, there is no game, want to come out into the suburban counties of Bucks, Chester, Montgomery, Delaware, where there is game and where there is some land to hunt upon. You people out there may worry about the safety of your children, and, if you do, we say you have only one choice. You stop hunters from hunting at all by banning all discharge of firearms. That is okay with us. That is what I understand the gentleman to say.

But if you want to place reasonable restrictions on the hunters, allow the hunters to hunt, but under restrictions such as have been described by the gentleman from Montgomery, on land of a certain size where there is not the same danger. We hunters do not want that; we do not want this reasonable restriction; we want either complete freedom under the game laws or we want a complete ban of discharge of firearms.

I think this is a ridiculous position. I think just examination of it from that point of view should lead you to vote against this bill.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, it is always with some hesitation that I address myself when there is a public clamor for a roll call, but, at the risk of being unpopular, I feel I ought to answer the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams.

It seems to me that as an attorney, and the gentleman from Bucks is an attorney, that every provision and every section of the bill means something.

The way I read section 3 of the bill, in recalling to mind the decisions with respect to such phraseology, it is rather clear in my mind that the provision in section 3, "Nothing herein contained shall be construed to interfere with the police power of the political subdivision," that where you have a regulation, ordinance or resolution in effect that is pertaining to the police power of that subdivision—and we are dealing in areas where the police power is definitely involved—such as shooting off a rifle in the presence of children, or in certain areas, I would say that clearly, under section 3 the political subdivision would have that right. It is very hard to interpret the two sections. Section 2 says that all ordinances and resolutions affecting hunting shall be null and void, but I think you still have to separate that provision from resolutions and ordinances dealing with the police power of the political subdivision.

For that reason I say that the situation presented by the gentleman from Bucks is clearly within the orbit of an ordinance or resolution and that they would still be illegal if this bill becomes law.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Of course, lawyers always disagree, but I think the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, has just restated what I stated: you can ban firearms completely, but you cannot regulate hunting locally if this bill passes.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

(Members joined in singing "Happy Birthday," led by Mr. Dengler.)

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Fry.

INTERROGATION

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON asked and obtained unanimous consent to interrogate the majority leader at this time.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, many of the members have asked me this question and I want to put it to the majority leader. In view of the fact that he says we have two or three more hours to go and due to the fact that Senator Weiner says we are going to be out of here in several weeks, and we are going to be here tomorrow and four days the following week, does the majority leader have in mind a sine die adjournment date and does he have a resolution ready to put in for adjournment sine die?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I would be most pleased to answer following the bi-partisan committee meetings on education next Monday and Tuesday. I will be most pleased to answer either in the affirmative or negative on whether I will have a sine die resolution and to give you the date of it.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. In other words, you are deferring answering that question until next Tuesday's meeting of the combined committee on education; is that correct?

Mr. McCANN. I am deferring the answering of the question as to the date of the sine die resolution, yes.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Then by next Wednesday, if this same question was posed to the gentleman, he would be able to answer one way or the other, if that right?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, that is if the Governor's Committee on Education will answer some questions for me which I will have to know in order to operate this House. I am sure you are well aware of that—the revenue raising measures, they are called.

NOT VOTING—7

Willard,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1528, entitled:

An Act amending "The Third Class City Code," approved June 23, 1931 (P. L. 932), further regulating conditions under which firemen may be called out and assigned to continuous duty.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate one of the sponsors of this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Flynn, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FLYNN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, in this bill that is before us, I note that the phrase "riots serious conflagration times of war public celebrations or other such events or situations" have been eliminated. Now, would the gentleman advise me whether he believes that the general language of the bill covers each and every one of these situations?

Mr. FLYNN. Does the gentleman mean as amended?

Mr. BOWMAN. Yes, the proposed amendments. Let us take riots. Is it the intent of this bill that firemen can no longer be called out to handle riots, to participate in the quelling of riots?

Mr. FLYNN. No. It does not prohibit them from being called out. They can be called out when the action is in the manner of a police force, but the bill does provide that they will be compensated for it.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry but I could not hear the gentleman's answer.

Mr. FLYNN. In the event that the firemen are called out by the fire chief to act as policemen, as actually sometimes has happened. They have been called out to do police duty and, therefore, in this provision they would be compensated with extra pay.

Mr. BOWMAN. I am again sorry. I do not think I heard, or, at least, I did not understand the full answer. Did I understand the gentleman to say that in a riot firemen can or cannot be called out?

Mr. BOWMAN. Where do you read that in the amendments?

Mr. FLYNN. On page 3, beginning of line 16, it says:

"In the case of emergencies other than serious fires or conflagrations endangering life and property or national emergencies when the members of the fire force are called to continuous duty members of council shall provide for the payment of extra compensation."

Mr. BOWMAN. Why has the term "riot" been deleted from the bill—from the existing law, rather?

Mr. FLYNN. My interpretation of it would be this, Mr. Speaker, riot would take in quite a large field. There have been cases on record whereby in the case of a strike firemen have been called out to do police duty, and that, in my opinion, is the reason the word "riot" is eliminated.

Mr. BOWMAN. Under the existing law they can call them out; even under this bill they can call them out, if it endangers the life and property of the citizens?

Mr. FLYNN. All it says, in effect, is that they shall be compensated extra for doing police duties.

Mr. BOWMAN. I have no objections to the pay provisions of this bill. I am merely concerned whether the firemen, in the light of this amendatory law, if it becomes law, would refuse to do riot duty because of the way this bill has been drafted?

Mr. FLYNN. My interpretation of the bill would be that it would be at the discretion of the fire chief. He has the right and power to order them out.

Under the provisions my interpretation would be that they are now subject to continuous duty. It does not change any of the provisions of the law therein. All it does is make sure that they are being compensated for doing police work.

Mr. BOWMAN. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I want to repeat that I have no objections to this bill to the extent that it states that for certain extra duties firemen are to be paid extra compensation for those duties. I have no quarrel with that whatsoever.

I do seriously question, however, the draftmanship of this bill with respect to the one point on which I was making my interrogation. It seems to me that as a matter of statutory construction, if one examines the present law and examines this amendatory law, there is a serious doubt in my mind whether firemen can properly be called out with respect to riot duty, without regard to the question of whether they should or should not receive extra compensation therefor. It seems to me that particularly for riots the use of fire hoses is perhaps the most effective means of quelling riots, that is, high pressure fire lines. If this bill could possibly be interpreted as not permitting firemen to participate in the quelling of riots, then I say it is bad legislation. I think, as drafted, it is bad legislation and I urge you to oppose it unless the bill is amended to clarify this point.

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

NOT VOTING—7

Adams,	Blair,
Boles,	Holl,	Mihm,	Willard,
Gibb,	May,	Odorisio,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know how the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gray, voted on the last roll call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The clerk informs the Chair that the gentleman voted "aye."

Mr. GIBBONS. I would like to call the attention of the Speaker to the fact that this practice has been continuing for some time and we have noticed it, that is, members voting for members who are not here. The only way we can challenge it, of course, is in that exact moment between the time—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For what purpose does the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Sherman, rise?

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, if this is a challenge of a man's vote, I think the rules say it must be done in writing.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would like to inform the gentleman that a member may question the validity of a member's vote before the result is announced. The result of this roll call has not yet been announced.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, it is most proper. The gentleman is here. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gray, in question, can rise in his place. He is here and is back in the hall of the House.

Will the gentleman, Mr. Gray, rise in his seat?

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, may I ask if it would be proper for me to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gray?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That interrogation is not proper at this time.

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, I would merely like to point out to the House the very great defect we have in this voting system. Unless one of the members of the opposite party rises in that exact moment between the time the Chair says, "Have all the members present voted?" and point out that defect—

POINT OF ORDER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For what purpose does the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Sherman, rise?

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I think there is nothing in the rules—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman yield for just a moment until the Chair reads the rule?

The Chair would like to call the attention of the members to Rule 69.1, paragraph (g):

"No member shall vote for another member, nor shall any person not a member vote for a member. Any member who shall vote or attempt to vote for a member, or a person not a member who shall vote or attempt to vote for a member may be punished in such manner as the House shall determine."

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, that has nothing to do with the point at issue.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Well, what is the gentleman's point of order?

Mr. SHERMAN. There is nothing before the House but the announcement of the result of the roll call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman's point of order is not well taken. The gentleman has the right to question the validity of a vote.

If the gentleman cares to challenge the vote of the gentleman any further he must put it in writing.

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, I merely want to point out something here, and I think it is something that has been happening and has been improper.

The rules do not provide for any means of a member objecting when we can obviously see that a member is not in the hall of the House and is not pushing his own toggle switch and yet remains voted. If we wait until the vote is announced, it is too late. If we do not get in in time when we rise to object to it, the switch is pushed back.

I just wanted to point this out. I think that the members present here know what has happened. The gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Fetterolf, rose before to bring up this point of order and the switch was pushed back. I think this is something we all know, and the result of the vote would not make any difference, so I will merely thank the Chair for the courtesy.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thanks the gentleman.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1572, entitled:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1577, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 4, 1925 (P. L. 127), entitled "An act relating to adoption," reducing the minimum period of custody in an agency or institution necessary for voluntary relinquishment of custody of a child.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For what purpose does the lady from Bucks, Mrs. Kooker, rise?

Mrs. KOOKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate one of the sponsors of this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The lady from Bucks, Mrs. Kooker, desires to interrogate one of the sponsors of the bill. Will the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Schaaf, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SCHAAF. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The lady will proceed.

Mrs. KOOKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask what is hoped to be gained by changing this bill from 30 days to 5 days? What is the reason?

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, what is to be gained would be a saving—well, perhaps I had better start in this fashion: The voluntary relinquishment proceedings can only be undertaken when an approved agency is involved. What would be gained in this particular case, in the case of the agency, would be saving the expense of maintaining the mother for 25 additional days.

Mrs. KOOKER. Mr. Speaker, I feel that the elapsing of only five days' time is a very short time in which to separate a mother from her child. There is an eternal bond between a mother and her child, and oftentimes at the age of 18 years a woman, or a girl, is very much frustrated and emotionally upset at a time such as this. I feel that five days' time is not sufficient for her to make up her mind to relinquish her child in an adoption which separates them forever. I just feel that it is not fair to the mother at a time like this. I ask that this bill not be given the consideration and support of the House on that point. Thank you.

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, so that the membership of the House is clear, we are dealing in the main with unwed mothers. We are dealing in the main with the court proceedings in which the girl—the mother—is at least the age of 18 and her parents will have to be party to that proceeding. We are dealing with a conventional situation, that is, where the mother of the child actually does, and in fact previously, prior to the court hearing, has, indicated her consent to this proceeding. We are dealing, Mr. Speaker, in the main with cases where the agency involved has worked with the mother perhaps three, four, five or six months prior to the birth of the child. The decision is not a hasty one, and this is only to accomplish the decision that she has made.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that this is worthy legislation. Those informants with whom I have corresponded and who have an interest in this matter all speak favorably of this legislation. I ask that all the members on both sides of the House support this legislation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Sakulsky.

Mr. SAKULSKY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose House bill 1577. It does not carry the interest of the parent or parents who make petition to court 30 days after the child is born to surrender their right as a parent, after which the adoption agency has control of the child, not the parent. This bill has reduced the 30 days to 5 days. There is no good purpose served, except that a parent may expedite the surrendering of responsibility. If the parents changed their minds after the court hearing, it may be too late for them to gain custody. Thirty days is certainly a short enough time in which a parent or parents have to determine this matter. This bill is designed only for adoption agencies and attorneys who represent clients for the purpose of adoption. Therefore, I ask the members on both sides to vote no.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Heffner.

Mr. HEFFNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in favor of this bill. I have received correspondence from approved children's bureaus, from people who represent churches in our Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, favoring this bill. There is nothing tricky about it, there is nothing sinister about it, and I should think that we, as legislators, should be guided by these approved agencies that are doing this work each and every day for mankind. I ask the members on this side of the House to vote in favor of, and to help these agencies in, their most worthy cause.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Schaaf.

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, it is unfortunate that the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Sakulsky, made the remarks that he did.

This is not a bill designed to enrich attorneys, nor is it a bill designed to improve the lot of agencies. This bill is designed to be in the best interests of a little child and unwed mothers.

Mr. Speaker, this is good legislation, and I challenge the opponents, and I think they are few, who say to the contrary.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I merely wanted to say as one of the sponsors of this bill that I believe it is a very desirable piece of legislation and, as the gentleman from Schuylkill so well put it, these welfare agencies are the ones who are primarily interested in this. I know the Catholic Charities are interested in it, and I believe they have also received communications from the Lutheran Ministerium in Pennsylvania expressing approval and urging the passage of this bill. I know of no opposition to it by responsible and legal agencies that deal in the adoption of babies. If that is so—if there is such opposition, I would like to hear it stated on the floor because these responsible agencies, as the gentleman said, have devoted their lives to seeing that proper procedures and proper steps were utilized in the relinquishment of children. So, Mr. Speaker, I maintain the gentleman from Westmoreland is absolutely incorrect when he makes that suggestion.

This is a bill advocated by responsible agencies in the field of the relinquishment of children and the placing out for adoption of children. The only purpose behind the bill is to aid them. Therefore, I ask both sides to vote for it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to point out for the benefit of the members of this House one very important provision in this bill. This bill does not state that upon the expiration of a five-day period a mother's right in the child is voluntarily relinquished. Before that contingency occurs, before that event occurs, the mother must file a petition for voluntary relinquishing. All this bill does is move up the time during which the mother files the petition. It does not say that at the expiration of five days, as opposed to 30 days, her rights are abrogated. It does not say that at all.

Why do we want to move up this time? For a very practical reason. In almost every instance the child is the offspring of an unwed mother. The experience of giving birth to a child that does not have the benefit of a marriage is a bitter, distasteful experience. It is something that unwed mothers want to put behind them and reject as quickly as possible. So far as the mother is concerned, you are helping her to get this behind her by giving her an advanced time in which she can move toward this end.

An additional factor that you should keep in mind is this: This is for the benefit of the child and it is the child's welfare that we must keep in mind, because there is no question that a child placed in a home of a childless couple who want the child, people who can give of their love and attention to an offspring—and I know whereof I speak because I am the proud father of two adopted children, God bless them—that child is much better off in the home of that couple than the child would be in the home of a unwed mother. This bill deserves our favorable attention.

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

An Act amending the act of April 29, 1959 (P. L. 58), entitled "The Vehicle Code," regulating the issuance of operators' licenses to persons between sixteen and eighteen years of age restricting their driving privileges and providing penalties.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Fetterolf.

Mr. FETTEROLF. Mr. Speaker, originally I intended to offer two sets of amendments to this bill. However, the one which I consider to be controversial and which I was informed by the majority leader to be controversial I am withdrawing. The second amendment I consider not to be controversial but I do not know the position of the majority leader.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, are these the amendments that strike out the word "highway" and put in "public road"?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is correct, Mr. McCann.

Mr. McCANN. Could I interrogate the gentleman one moment?

This would then apply to every road in every municipality except the bill as it was written pertained to State highways only. Is that correct? This would apply to every highway.

Mr. FETTEROLF. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is correct. The bill as written without the amendment says "on the highways of the Commonwealth." That is x'd out and replaced with the words "on all public highways." That is in order to take care of situations where towns border other State lines to eliminate driving in the other State with a Pennsylvania junior's driver's license.

Mr. FETTEROLF asked unanimous consent to offer an amendment at this time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The amendment will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 604.1), page 5 lines 9 and 10, by striking out "the highways of the Commonwealth" and inserting: any public highway

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of an amendment at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, we are going to agree to the amendment. As I understand it, in checking this out it will make this bill pertain to every road, every public highway, in every municipality including State roads. Therefore, we will accept the amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, that the bill as amended lie over for printing.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I request permission to return to page 4.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. What bill does the gentleman desire to consider on page 4?

Mr. McCANN. May I ask the minority leader if House bill 518 now in its original form that was caucused on is acceptable to be voted on? This bill was caucused on in its prior print and the present print is as it was originally.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I understand amendments were put in here this week restoring the bill to its original form. Am I correct on that?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is what the majority leader stated.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well, Mr. Speaker, we have no particular objection to that if the bill now is in such simplified form that we all know what it is about and that we can understand the highway markings provided in the bill.

We are very interested, of course, in having highway markings that everybody can understand. Now if the bill provides that, we are all for it.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House bill No. 518, entitled:

An Act amending "The Vehicle Code" approved April 29, 1959 (P. L. 58), further providing for no passing zones.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Lippincott, who desires to interrogate the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey.

Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GAILEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I would like the gentleman to explain, and I really do not know the answer to this question, will this bill prohibit passing over a solid white line if a solid white line is painted on a highway?

Mr. GAILEY. Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that this act as it is now before us gives the secretary of highways such powers to designate no-passing zones and to mark the highways by painting and by placing signs to so indicate. Now if the no-passing zone is one-eighth of a mile in length, then, of course, in addition, it need not necessarily be marked with paint, but there must be signs posted at least one-eighth of a mile along its route. So it is my understanding that this would not permit the secretary of highways to designate no-passing zones merely by the use of paint on the highways.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. In other words, there must be signs as well, or at least there must be no-passing zone signs?

Mr. GAILEY. That is my understanding, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. I thank the gentleman.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Centre, Mr. Fulmer.

Mr. FULMER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GAILEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FULMER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, advise me, to the best of his knowledge, if today a motorist is allowed to pass even though there is a solid white line?

Mr. GAILEY. It has always been my understanding, Mr. Speaker, that painted lines on the highway are for the convenience of the motorists only and that in the absence of no-passing signs actually placed along the side of the road, he can pass over them with impunity, provided, however, he has sufficient clear vision ahead of him to enable him to make such pass and he is not in violation of other sections of the code. That is my understanding.

Mr. FULMER. Would the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, advise me and the members of the House whether there will be any design criterion for these signs which are referred to in this bill? For example, would you have the overhead signs four feet off the ground, or would you have any type of specifications to go with these no-passing signs.

Mr. GAILEY. There are none, Mr. Speaker, and, of course, this is in accordance with the general powers that are vested in the secretary of highways to design such road signs. I think the gentleman knows that all highway markings are standard at the present time and are done under the direction of the secretary of highways. He proposes the standards for them. And, of course, one of the reasons for not putting forth specific standards is the attempt by all the States in the Union to bring their signs into uniformity.

Mr. FULMER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman advise us, then, if a person were coming along the highway where the traffic is congested in a line of traffic and here's a sign, for example, five feet off the ground and at this point the driver desires to pass. Now when he passes the car in front of him, it happens to be in the place where the sign is, or the view of the sign is restricted. Now are you saying that if this bill were enacted into law the person would have caused a violation?

Mr. GAILEY. I am not certain I understand the gentleman. Do I understand him to say that if for some reason the view of the sign is restricted so that it is concealed from the motorist?

Mr. FULMER. That is right.

Mr. GAILEY. Then would he be in violation if he passed in such a zone?

Mr. FULMER. That's right.

Mr. GAILEY. It is my feeling, Mr. Speaker, that under those circumstances it would be purely a matter for the court to decide. I think this would be proper grounds for appeal from such conviction if he were prosecuted for it. But this is an answer that other lawyers may quarrel with.

Mr. FULMER. I thank the gentleman. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to trying to make our highways safer for the driving public. However, I am becoming acutely aware of the signs along the highways that cannot be observed by the traveling public. There are signs, for example, that say "passing in the left lane only." Now this is all right if you can see this sign, but if you are coming down the highway and the sign is obstructed by the moving traffic, then the officer, for example, could arrest you for having passed at this particular point. It seems to me that either you ought to provide in the law that these signs have to be visible or that we ought to be sure the Department of Highways is going to make these signs more visible.

I think this may be a step in the right direction and I will take the word of the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, that this is the intent and therefore will vote for the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman.

Mr. BOWMAN. I would like to interrogate the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GAILEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman please tell me that if this bill passes, in what respect is the existing law changed?

Mr. GAILEY. I think, Mr. Speaker, it gives the secretary of highways the power to indicate by markings on the highways as well as the signs which are specifically proposed to be done in the bill. In other words, at the present time it is my understanding no-passing zones may be indicated only by the use of signs. This gives him the legal power to designate such no-passing zones by use of paint in addition to the signs that are already being used.

Mr. BOWMAN. I had hoped that that would be accomplished by the legislation but I do not believe it is. If the gentleman will look at page 3, line 17, beginning with the last word on line 17, it indicates to me that any no-passing zone shall have to have these signs erected which is precisely the present law.

Mr. GAILEY. I am sorry. I did not understand the gentleman. Will he repeat the question? I am not sure it was a question. I think it was a statement. Will he repeat his statement?

Mr. BOWMAN. As I read the last word on line 17 and the next two lines, 18 and 19, it indicates to me that every no-passing zone must have signs.

Mr. GAILEY. That is correct.

Mr. BOWMAN. Well, is that not the present law?

Mr. GAILEY. It is my understanding that that is so, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BOWMAN. Well, then, how have we changed the law?

Mr. GAILEY. Well, as I attempted to explain before, perhaps obscurely, this gives the secretary of highways the right to designate it by paint in addition to no-passing signs. In other words, he has no authority, as I understand it, at the present time to place these markings on the highway clearly to designate no-passing zones. But this gives him that additional right as well as the signs which are presently used.

Mr. BOWMAN. I thank the gentleman from York.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, I was hoping that by this legislation the secretary of highways would be given two distinct alternate rights, to designate no-passing zones by signs. As I read this bill it does not do anything more than the present law provides, with one possible exception. That he has the right, in addition to putting the signs up, to put a marking on the road, which to me is not accomplishing what I believe to be the intent and what I considered to be a good purpose, because, as far as I know, Pennsylvania is the only State in the Nation which does not give legal effect to the paint markings on the road.

I had hoped that by this legislation, paint markings in themselves, quite apart from signs, would have some legal significance and if you crossed them or violated the markings you would be in violation of the law, but I do not think this bill does it. Thank you.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 607.

An Act Amending the act of June 24, 1939 (P. L. 872), entitled "An act to consolidate, amend and revise the penal laws of the Commonwealth" authorizing the production and performance of drama and civil light opera between certain hours on Sundays in cities of the second class.

With the information that the Senate had passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The clerk will read the amendments.

The clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Title, page 1, line 3, by inserting after the word "of" the words "drama and"; line 4, by striking out at the beginning of the line the word "civil" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "civic"; Section 1, page 3, line 6, by inserting after the word "of" the words "drama and" and by striking out immediately thereafter the word "civil" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "civic."

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I request that the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, this bill as it passed the House provided for civic light operas in the city of Pittsburgh. The Senate amendment is adding "drama" to it. The members on our side of the House were all in concurrence on this bill and the members on this side are on their own.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann.

Mr. McCANN. The words that were inserted dealing with drama in the bill provide for the operation of the Pittsburgh Playhouse. This particular operation in the city of Pittsburgh deals with the live drama in the Playhouse operation in summer. The item covered in the original bill pertained to civic light opera which was in the original bill as it left the House. Even though the members are on their own, may I humbly request that they do vote in the affirmative and support the Senate amendments and pass this bill for the purpose of civic light opera and the drama in the Pittsburgh Playhouse.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 637.

An Act Authorizing the Governor to provide for disaster relief under certain circumstances authorizing him to transfer certain funds to a special fund for that purpose and making an appropriation.

With the information that the Senate had passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The clerk will read the amendments.

The clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 1, page 2, by striking out lines 6, 7 and 8, as follows: and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

As used in this act disaster or emergency conditions shall mean those conditions which seriously affect the welfare of a substantial number of citizens of the commonwealth and which were caused by forces beyond the control of man or were caused by factors that were not foreseen and were not known to exist when appropriation bills were enacted.

As used in this act a major disaster occurs or emergency conditions exist when the governor officially proclaims that he has made an investigation and finding to that effect and shall cease when the governor officially proclaims that a major disaster or emergency conditions ceases to exist.

Section 2, page 3, line 4, by striking out after the word "effect" the word "immediately," and inserting in lieu thereof the word and figures "June 1, 1961."

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I request that the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For what purpose does the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Lippincott, rise?

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Mr. Speaker, for the benefit of a number of members on our side of the House, I would like the Chair to rule whether we are voting on the amendments inserted by the Senate or whether we are voting on the bill itself as amended.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will read the portion of the rule which applies to the question asked by the gentleman from Delaware. Rule 76 of the House:

"When acting on bills or joint resolutions amended by the Senate, the amendments shall be read and the question put, on the concurrence in the amendments."

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Well, Mr. Speaker, suppose the Senate completely changed the purpose of the bill by the amendments, would we not then be voting on a new bill in its amended form rather than on the amendments themselves?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. While the gentleman's statement is partially correct, you would still be voting on the amendments inserted in the bill by the Senate and while those amendments might change completely the original intent of the bill, you would still be voting on the amendments inserted by the Senate, either to agree or not to agree.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. And yet, to adopt an amendment normally, only a simple majority is required, while a constitutional majority is required in this case, is that correct?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. A constitutional majority is required to concur in the Senate amendments. That is a provision in the Constitution.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. I thank the Chair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is Article III, section 5: "No amendment to bills by one House shall be concurred in by the other except by a majority of the members elected thereto."

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I should like to interrogate the majority leader, please.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the majority leader permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, on this bill may I yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FINEMAN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, one of the amendments inserted in this bill on page 3, line 4, is that instead of the act becoming effective immediately, they have made it effective June 1, 1961. Is there some disaster defined in this act that they are trying to cover by this bill?

Mr. FINEMAN. I am sorry. Would the gentleman repeat the last part of that?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Is there some disaster which has occurred since June 1 of this year that they are trying to cover in this bill?

Mr. FINEMAN. Not that I know of.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I am scratching my head and wondering why they make it effective on that date instead of letting it go and making it effective immediately.

Mr. FINEMAN. I do not have the answer to that. It puzzled me also, but in my mind it is inconsequential.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, we are asking the members on our side of the House to vote "no" on this motion to concur. We think the definition inserted by the Senate, defining diaster, is entirely too liberal. We have no objection to the creation of the disaster fund of $5 million, but we think the definition in connection with what constitutes a disaster is a little bit too loose.

Therefore, we are asking the members on this side of the House to vote "no" on this concurrence.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 868.

An Act amending the act of June 24, 1939 (P. L. 872), entitled "An act to consolidate amend and revise the penal laws of the Commonwealth" authorizing the production and performance of basketball ice shows and ice hockey between certain hours on Sundays in cities of the first and second class.

With the information that the Senate had passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The clerk will read the amendments.

The clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Title, page 1, line 3, by inserting after the word "of" the word "basketball"; Section 1, page 3, line 6, by inserting after the word "in" the word "basketball".

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I request that the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Cameron desire to be recognized?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I call the attention of the House to the fact that when this bill passed the House it passed to authorize ice hockey and ice shows on Sunday. The Senate amended the bill by adding "basketball" to the provisions of the bill. The bill in its amended form provides for basketball, ice hockey and ice shows.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann.

Mr. McCANN. House bill 868, when it passed the House, did precisely what the gentleman stated and, if you recall the debate, this pertained to the construction of a new arena in the city of Pittsburgh. And in that arena, the bill that we passed pertained to ice shows and ice hockey to be played or shown on Sunday afternoons as designated in the bill. In addition, the Pittsburgh professional basketball team—and I apologize for not knowing the new name of the team—the Pittsburgh Wrens, are now in practice in Waynesburg, which professional basketball will come back to the city of Pittsburgh with the coming schedule. Therefore, we ask that basketball be included in this so it may be played at the new civic arena in the city of Pittsburgh, along with ice shows and ice hockey. I ask for an affirmative vote of this House on this proposed legislation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, our members are on their own on this bill.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

BILL RE-REFERRED

Mrs. REIBMAN from the Committee on Education, returned with the recommendation that it be re-referred to the Committee on Townships, House bill No. 1118, entitled:

An Act amending "The Second Class Township Code," approved May 1, 1933 (P. L. 103), authorizing the regulation and licensing of pawnbrokers, hucksters, peddlers, vendors and public auctions and auctioneers.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The bill is re-referred to the Committee on Townships.

ANNOUNCEMENTS BY MAJORITY LEADER

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, there are committee announcements of some committee meetings tomorrow morning, which I hope the membership will record and attend. This House will convene tomorrow at 10 a.m. As soon as the desk is cleared there will be a caucus of the respective parties. There are no other bills on this calendar which can be voted on before a caucus. The caucus will go straight from the floor, and I hope we can plan the time accordingly because House bill 283 and other major pieces of legislation will be gone over in caucus tomorrow, then debated, both amendments and bills on the floor.

Assuming that we go in at 10, we will probably caucus in the neighborhood of approximately 11 o'clock. We will caucus on all final passage bills and all Senate bills and all concurrences not acted on today, plus resolutions. We will have a break for lunch. I would say to the membership we will be leaving here tomorrow but we have no assurance of the actual time that we can finish tomorrow. We hope to finish sometime between 4 and 6 o'clock. When tomorrow's session is over, this calendar, of course, will be moving downward with the final committee meetings, almost all of them, on House bills, and then it will be mostly Senate bills to finish up. The following week we will be here four days, with a possibility of a fifth day, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and if necessary, Friday.

I would ask the membership to plan their schedules accordingly and come prepared tomorrow for another full, long, working day.

I hope the members will stay for the committee announcements.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, the reason I wanted recognition was to interrogate the majority leader, and just then he did express over the microphone that we will be ready tomorrow to caucus. We have reviewed the bills and I believe in our caucus we will cover practically the entire calendar so we can clean it up pretty thoroughly before we adjourn tomorrow.

CAUCUSES

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the majority leader.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, we will request, in a minute or two, a recess for the purpose of a caucus covering the bills. We will ask for a period of one and one-half hours for caucus. Our caucus would be over by approximately 11:30. We will then ask for a break so we may have lunch and then return to the floor.

I would like to ask the minority leader if one and one-half hours for caucus, and probably 30 to 35 minutes for lunch, returning between 12:30 and 12:45 d. s. t. to start to move on steadily from there would be agreeable to him?

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, that would be agreeable to this side. We will caucus immediately for one hour and a half, and then have lunch for one-half hour and be back here in two hours.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask that all the Democratic members proceed immediately to the new House Caucus Room and bring their House calendars with them. The sooner we get done with the caucus, the sooner we can come back here and start to work.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, the same goes for the Republican side. Bring your calendars and go forthwith to the caucus room.

RECESS

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the Chair will declare a recess of two hours.

The Chair hears none, and a recess is declared.

AFTER RECESS

The time of recess having expired, the House was called to order.

The SPEAKER (Hiram G. Andrews) IN THE CHAIR

The SPEAKER. We will resolve ourselves briefly into a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of hearing a distinguished visitor, Representative Harrison Chadwick, who has been a member of the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He is here accompanied by Evander French, a government major at Tufts University.

Representative Chadwick is primarily interested in the operation of an electric roll call system and he wants to find out from the experts how our system works; what changes, if any, are suggested if they were to put in one, and he also wants to observe our operations from other angles.

It is with great pleasure that I present to the members of the House Representative Harrison Chadwick of Massachusetts, representing the General Assembly of that Commonwealth.

ADDRESS BY REPRESENTATIVE HARRISON CHADWICK

Mr. CHADWICK. Mr. Speaker, I assure you and all the members that it is a great privilege for me to be allowed to stand here and speak briefly to the members of the Assembly of our sister Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

We of Massachusetts observe frequently what you do here. We have tried to compete with you in some of your records, and I must report that you have outdistanced us. And I am speaking of one or two of the marathon sessions you have held. We ran last year until Thanksgiving morning, at which time we adjourned, and then we came back a few days later in a special session. We stayed then until Christmastime. I believe you have bettered that record. The newspapers panned us to such an extent that this year we decided to do things differently and consequently we got out in the latter part of May. In order to do that we were compelled to meet virtually five days a week, both in the afternoon and in the evening, and we had a great many evening sessions which we did not like. Hence my intense interest in the electric roll call system.

Since we have more members than you, with 240 House members, it takes us approximately 25 minutes to have a recorded vote. If you multiply that by the number of bills that must be voted upon, you can see something of our dilemma and may wonder how we honestly did manage to get out by the end of May.

Having said that, maybe I might just make one other comment so you may start your session today. I have long been interested in the State legislative progress and it has been with great regret that it has appeared to me, at least, as a trend that the State legislatures have yielded some of their prestige and authority to the Federal Government in Washington. It is my great hope that the State legislatures will be restored to a more influential position within their sovereign State lines.

I attended the Harvard commencement last week and I noted with great interest that the Graduate School of Business Administration had 600-odd members graduating in its class; the Law School had over 500; the School of Public Administration had 46. This, I think, is a commentary which we need to take note of. It is unfortunate that more of our young people do not feel the appeal for service in the fields of government that many of us have come to discover as such a worthwhile preoccupation of our time. I think if there are any observations I could make on dangerous trends at the State level, I would say that in Massachusetts, at least, there is the trend to a greater and greater per capita indebtedness, and I wonder sometimes how the future generation is going to be able to pay it off.

This, Mr. Speaker, I think constitutes briefly a little summation of why I am here, some of my interest in being here.

If I might speak just one moment on behalf of my traveling companion who is a major in government at Tufts University and a high ranking student, and a captain of teams in two sports, I would say that he also is interested in government. He was here at Williamsport some years ago, a winning pitcher up to the point of the consolation game, and so he is returning to Pennsylvania now for quite a different purpose, but he, like myself, is most happy and most appreciative of the opportunity to be with you.

Mr. Speaker, I thank you for this chance.

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks our distinguished visitor and, if there are no objections, the Committee of the Whole will now arise.

BIRTHDAY

The SPEAKER. The Chair understands that this is the birthday of the honorable gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. PERRY.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Dengler.

Mr. DENGLER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia is named "Peter," so let us sing "Happy birthday, dear Peter."

I suggest that the gentleman from Massachusetts listen very closely, because I think this is the best singing legislature in the United States.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. PERRY.

Mr. PERRY. Mr. Speaker, I wish to thank the fine gentlemen and gracious ladies, the members of this House, for the warm birthday greetings. It is a distinct pleasure to be associated with you. In turn, I wish all of you the best that life has to offer.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, while the House is at ease, could we take a moment to ask Mr. Dengler to explain to us why a day or two ago he indicated to various people that he did not believe there was too much wrong with the public address system. He has some points he would like to cover, and I think they will be helpful.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes Mr. Dengler, who has been for a great many years, I understand, a radio announcer and has functioned in other matters of the kind. Let us have a word from Mr. Dengler regarding the technique of broadcasting.

Mr. DENGLER. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am glad to have this opportunity to speak on this subject.

I have been associated with radio and television since 1922, and I think we have done our operator up here in the balcony an injustice by blaming him for a lot of things that are really our fault.

The first thing that is wrong with this PA system is this: When the Chaplain has the invocation, this House is quiet and you can understand every word and syllable that he utters. So, the first requisite for this PA system to work well is that the people listen and that there is not a noise pattern. I think this is a good PA system. I do not think there is anything wrong with it.

There are certain things that we should do when we get up to this microphone, if I may be so presumptuous as to try to teach; I guess I will forever be a teacher. First of all, when you get up to this microphone you want to be sure that you are speaking into the microphone. I am now about four inches away from this microphone. I will now move back eight inches. Notice the difference? I am out here and there is not half the intensity of the sound; it is now one-fourth the intensity of the sound because it is the square of the distance. That is a physical law. If you move away back here, I am speaking at about the same intensity. Now you move up and you have a decided change in the intensity. That is the first point: Speak into the microphone and keep your direction.

The second point I would like to bring to your attention is that you have to raise your voice to a certain degree. I notice that some people come up to the microphone and then speak something like this, and immediately the operator has to pull up what we call the VI, the voltage intensity, and then you pull in a lot of noises that are surrounding this microphone. You have to move away, in other words, to give a little bit of "oomph" to your voice. We can understand our majority leader very well because when he speaks, he speaks right into it and he speaks with some degree of voice intensity.

The third point that I have here is this, and I am guilty of this: Sometimes you come up here and you change the direction of your voice. These microphones are highly directional. You cannot pull off to the side this way or this way. You have to keep speaking. Remember, this is a mechanical instrument and it has to be treated as a mechanical instrument.

The fourth point is this: do not get dramatic. You cannot all of a sudden shout in these things, and then get away down here. This fellow up here is not ready for it. If you had a radio program, you would rehearse and he would know the high levels and the low levels. But when you get up before this microphone you cannot shout and then all of a sudden reduce the intensity. In other words, if you want to get dramatic, I would suggest that you have a special session with the operator so he knows the high spots and the low spots in your speech, and he will pull you up or pull you down as the case may be.

The fifth and last point is this: This is a large room and you have to give the sound a chance to bounce off these walls and come back before the next sound is uttered. I believe, ladies and gentlemen and Mr. Speaker, I have never heard a better PA system anywhere than this one, and I do not think we need to change it one bit; I do not think we need to change whatever the setup is now; and I do not think we should blame the operator. I think we should be a little more careful when we get before the microphone so that it is set properly, so that we keep the voice at about the same intensity and that we do the job here rather than expecting the PA system to do some super things that it cannot possible do.

I am grateful for this time, and I hope it will do some good. Thank you.

The SPEAKER. The Chair certainly thanks Mr. Dengler.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

BILLS MADE SPECIAL ORDERS OF BUSINESS

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I request permission to call bills under a special order of business.

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears no objection.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the first bill under the special order of business is House bill No. 1663, printer's No. 2352 on page 11 of today's calendar, bills on final passage.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House bill No. 1663, entitled:

An Act amending the "Selective Sales and Use Tax Act" approved March 6, 1956 (P. L. 1228), defining and creating an exemption for processing.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the vote by which this bill passed third reading be reconsidered.

Mr. WORLEY. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. WORLEY asked unanimous consent to offer an amendment at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendment will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, line 11, by striking out "of" where it appears the first time, and inserting: canning or

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of an amendment at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

The SPEAKER. Are these amendments accepted or are they debatable? Are they controversial?

Mr. McCANN. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley.

Mr. WORLEY. Mr. Speaker, I consulted the Legislative Reference Bureau and I have been informed that these amendments are necessary to clearly cover the situation of canning and processing of foods. They suggest that the words "canning or" be inserted as the amendments require.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the amendments offered by the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley, under line 11, dealing with the food industry, the cooking, freezing of fruits, vegetables, mushrooms, fish, seafood, meats or poultry, when a person engaged in such business packages such property in sealed containers for wholesale distribution, is covered in this section, and I ask that the amendments be opposed if they are in that category.

I wish a record roll call vote so we will save time on each of these amendments and so there will be no difficulty.

Mr. WORLEY. Mr. Speaker, I am informed by the Legislative Reference Bureau that the word "canning" should be in there, and the next bill also amended to conform with it so that it includes any fruits or vegetables that might be canned that would not be cooked. In other words, it will catch all possibilities of processing and canning. I recommend that the amendments be adopted.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

Mr. PURSLEY asked and obtained unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

Mr. McCANN. On line 13, page 3, under subsection 6, "The preparation of animal feed or poultry feed for sale" is defined in exact words. I wonder if the gentleman would care to withdraw the amendments?

Mr. PURSLEY. Mr. Speaker, I do.

The SPEAKER. The amendments are withdrawn.

Mr. WILLARD asked unanimous consent to offer an amendment at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendment will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 4, by inserting between lines 17 and 18:

(11) Producing prefabricated houses buildings and similar structures.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of an amendment at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Mercer, Mr. Willard.

Mr. WILLARD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to speak briefly on the amendments.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order.

Mr. WILLARD. Mr. Speaker, we have some contracting companies that manufacture buildings. They buy their steel, their sheeting, their lumber, that go into the manufacturing process. They do not erect these, but they fabricate these before erection. Then they are moved from their places of business out into outlying districts for erection. I believe they should be classed as manufacturers on account of the technical work they have to do. I thank you.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the majority leader.

Mr. McCANN. I rise to oppose the amendments offered by the gentleman, Mr. Willard, the exact language being, "producing prefabricated houses, buildings and similar structures." Estimated loss of revenue under this proposed language in the state-wide sales and use tax act would be between $20 and $30 million, and I ask that they be opposed.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Mercer, Mr. Willard.

Mr. WILLARD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the majority leader, please.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Mercer desires to interrogate the majority leader.

Will the majority leader consent?

Mr. McCANN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WILLARD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know where we get this $25 million loss in revenue? It is a question of use tax or sales tax, is it not? The manufacturer would have to charge a sales tax and the producer would have to charge a use tax. Are we going to lose any revenue? It is just a question of interpretation.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, under these amendments, the revenue would be lost under the construction of homes, whether prefabricated or similar structures, which would be all buildings and houses built in this Commonwealth, and, in this field alone, all these would be removed from the sales tax. In the manufacturing at the company level of the prefabricated home, then, going to the present erection of the property, it is in this field that this was discussed, and the similar structures which are contained in your amendments, have by the Attorney General's office, definitely been defined as a tremendous loss of revenue.

Mr. WILLARD. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. HELM IN THE CHAIR

Messrs. GOODRICH, DAVIS and K. B. LEE asked unanimous consent to offer an amendment at this time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The amendment will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 4, by inserting between lines 17 and 18:

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Sullivan, Mr. Lee.

Mr. K. B. LEE. Mr. Speaker, this amendment would take the manufacturing of lumber out of the sales and use tax. I believe the original intent of the bill as it originally was enacted by the House, intended that this manufacturing process should be included in the definition.

It is an important industry in Pennsylvania, and I ask the members on both sides to support the amendment.

Will the House agree to the amendment?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, these amendments are being offered to strike out as an exemption, the words, "the production processing and bottling of non-alcoholic beverages for wholesale distribution."

The reasons for offering these strike-out amendments are these: This amendment was inserted the other evening when there was practically no one here on the floor. Many of us thought the amendments to be offered were corrective amendments and we did not realize that this particular classification was being inserted. I am not saying that there was any bad faith or anything, but it was purely a misunderstanding as to what the amendments did.

I am offering these amendments today so that the membership will have a chance to vote on whether they want as an exclusion, "the production processing and bottling of non-alcoholic beverages for whole distribution." If these amendments carry, they would be stricken out of the bill.

I believe I should say for the purposes of clarification, if the soft drink industry is classed as manufacturing, this exemption would do this, if you wanted to go into the soft drink business, when you built the manufacturing plant, you would pay a 4 percent sales tax on the construction of the building. The machinery, however, that went directly into the manufacturing process would be exempt from the sales tax. Likewise, the raw material going into the product that is being manufactured or processed would not be taxed through the manufacturer. However, the soft drink, when it is finally put together as a product and sold at retail, would be subject to the retail sales tax just like any other commodity.

Likewise, as stated previously by Mr. Willard, when they come to sell the prefabricated houses, they would be subject to the 4 percent sales tax just like houses are today. The only effect of Mr. Willard's amendments would be that the manufacturer of prefabricated houses would pay a sales tax when he built his plant, but would be exempt on his machinery that went directly into the manufacturing, but the office equipment, anything that went into the administration, would be subject to the sales tax.

These amendments are not as far-reaching as one might think, when you consider that a great deal of the products and the activities of manufacturing are subject to the sales tax even though they are exempt from the sales tax. So in this case, as I see it, the soft drink people would be exempt from paying a sales tax on the raw material going into the soft drink. They would have to pay a tax on their plant, their administrative equipment, their office equipment, and the only items that would be exempt would be the machinery that they would install to make the soft drink.

I think the House should know this, and I am offering these amendments to give this House an opportunity to reflect their sentiments on whether these people should be exempt or not.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the majority leader.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the amendments offered by the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson, to House bill 1663.

I would like to clear a point that I am thankful he indicated; the technical amendments, which we had discussed, and then the other amendments, which are lines 14, 15 and 16 of this bill. There is a second set of amendments that were agreed to be put into the bill. These should have been caucused on in both caucuses. By placing it in this new position, we are now in the position of affirming if it should be in the bill.

I ask that our membership vote "no" on the amendments offered by the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. A. W. JOHNSON and McCANN and were as follows:

AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILL No. 1664 WITHDRAWN

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, could I then at this point ask whether the Representatives who have amendments to House Bill 1664 are going to withdraw them at this point? One indicated he would withdraw now. Will there be amendments offered?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the minority leader.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I believe as long as the amendments to 1663 apply with the same force and effect to 1664, as far as I am concerned, I will not offer my set of amendments. I believe Mr. Willard does not intend to, and I believe that goes for the rest of the members. They wanted to be considered, I am sure, that they had offered amendments to 1664 and that the vote was the same. If any of them want to change it, I wish they would get up and do so.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House bill No. 1664, printer's No. 2353, bills on final passage.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House bill No. 1450, printer's No. 2376.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House bill No. 1450, entitled:

An Act amending the "Liquor Code" approved April 12, 1951 (P. L. 90), authorizing licenses for the retail sale of liquor and malt or brewed beverages on city premises in cities of the first class under certain terms and conditions and to be known as public event licenses.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, I would like to make a very brief statement on House bill No. 1450 regarding the amendments that have been introduced and made part of the bill. Apparently some of the hotels and liquor licensees were concerned that the city might be competing with them. There was no such thought in mind or intended.

It was done in order to make it absolutely clear that we only had Convention Hall in mind, and in so doing we are attempting to bring this situation in line with the International Airport, when they vote for the amendments the City would be permitted to put this in effect only at Convention Hall in Philadelphia. I would ask everyone's support for the bill.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House bill No. 283, printer's No. 308, bills on third reading.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 283, entitled:

An Act providing for the regulation of lobbying requiring registration of lobbyists keeping accounts of contributions and of receipts and expenditures reports and statements under oath by lobbyists and persons receiving contributions or expending money to influence legislation.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HOLMAN asked unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The amendments will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Sec. 2, page 2, lines 13 to 16, by striking out "any committee association or" in line 13, all of lines 14 to 16, and inserting: any duly organized State or local committee of a political party.

Amend Sec. 3, page 3, line 3, by inserting a paranthesis after "act"

Amend Sec. 3, page 3, line 3 and 4, by striking out "or a duly organized State or local committee of a political party")"

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair heafs none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Perry, Mr. Holman.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I find it somewhat amazing that these amendments have not been agreed to. Briefly what they do is this: Generally they would bring unions under the coverage of this act. Specifically they would exempt any duly organized State or local committee of either political party and exempt such committee only.

Now, I would like to ask the question, why are unions exempt in the first instance, and why should organizations representing teachers, school directors, churches, business men, farmers and many others have to register and report under the provisions of this act while unions would not? I ask further why should unions be permitted to run at large and unrestrained while other groups interested in the passage or defeat of legislation are subject to regulation?

You will note on the calendar that House bill 884 would take away the prohibition against unions contributing to political parties. Now, if there is any question whatsoever as to the applicability of this lobbying bill to unions, I certainly think that would be an academic question when 884 is passed.

I have before me the Pennsylvania A. F. L.—C. I. O. House calendar which has been delivered to members for some time. On this calendar is House bill 283, which covers financial reports and which is favored by the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. Mr. Speaker, I think I would be for that bill also if I were exempted from it.

Now, unions spend quite a bit of money on lobbying activities, how much we will never know if the majority party votes in a block. I sincerely hope they will not do so because I feel that the lobby registration bill is to the best interest of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and I feel that these amendments are in the best interest of the people of this Commonwealth.

I would therefore respectfully request the members on both sides of the aisle to support these amendments and make this bill a better lobby regulation bill. I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of a bona fide lobbying bill. I am also in favor of this amendment because it would place all categories of our economy in the same status. Labor is now a first-class group of citizens and should have first-class responsibilities.

The way this bill is drawn up and with the amendment being defeated, it will make House bill 283 absolutely a nullity.

Let me call this to your attention: On page 2, subparagraph 4, "Political committee" includes any committee association or organization which accepts contributions or makes expenditures for the purpose of influencing or attempting to influence the election of candidates . . ."

The word "candidate" is defined in the election code as any person who is a candidate in a primary or general election. "Political committee" is defined in the election code as follows:

"Every two or more persons who shall be elected, appointed, or chosen who have associated themselves and cooperate for the purpose, wholly or in part, wholly or in part, I repeat, "of raising, collecting or disbursing money, or of controlling or directing the raising, collection or disbursement of money for primary or election expenses."

If we pass this bill in its present form every lobbyist in Pennsylvania will be exempt from the act. Let me point out why and how:

Labor, of course, would be exempt by forming, for example, a non-partisan political action committee and file an expense account for $150 or less for its political activity and file no account whatsoever for lobbying activities. I am quite certain the businessmen of this State are not stupid either. So they will form the wool-growers political action committee, and the wool-growers political action committee will do the same thing.

The bill, the way it is written today, is an open door for fraud. If you believe in a bona fide lobbying regulation, then you should take out the words "political committee" from this bill completely.

I say the bill in its present state would mean nothing. When the bill goes into force, or is passed by the Governor in its present form, every person who is a libbyist in the State of Pennsylvania who represents an association or group will form a political action committee for the purpose of electing somebody back in his own county, file an expense account with the election bureau and not be compelled to account for any activity in Harrisburg whatsoever.

Because this bill is meaningless in its present state we should vote for the amendment. We certainly should not allow a bill to be passed when we are kidding the people.

The fundamental reason this bill is in such bad shape is this: The scriveners of this bill took two acts of Congress, the lobbying bill and the corrupt practices act, incorporated them into one bill and they have no relationship to the situation in the State of Pennsylvania.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. HOLMAN and A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr., and were as follows:

Amend Sec. 2, page 2, line 11, by inserting after "corporation" labor union or labor organization

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of an amendment at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, in the interest of saving time, lines 10 to 12 on page 2 of this bill define "Person" as an individual, partnership, committee, association or corporation. I have added the words "labor union or labor organization." My purpose is exactly the same as the gentleman's from Perry, Mr. Holman; my arguments are exactly the same, and I assume, unfortunately, that the vote will be absolutely the same.

However, I think that in fairness, the unions in Pennsylvania should not only not resist amendments like these but should be proposing such amendments.

I thank you.

Amend Sec. 3, page 3, line 15, by inserting after "wealth" or any of its political subdivisions

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of an amendment at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, these amendments are quite simple. The act now reads:

This act shall not apply to officers and employees of the Commonwealth when acting in their official capacities.

As amended, it would read:

This act shall not apply to officers and employees of the Commonwealth or any of its political subdivisions when acting in their official capacities.

If you pass this bill in its present state, if the mayor in the city of Pittsburgh or the mayor of Philadelphia or any councilman desires to come down here and participate in the passage or defeat of legislation, he will have to register as a lobbyist. It will mean that the lobbying act will be overwhelmed by registrations and thousands of representatives of local government.

I am certain the majority does not want that to occur, and I think it ought to be passed on a bipartisan basis.

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, in view of the very able presentation by Messrs. Fulmer, Goldstein and Williams, and our having pointed out the several defects in this bill and the utter discrimination in the bill, I do not see how anybody can really fairly and squarely vote for this bill.

I therefore ask the members on this side of the House and in this House to vote against the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the majority leader.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask the membership of the entire House to vote in favor of House bill 283, lobbyist registration bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, will the majority leader permit himself to be interrogated?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the majority leader permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, we have just seen two attempts to place organized labor within the concept of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, would the majority leader tell this House if there are any other similar groups which will be exempt from this law if it passes?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I could not define any other groups that I know of. However, after I listened to Mr. Goldstein's debate I suppose many groups would be exempt if he were correct in what they would have to eventually do. But I could not, Mr. Speaker, define any.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, would the committee on political education have to report under this bill if it passes?

Mr. McCANN. The political action committee? I do not know if they would have to register; I do not believe they lobby on any legislation, although I suppose in one place or another, after listening to the new committees they could form, there are items that could be included.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I thank the gentleman.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, will the majority leader consent to be interrogated?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Will the majority leader state whether or not my explanation is correct after he reviewed sections 3 and 2, that any group that associates itself with a political committee, regardless of whether it is labor or business, would be exempt from this act?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I did not answer the question because we talked about a new committee that they could form. I believe you meant subsection 4, on page 2, line 13, is that correct, sir?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Well, I will repeat and tell you what I mean. I think this is an important bill and we ought to give it as much attention as a fishing measure, or something like that.

Section 3 reads as follows:

Persons to Whom Act if Applicable The provisions of this act shall apply to any person (except a political committee as defined in section 2 of this act. . .

Of course, it goes on to say "a duly organized State" committee. I am not referring to that.

Now, a political committee, on page 2, lines 13 to 16 inclusive, is defined and is exempted from the act:

"Political committee" includes any committee association or organization which accepts contributions or makes expenditures for the purpose of influencing or attempting to influence the election of candidates. . .

If a committee of the Wool Growers Association in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, decides to organize for political purposes, would it not be exempt under this act?

Mr. McCANN. If under sub-definition on 4, dealing as you specifically stated; under section 3 we except a political committee as defined in section 2. My question of course would be, Mr. Speaker, that a political committee dealing with the election of a candidate is one item, a political committee dealing with the passage, or enactment, or assisting in the enactment or passage of legislation would be another item. If the committee only dealt with the election, the answer, I believe, that Mr. Goldstein made would be correct. But suppose that committee also, besides dealing with an election, dealt with legislation in an attempt to enact, would it not, under the other exception, be subject to registration under this act?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. No, Mr. Speaker, because the words "political committee" have been defined in the election code as a committee that acts for political purpose wholly or in part. Therefore, you will have the Wool Growers Association acting as a political action committee for lobbying purposes and also for election purposes.

I would like to vote for a bona fide lobbying bill, but I am afraid that when this bill is passed it will have no effect upon anybody in the State of Pennsylvania. That is the reason I ask this very serious question on whether or not we should re-define it to make sure that certain groups do not escape its provisions.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, we believe this bill which was drawn by various learned attorneys working in this field, without a doubt, has certain merits and I would hope that the membership would support this bill. Perhaps it is not perfect—I do not say that it is—but I would say if you get the proper act on the books I believe you can move in the right direction in fulfilling the goals that you are seeking in that field. I cannot answer the gentleman's question as to what they could do. I realize that they are chartered in other fields to do certain things. Perhaps they could move in the direction he speaks of; I could not be sure except to say that under the definition that he mentioned, when they engage in the election of individual candidates, or presidential or vice presidential electors, they would be exempt under section 2. That would be sure.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, I want to be brief. The scriveners of this bill may be good lawyers, but all they did was get hold of two acts. They took two acts of Congress and 90 percent of the bills, and the terminology of the lobbying bill and the Corrupt Practices Act, and they made a bill which is vague and uncertain and which will defeat a good purpose.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Schaaf.

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, there are some members in this House, when it becomes uncomfortable to vote for a bill, their excuse and justification for their vote is that the bill does not accomplish its intended purpose. To my way of thinking that is not good thinking. I say, if this is deficient legislation, as some members suggest, then future sessions of the General Assembly can repair those deficiencies. But I think it is safe to say that the Democratic Party has always stood for this type of legislation and we know what has happened in prior sessions of the General Assembly.

Mr. Speaker, we want their vote.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For what purpose does the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein, rise?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.
Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Erie inferred that I tried to escape voting for this bill because I am seeking an excuse. I am not seeking an excuse.

I have voted for measures when they were dangerous. I will say the same thing to him that I said to a certain gentleman some weeks ago: I would like to see him cross the party line when he knows the other side is right, when his own conscience dictated they were right. But he never does so; he votes straight down the line regardless of the merits of the bill.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For what purpose does the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Schaaf, rise?

Mr. SCHAAF. I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, my learned colleague, my esteemed friend, is much too sensitive. With reference to my party line adherence, I would suggest that he just watch the board. That is all.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Adams.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the majority leader.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, would the administrators of a hospital who invited the legislators to sit down with them for dinner to discuss legislation be required to register as lobbyists?

Mr. McCANN. If he sat down to dinner with them for the purpose of enacting the passage or defeat of any legislation by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as on lines 9 and 10, section 3 on page 3, yes.

Mr. ADAMS. Does that include mental health associations? Presidents of universities?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, when you say mental health, what do you mean, mental health citizens associations? Do you mean the Department of Public Welfare? What do you mean? Will you define it for me?

Mr. ADAMS. Local or county mental health organizations, private citizens who have a group formed for the purpose of furthering mental health.

Mr. McCANN. My answer would be, yes. The only exception, on page 3, that you read is: "This act shall not apply to officers and employes of the Commonwealth when acting in their official capacities." The Department of Welfare, no; our proper welfare people in their duty in the Commonwealth or whatever their position may be. The other associations I believe, and I say this in a general term, yes.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, would this include superintendents of schools?

Mr. McCANN. A superintendent of schools, I believe, is an employ of the school district in a respective area and not an employ, a direct employe, of the Commonwealth. It would be my honest opinion that the superintendent of schools is within this category. The answer would be, yes.

Mr. ADAMS. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I could go on and on with many other similar categories, but I would like to be on the record that these people and similar groups are included, would have to be included as lobbyists, so when the editorial writers start to call us bad boys for voting against this bill and these people start believing it, that they know who is included in the bill and who is not.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, in this very, very important piece of legislation the silence of the usually vocal majority leader and majority party is deafening as to why labor unions are excluded from this act.

We have heard discussion on the technical defects of the bill, and I concur that there are many. We have heard discussion on little Mr. A and little Mr. B, this little organization, that little organization definitely being included within the provisions of this act, requiring them to register and reveal financial information.

What we have not heard is why the powerful, influential and admittedly important labor unions, labor organizations, are excluded from the provisions of this act.

Now they tell us, pass the bill even though it is insufficient, we will correct it in the future. I have heard that song so many times and I have also seen the ultimate results of poor legislation. They are thrown out by the courts; they are administratively unworkable. I say to you from the point of view of bill drafting, this is an unworkable, unintelligent bill at this time. Perhaps that is not the most important element of it. The bad feature of it is: Why, why in Heaven's name are labor unions exempted? Can anyone give me a good explanation? I would like to hear it, today, now. This is important. Get up and tell us why labor unions are exempted from the provisions of this act. If you can persuade me I will vote for the bill; if you cannot persuade me I will certainly vote against it.

Mr. GAILEY. Mr. Speaker, I think the debate in the House today has served, not to enlighten the membership of the House as to what is in this bill, but only to obscure it.

I want to make a number of points. I want to make them categorically without any hedging and without any maybes.

In my opinion, labor organizations are included within the scope of the bill. I do not think there is any question about it. I grant it is true that the arm of political labor, known as the Committee on Political Education, which is the committee they use, as I understand it, in elections to expend funds on behalf of various candidates would be exempt since it is a political committee. I defy anyone, however, to read section 3 on page 3 of this bill and tell me that labor organizations do not fall within the scope of this. It says "any person . . . who by himself or through any agent . . . directly or indirectly solicits, collects or receives money to be used principally to aid or the principal purpose of which person is to aid in the accomplishment of—" these purposes and then it sets them forth.

Turning also to page 7 of the bill, there are two sections that deal with this. It says, "Any person who engages himself for pay or for any consideration." This would obviously encompass those employes of labor organizations who are hired by labor organizations to come to us here in the halls of the legislature to present their point of view on bills, just as it would include the paid employes of the National Manufacturers' Association, The Pennsylvania Railroad and other people who have a vested and quite proper interest in the legislation which comes before us. I think there is no question about it, and I think for members who stand in the hall of this House and say that labor organizations are exempt is misstatement. I do not think there is any question about it whatsoever.

I would like to point out something else. I think perhaps, too, that the majority leader was misinformed when in answer to interrogation by the gentleman from Berks he said he thought that school superintendents, the president of a hospital board, and so forth, would be included within the purview of the act and would have to register. I call attention once again to these same two sections, and these are the sections that tell you when you have to register and what you have to do.

Section 3 says, "any person who . . . solicits, collects or receives money" for this purpose. I think it is highly unrealistic to say that the superintendent of your local hospital or the superintendent of your local school system is receiving money or collecting or soliciting for this purpose. He is paid a salary to do his job, but it is not for this purpose and I do not think he would be included within the purview of this act.

Once again, on page 7, in section 8, it says, "Any person who engages himself for pay or for any consideration for the purpose of attempting to influence the passage" of legislation. Once again, it is my opinion, and I think the language is perfectly clear that people in this category would be excluded, and your local superintendent of schools could come up here and buttonhole you and take you out to dinner if he wanted, and he would not have to register as a lobbyist under this act.

Once again, Mr. Speaker, this is legislation we have needed desperately up here for years. It is only fair to the people of Pennsylvania and to those of us in the halls of this legislature to know who is working up here, for what purpose, how much they are spending, and what they are spending it on. I suggest to you that if we hide behind the argument that this bill does not go far enough, it has loopholes, is to fly in the face of what it says directly in its content and that we should vote for this bill and vote for it overwhelmingly.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I answered the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Adams.

I do not know whether, when the superintendent of schools, or, we will say a school teacher, meets with a member of the General Assembly here in Harrisburg and is part of the educational committee of the county organization, that superintendent of schools would fall under this act. When a part, for example, of the PSEA county unit meeting here in Harrisburg to discuss legislation with you, certainly there would not be any inference or thought that if you met with the county board of school directors or the superintendent of schools in your county in discussing legislation that they would be registering, but I believe these people do serve on the various committees. I believe I am correct on this, that meeting with, helping to either adopt, defeat or enact legislation—and with that thought in mind I answered Mr. Adams very correctly.

Now take specific examples. If Mr. Bowman's question is correct, a labor union in Pennsylvania, whether it be a local of a union or the union itself in its name, let us specifically take United Steel Workers, which would be a large steel union, or take a local of that steel union, if you will, and in your opinion, if these people were engaged in trying to do exactly what this bill says, they would register. They would list their reports. They fall under the scope of this bill and, therefore, I cannot, in any way agree that in this category they would not be covered by the present proposed legislation. I ask that the membership vote in the affirmative in support of this.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, if I understood the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, correctly, it is his opinion as a legislator and a lawyer that this bill as presently drafted, as presently written, does include labor unions.

Mr. Speaker, it is my opinion that courts, in interpreting legislation will look to legislative intent only if there is ambiguity in the statutory language itself. I would like to address a question to the Chair.

Is there any way to formally place the legislative intent of this body upon the record?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would inform the gentleman that legislative intent is established by the bill itself, by the entire debate on the bill, and by the voting on the bill. There is no way necessary that this House establish legislative intent by its vote on the legislative intent except by voting on the bill itself.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, may I interrogate the majority leader?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, state whether or not he, as the majority leader of the majority party of Pennsylvania, agrees with the statement of the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, that labor unions are covered within the meaning and intent of this bill?

Mr. McCANN. I will emphatically say yes, that they are covered within the meaning of the bill, covering labor unions as I just discussed in the previous statement a moment ago.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the minority leader.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from McKean, the minority leader, Mr. Johnson, has heard the statement of the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey. He has now heard the statement of the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, that labor unions are covered under the wording of this bill. Does Mr. Johnson agree with that statement as far as legislative intent of this body is concerned?

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, the position of the minority leader on this bill is, then, that I try to assign pieces of legislation to various members on this side of the House to handle. I have not made too thorough a study of the bill. I have been informed by all my advisers on this side of the House that labor unions were not included in the bill and that was the reason for offering the amendments and from what I have heard here today I am not convinced. I believe the advisers on our side are correct. If there was any dispute about it I think we should have accepted, particularly, the amendment offered by the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams. If you say they are in, there is no reason why you could not have made the assurance doubly sure. Apparently there was some reason why on the other side of the House you felt that you would go against that amendment. I do not know why, but until we are shown by experts, legal service, elsewhere, we are of the opinion on this side that labor unions are not included in the bill.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I thank the Speaker.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, the last 10 or 15 minutes of debate on this bill proves only one thing. This is "some kettle of fish."

The alleged experts who drafted this legislation—at least they were labeled experts by the majority leader—have produced a monster.

Some say labor unions are in; some say they are not. That crosses party lines. Some tell us this little gent has to register and others tell us this little gent does not have to register.

How ridiculous can we get in this House of Representatives when you have proponents of this type of legislation get up and say, "What we are doing today is stalling tactics or really an excuse to vote against this bill." That is ridiculous.

All I am asking is that we have a bill that is intelligent, that is readable. I say to you this debate today proves one thing and only one thing, that very few people, if any, know what is or what is not in this bill, and I support the minority leader when he says that if there is any question it could be clarified as to labor unions with one little amendment, which the majority party refused to accept.

I think it is high time that this legislature stops passing legislation such as this, leaving so many questions in doubt. Buckle down and say yes or no in every field. It is not that difficult and I cannot stand these excuses of, well, we will put it through and see what happens in the future. It is our duty to put through intelligent, readable, understandable legislation and it is certainly no excuse to pass this bill today in light of the debate and the doubt that exists.

I certainly request that this bill either be postponed or that we defeat the bill if it must be called up for a vote.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I would hate to debate this bill if I find out a half an hour later it is going to be put over, so I would like reasonable assurance that this is going to be voted on today. May I interrogate the majority leader?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I will, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. McCORMACK. I just wanted to know, Mr. Speaker, whether we definitely are going to vote on this bill today?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I intended to have the bill voted on today and, of course, I hope it will be voted on following all of this debate.

Mr. McCORMACK. May I ask one more question? Mr. Speaker, in light of all this flourish of activity, has there been any lobbying against this bill by professional lobbyists?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I would not know whether there has been any professional lobbying against the bill any more than the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, would.

Mr. McCORMACK. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill that we have been kicking around for many years in the legislature. It is a bill, I believe, that has formed a part of the Democratic platform for many years and it represents a philosophy of government that the Democratic Party believes in. I believe it has been traditional on the part of the Republican Party to oppose it. And we could take a bill that represents party platform and argue about technicalities and whether or not it includes everything that should be included and we would never get together, because it represents, as I say, a philosophy that is part of one party's program and against the other side. I think that the discussion about the labor unions today is just giving the minority side an excuse to vote against a bill which they have not only secretly, but openly, opposed.

This type of legislation is necessary in the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I believe it is necessary in every State of the Union. What is possibly wrong with a requirement in the law that people who come up here and spend money to influence legislation to give an account of how they spend their money to influence us, to influence me as an individual legislator, and to influence the entire legislature as a whole? I think that no one can come up here and say that I, as an individual, do not cross party lines. If I believe that a bill or an amendment has merit, I have the courage to get up here and vote for what I believe is right. And if I believe that the union amendment should have been included, I would have voted for it, as I did. And I am not sure as to whether or not unions are included, but after listening to the arguments of the gentleman from York, I am inclined to believe that that amendment itself might have been unnecessary because the unions are included. I am satisfied with the work of the majority leader on this. But I do not think that we should use that as an excuse for killing a bill that we need badly in Pennsylvania.

I am not interested in the "gents" that might have to register, but I am interested in the "giants." I want to see their accounts, and to see how they spread their money around Harrisburg in getting legislation through. And in my experience in Harrisburg, they have been pretty successful, and I want to see whether or not spreading money around the capitol has anything to do with the large measure of success they have enjoyed in the past. Let us strip away all this subterfuge. If you are against the bill, then be against it because of your philosophy of government, but if you believe in good, decent and honest government, then I say this is a step in the right direction and you ought to vote for the bill. And if labor unions, as it turns out are not included, then put them in next year. But do not vote against it just because the bill is not all inclusive. It is a good bill, even if it does not go all the way.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, after listening to some of the arguments on the floor today, I am very concerned about certain portions of this bill. They relate principally to the amendments which Mr. Goldstein had offered, in connection with the municipal officers acting in their official capacity. Right now, from the statements between the majority leader and the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, and the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Adams, I am not sure in what manner, and at what time, and under what circumstances the county superintendent could talk to me about legislation. I would like to interrogate the majority leader on a couple points on that score.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I will, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, would this bill include the burgess of a borough, the mayor of a city, or the supervisor of the township?

Mr. McCANN. It would, in my opinion, include, if a man was engaged actively in that situation in lobbying for legislation, expending funds, and acting in this capacity, he certainly would fall in the category of being covered by this legislation.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well, Mr. Speaker, I know that the majority leader is familiar with this program. I know he is familiar with the county supervisors, tax collectors, and auditors' meetings that are held annually. I do not know whether he attends them or not, but I know that I attended mine by invitation. Now when I attend that and they speak to me about legislation, and they are getting paid for being there at that meeting, what is the position of those organizations under those circumstances?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, if I follow you correctly then, when there is a county or a State convention of supervisors, for example, and you, as a Representative, appear there as their guest to speak on the program, to also probably discuss legislation, which you do, the question as I see it is you are not involved in it in any manner. When you attend these meetings, speak there, or even I suppose if you requested to be heard at such a meeting or convention, I do not believe that county organization, if such existed, would be required to register, to file a report under this proposed legislation, unless that county organization were here lobbying, expending money, in an effort to enact or defeat legislation.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, suppose in a question and answer period in this convention, they ask me about certain legislation and request me to vote in a certain way on certain legislation. Would that constitute lobbying?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, that—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For what purpose does the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, rise?

Mr. GAILEY. To ask whether or not the majority leader would yield to me, briefly, in this argument.

Mr. McCANN. I would be most pleased, Mr. Speaker, to yield to the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, yields to the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey.

Mr. GAILEY. By way of answering the specific question which the gentleman, the minority whip, has asked, and also generally to attempt to clear up what has been obscured.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would like to interrupt the gentleman. The Chair is in error. The gentleman from Cameron has the floor and was interrogating the majority leader. Now, does the gentleman from Cameron wish to direct the question to the gentleman from York?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I understood the majority leader yielded to the gentleman from York to answer that question. Is that right?

Mr. GAILEY. That was my understanding, Mr. Speaker. I took the floor solely for that purpose.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For the purpose of answering the interrogation?

Mr. GAILEY. That is correct.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman is then in order and will proceed.

Mr. GAILEY. As I was saying, Mr. Speaker, by way of answering this question specifically and also to put forth a few generalities about the area that the gentleman from Cameron has been interrogating the majority leader. I would like to call to his attention the specific language of the act in section 3, on page 3, under Persons to Whom Act Is Applicable. It says that it is applicable if they solicit, collect or receive money, the principle purpose of which is to be used to influence legislation. And then on page 7, section 8, any person who engages himself for pay or for consideration for the purpose of attempting to influence legislation. Now, what this means, Mr. Speaker, with regard to the gentleman's question, is that, of course, your board of township supervisors do not collect or solicit money, the principle purpose of which is to influence legislation. Of course they do not engage themselves for pay or consideration to influence legislation, but if they did, then they would have to register. If they did not, they could talk to the gentleman until he was willing to throw his hands up in mercy. And they could wine him and they could dine him, so long as they did not solicit money. So long as they did not take pay, they could do it without registering.

Now, by way of further application, an employee of the Association of Township Supervisors, for instance, is paid for the purpose of influencing legislation and he would have to register. I hope this clears up this point. I think it is important and I think it has been obscured by some of the discussion that we have had.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GAILEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TOMPKINS. If what he says then is true regarding receiving pay for trying to influence legislation, why then is it necessary to put an exemption in here to officers and employees of the Commonwealth when they are acting in their official capacity? Are they receiving extra pay for coming here to influence legislation or is it their regular pay which they receive?

Mr. GAILEY. I will be glad to answer the gentleman, Mr. Speaker. I think they fall clearly within the same category as township supervisors, the mayor in our local cities, either elected or appointed officials. Obviously, they are not employed by the Commonwealth for the purpose of influencing legislation, and I think in fact that the paragraph on page 3 to which the gentleman referred, lines 14 and 15, is surplusage. I think they are exempt anyway.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I thank the gentleman from York and I thank the gentleman from Greene.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, on page 2, section 2, subsection (3), the definition of a "Person" is defined as follows:

"Person" includes an individual, partnership, committee, association, corporation, and any other organization or group of persons including but not limited to public officers.

I am not satisfied that the situation I gave has been clarified regarding elected public officials. And I say to you that when we will pass legislation that is attempted to muzzle indirectly duly elected public officials in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, it is strictly unconstitutional, and we have absolutely no right to restrict their voice in governmental matters.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the bill is clear and the statement he made is not in any way connected with the bill. If he was insinuating or saying would a burgess or a mayor whose principal occupation is to do this specific thing, to solicit money, to expend it in this purpose as defined in section 3, he certainly would fall in that category.

But can you, and do you, know how it would be possible for a public official to be in this category, since such a burgess or mayor—they are mayors under the new act—is elected as the official mayor? He therefore holds a public office, but if he were an employee of an organization whose job it was to help enact legislation by receiving salary for that, he would have to register and follow this law, irrespective of the fact that he was the burgess, because in that title he did not fall under this category.

I say to you that you cannot find in this bill the inference, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, indicated in his last remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, if the statement of the gentleman from Greene is correct, then again I raise the issue, why do you have to specifically exempt Commonwealth officials and employees?

And that is exactly the point that Mr. Goldstein was trying to clear up, and it does not make sense to me that he can give that argument now, that the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, can now give the argument that he does and still say that it was necessary to put that section in about State employees.

I go back to what Mr. Bowman, the gentleman from Dauphin, has stated about this bill and this legislation, that it is confusing; that it is bad legislation; and that we should not put anything on the statute books just to see what is going to happen. We have had outlined to us today what can happen, what is likely to happen under this bill, and I think we ought to assume our proper responsibility to see that it is a proper bill when it is approved by the Governor, if it ever is.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Perry, Mr. Holman.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I first would like to address my remarks to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

The amendments that I introduced to exempt political parties only and no one else was not introduced for the purpose of creating an excuse for the members of this House to vote against this legislation. I agree wholeheartedly with Mr. Goldstein. I am in favor of bona fide lobby legislation, but with the defeat of this amendment, I question whether the Democratic Party is interested in bona fide legislation. This would have taken away all the obscurity and ambiguity in this bill if my amendments were accepted.

It was voted down. I appreciate the vote that Mr. McCormack gave to me. I would also point out to the gentleman from Philadelphia that on many occasions I have voted on his side on legislation and did not pull the straight party toggle, so to speak.

Secondly, I would like to ask the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, if he would permit himself to be interrogated.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GAILEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I refer to page 2, line 13:

(4) "Political committee" includes any committee association or organization which accepts contributions or makes expenditures for the purpose of influencing or attempting to influence the election of candidates or presidential and vice-presidential electors.

Now, Mr. Speaker, what is the purpose of this entire definition of a "political committee" if it is not to exclude the labor unions?

Mr. GAILEY. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it has any application to labor unions whatsoever. I will answer the gentleman this way: The purpose of a labor union, I think the gentleman will agree, is not to accept contributions or make expenditures for the purpose of influencing the election of candidates. As a matter of fact, it is my understanding they are expressly forbidden to make contributions on behalf of any candidates of political parties.

Mr. HOLMAN. I am going to get to that in a minute.

Mr. GAILEY. Is that not correct?

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, is it not a fact that they do a considerable amount of lobbying? Is not one of their purposes to increase or lift the level of the laboring man?

Mr. GAILEY. I quite agree with the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, the representatives from organized labor on the Hill here, I have often said, are one of the few groups of lobbyists whose purpose extends beyond the mere particular purpose of the organization. It extends to the welfare of the whole State. He is quite right. They do have a very active interest in legislation and do talk to us in the hopes of influencing our vote and to write in their social and economic viewpoints.

Mr. HOLMAN. And through various committees, do they not, Mr. Speaker, contribute and work very diligently for the election of candidates to support their views in the legislature and in the Congress of the United States?

Mr. GAILEY. The gentleman is, once again, quite correct, but may I say that these committees are a separate entity from the labor organizations themselves. By law they must set up separate committees. This they do. It takes the form of various committees on political education.

Mr. HOLMAN. And they would be exempt by the provisions of this act, would they not?

Mr. GAILEY. These committees, organized by organized labor for political purposes, would be exempt since they are committees which accept contributions and make expenditures for influencing the election of candidates. However, it is not my understanding that any of these political committees, Committee on Political Education, what used to be known as the PAC, the Steelworker's separate political committee, none of these committees have paid employees working up here attempting to influence our vote. These are all employees of the labor organizations themselves and not of their political committees. Therefore, these men would have to register.

Mr. HOLMAN. Would they not, through the members that they elect to this House of Representatives, be indirectly influencing the passage or defeat of legislation in this House?

Mr. GAILEY. Mr. Speaker, I think, obviously if any candidate is supported by any organization, he listens with a sympathetic ear to the pleas of that particular organization or group, just as if the gentleman from Perry were elected with money from the National Manufacturers Association. He would listen sympathetically to them.

Mr. HOLMAN. That is correct. And that organization would have to register under this act, would it not?

Mr. GAILEY. If the National Association of Manufacturers collected money to influence legislation, if they had any representatives who were paid any consideration to talk to people in terms of influencing legislation, yes, they would have to register.

Mr. HOLMAN. Now, Mr. Gailey, in light of all your answers to my questions, should House bill 884 pass, which is on third reading and will probably come up for vote today or in the very near future, which repeals the prior act removing the prohibition against unions making political contributions, what effect would that have on section 2, item (4) "Political Committee"?

Mr. GAILEY. As I understand, Mr. Speaker, if that bill is passed, and it certainly has not been passed, it is not even before us, but if the House would consent I have no objections to discussing other legislation.

It is not my understanding that that will have any impact. It merely removes certain prohibitions in the court practices act.

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, would you agree that a union would then be able to contribute to a political party?

Mr. GAILEY. I honestly cannot answer the gentleman.

Mr. HOLMAN. Well, Mr. Gailey, hypothetically assuming they could, would they then come in under the provision of "political committee"?

Mr. GAILEY. It would be my assertion, Mr. Speaker, that they would not.

Mr. HOLMAN. I thank the gentleman.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Perry, Mr. Holman.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the majority leader, if I may.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HOLMAN. Mr. Speaker, a short while ago the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams, asked some specific questions. I would like to ask the majority leader whether Charles Sludden of the Railroad Brotherhood would have to register under the provisions of this act?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I assume that Charles Sludden is a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, which is a bona fide union, and my answer would be an emphatic "yes."

Mr. HOLMAN. Would Mr. Thomas of the United Mine Workers have to register under this act?

Mr. McCANN. I assume, if he falls in the same category as the previous gentleman, the answer would have to be "yes." So would each of the others that fall in that category.

Mr. HOLMAN. Harry Boyer of the AFL?

Mr. McCANN. I assume he is a member of the union, an officer of the AFL-CIO, and the answer would be "yes."

Mr. HOLMAN. I thank the gentleman.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, some of the interrogations here certainly confuse and amaze me because it appears that the people who are conducting the interrogation either are unwilling to read the bill or have not examined it thoroughly, for instance, the interrogation that has just transpired pertaining to political committees.

There are only two places in this bill where the words "political committee" appear. One is on page 2, subsection 4, where it is defined; the second is on page 3, section 3, where it says, "The provisions of this act shall apply to any person (except a political committee as defined in section 2)" . . .)

The purpose of this legislation is so that people who come here on a paid basis to influence legislation, to lobby for or against legislation, shall be required to register and demonstrate how they expend the funds that they receive in order to influence legislation.

This exception says that a political committee whose purpose it is to influence the election of candidates, or presidential or vice presidential electors, shall not be required to register and do the necessary filing that is required under this bill.

The reason for that exception is simple. If you organize a political committee to influence the election of candidates, or the selection of presidential or vice presidential electors, you are not coming up to Harrisburg to lobby for or against legislation. That is not your sole purpose. And that is exactly all that it means.

Now why labor unions or any particular organization, should be specifically designated in the definition of "political committees" when they are exempted under section 3 of the act, I do not know. It does not purely define nor does it exclude labor unions, but it says, "any committee association or organization which accepts contributions for the purpose of influencing the election of candidates or presidential or vice presidential elections." The only thing I can say here is that this is a lot of obfuscation. It's purpose is to throw up a smoke screen over a bill which is perfectly clear and says what it means. If you are for this type of legislation, then you can vote for this bill, because it is clearly stated. If you are opposed to it, then vote against it. But do not come up here and say that the bill is worthless, useless, completely confused and does not say anything. It says clearly what it means to say, and, if you are in favor of that, then vote for it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Erie, Mr. O'Dell, desire to be recognized?

Mr. O'DELL. Mr. Speaker, I intended to interrogate the majority leader, but I will simply ask the questions at large: Why did we here in this House, a few moments ago, pass House bill 1663? Why did we pass it? We passed it to define "manufacturing." When we voted on this bill originally under the 1 percent, under the 3 percent and under the 4 percent, it was legislative intent—which we are talking about here today—to exempt this type of manufacturing.

I do not profess to be a learned attorney, but I cannot see in this bill that we are discussing now where labor unions are included. We might have legislative intent, but let me call your attention to the fact that when a bill leaves here and goes to the Senate and is signed by the Governor, it is up to the particular department that administers that bill to decide what they want to administer and what they do not want to administer. When this original sales tax bill went over to the Sales Tax Bureau, they decided against legislative intent; they decided that this particular type of manufacturing would be taxed. So let us not put a bill out of the House, as we have done several times this year, with legislative intent, and then leave it up to some other bureau here in Harrisburg to decide how the bill is going to be administered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the lady from Montgomery, Mrs. Henzel.

Mrs. HENZEL. Mr. Speaker, we have listened this afternoon to a series of assumptions, confusions, not clearly defined specifications, and I rise not to protect those who would be forced to register under this particular bill, but I rise to protect the efficiency of us as legislators.

When I first came to the House in 1955, I had a dim view of lobbyists. However, during the course of my terms I have come to view them with respect because of the information they have been able to give me in order that I might reach more efficient conclusions in making my judgment in relation to bills.

I feel that if this legislation were enacted we would be driving from the halls of the House, and driving out from approach to us as legislators, and, perhaps, free communication between us as legislators and the people who are the oracles of information which we do not possess, those from whom we could gain the proper information to reach the proper conclusions. I feel that it is an inhibition to the proper process of our legislation, and with the confusion that exists I feel that we will be adding to our own inefficiency if we were to vote on a bill such as this with the confusion that exists within our minds and within the minds of those who are listening to this debate and what will be read by the people who will be presenting things to us, as the press will tell us, and we will be less efficient as a result thereof.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Sherman.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I can see no disagreement in this bill. Those on this side of the House are in favor of the bill; those on the other side, a good many, are against it. Apparently they had not said in singling out labor organizations, let us single out farmers, let us single out lawyers, let us single out doctors, or any other profession, but have said here, let us single out labor organizations. For what reason I cannot understand. But I do say this, that when you have every Philadelphia lawyer speaking in absolute agreement, you have a good bill. I think you should vote for it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Holliday.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe that anybody in the room knows who is included in the bill and who is left out of that bill.

The gentleman from Berks asked the majority leader a few minutes ago whether a university president would be exempted from this bill or whether he would be forced to register. I would like to interrogate the majority leader on that question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The majority leader is on the telephone at present.

Will the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, answer the interrogation?

Mr. GAILEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman will have to give me a few more details.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, the president of some of our universities that are not State-owned are hired by the universities to promote the welfare of that university. Part of those duties is to see that the university is granted or gets the proper kind of legislation passed here in Harrisburg so that they get their appropriations, and so forth. On page 5 it says that any person receiving contributions or expending any money whatsoever to influence legislation, directly or indirectly, would be forced to register. Would a university president who came down here and had dinner with some of his alumni and talked to them about his program and the need for passing certain legislation be forced to register?

Mr. GAILEY. I would answer, categorically, no, Mr. Speaker. It says, and I will read the language again, "Any person who engages himself for pay or for any consideration for the purpose of attempting to influence the passage," and so forth. Obviously, the president of a university is not hired for that particular purpose. He is hired for the general purpose of running the university, and, if coming down to see the legislature to discuss bills pending before this House which will have an impact on his university is part of his duty, this he must do. But it does not bring him within the purview of this act.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. All right. Now, suppose we had a person who worked for a corporation and who is paid by that corporation a certain salary and expenses to do certain work, say, in Pittsburgh. But during a certain period of the year, when the legislature is in session, he is told to come down to Harrisburg and watch over things down here as part of his duties. Would he have to register as a lobbyist?

Mr. GAILEY. If he is engaged, once again, for pay or a consideration—

Mr. HOLLIDAY. That is only part-time work.

Mr. GAILEY. If the gentleman will let me finish.

If he is engaged for pay or for any consideration, the purpose of which is to attempt to influence the passage or defeat of legislation, the answer would be "yes." If you are speaking, for instance, of the president of the company, whose major duties obviously do not lie in this area, the answer would be "no." You have to decide in any given case. That is why you cannot be too specific in a bill of this sort.

The language must be couched in general terms.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Suppose the sales manager of a company was sent down here, or came down here, or the general manager of a company came down here, and spent a few weeks watching legislation. Would he be forced to register if he talked to anybody here about certain laws?

Mr. GAILEY. He would be forced to register under either one of two circumstances, Mr. Speaker. If this person himself solicited or collected and expended money for the purpose of influencing legislation—

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Would the expenditure of money—

Mr. GAILEY. I have not finished my answer.

Mr. GAILEY. In answer to the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, if this person, be he sales manager, director of public relations, or president of the corporation is made to come to Harrisburg or to see the legislator locally, for that matter, to influence the passage or defeat of legislation, he would have to register.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. He is not given any more money than his regular yearly salary, but he comes down here and maybe entertains some people on an expense account. He is not paid to come here as a lobbyist. It is part of his duty and he is just paid his yearly salary.

Mr. GAILEY. I think in answer to the gentleman, he is contradicting himself. If it is part of his duties to come down here, obviously, that is a part of the duties for which he is paid; therefore, he would have to register.

Mr. Speaker, if I may answer further, because I think the gentleman, of course, as are all the gentlemen in the House, is absolutely sincere in interrogation. They want to get to the bottom of this. I think it depends to a certain extent upon the excess of the duty. Obviously, someone who is paid for this purpose must register.

I cannot think, although it would not be for me as an individual to determine, but I cannot think that someone who in the casual course of his employment comes to Harrisburg for a limited period of time to discuss matters of legislation which are of specific interest to his firm, be it a labor organization, be it a manufacturing concern, be it the Pennsylvania Medical Association, whatever the case may be, if it is merely casual and for a limited period of time, I cannot think that he falls within the purview of this act.

However, someone who is paid and the express understanding of his duties is that these are part of his duties, to undertake this, then I think under those circumstances he does fall within the purview of the act and should register.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I still contend that I do not believe anybody in here knows who is covered under this act and who is not.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Heavey.

Mr. HEAVEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform our friends on the other side of the aisle that the Taft-Hartley Act limits unions in the use of union funds for lobbying purposes. The only way they can lobby is by volunteer contributions of the members.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman, wish to be recognized?

Does the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman, desire to make a motion?

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a motion, but only at the termination of the debate. I would like to be recognized at that time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Are there any other members who wish to debate the bill?

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Beaver, Mr. Klein.

Mr. KLEIN. Mr. Speaker, although I did not actually draft this legislation I am one of the sponsors and I have studied this bill carefully. For the information of the other members of the House, I am an attorney.

I do not believe there is any question but that labor unions are covered by the definition of "person" in section 2. It says "association," and they would certainly be covered.

I might point out that we did not say "manufacturer's association," but they are covered, too.

Secondly, the definition of "political committee" includes perhaps labor union political committees, but it also would include any other political committee, such as, for example, the Republican Alliance in Philadelphia, I would believe, would be included.

It would be impossible to draw a bill that would cover every situation and every person who might be involved in coming to Harrisburg once or twice.

Section 3 contains language which any court could interpret. As to whether superintendents of schools, or some mayor of a city would be included depends on the circumstances. He might be included and he might not be included. It would depend on whether he came into one of the clauses of Section 3, that is, that he solicit, collect or receive money or any other thing of value to be used principally to aid in effecting legislation, or the other clause, that his principal purpose is to aid in the accomplishment of any of these enumerated purposes. Therefore, if the University of Pittsburgh has a man down here from January until the end of the session who is paid for that purpose, certainly he would have to register. But if the chancellor of the University came down here on one occasion to talk about one particular bill and he received an expense account from the university to cover his transportation, his hotel bill and his meals, and he incidentally had some legislators out to dinner, he would not be covered, in my personal opinion because he did not use the money principally to effect the legislation.

Now, if he came down here with a very large expense account and in addition to taking somebody to dinner he purchased a token of appreciation, like a '61 Cadillac and gave it to a legislator, you might have a different situation. He would be covered then.

I believe all the amendments that were offered today were unnecessary because the labor unions are obviously covered, and Mr. Goldstein's amendment is unnecessary because the bill takes care of the officers also.

As I stated earlier, they may or may not be covered by this bill depending upon the circumstances surrounding their visit here.

As to the provision which exempts officers and employees of the Commonwealth, it is my opinion that this is largely unnecessary, but perhaps in the case of a legislative secretary to a governor this provision is needed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair had agreed at the end of the debate to recognize the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman.

MOTION TO POSTPONE

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move you that House bill No. 283 be placed upon the final passage postponed calendar for possible clarification by amendment.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I realize that they are going to ask for a roll call. I, of course, will consent to the roll call immediately. I rise to oppose. We have debated this bill for a period of an hour and a half now, or longer, and we have three other items.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose and ask the membership to vote "no" on the motion made by the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman, so that we may vote on the bill.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate bill No. 350, entitled:

An Act to create a regional agency by intergovernmental compact for the planning conservation utilization development management and control of the water and related natural resources of the Delaware River Basin for the improvement of navigation reduction of flood damage regulation of water quality control of pollution development of water supply hydroelectric energy fish and wildlife habitat and public recreational facilities and other purposes and defining the functions powers and duties of such agency.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?
It was agreed to.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Morley.

Mr. MORLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to read into the record the answers to some questions that I raised concerning the language of the compact. Some of those provisions which involve the provocation of this legislature seem to be hazy and obscure. The first question involved section 2.7: This section is in regard to an extension of the agency's powers outside of the basin.

The question was whether the use of the phrase "consent of State" would mean that the consent of the Legislature would be required. Mr. Miller, who is the Chief Counsel for the Delaware River Basin Advisory Committee, answered the question in this fashion." Mr. Miller indicated that an act of legislature would be necessary to permit any extension of the agency's powers outside of the basin and that it could not be done otherwise. In essence, therefore, the consent of the State means the consent of legislature."

The second question deals with annual current expense and capital budgets. "The question on this section was whether it was mandatory that the legislature must appropriate operating funds to the agency. Mr. Miller indicated that it was not mandatory and that the legislature could withhold operating costs. The agency would be required to submit its budget in the same manner followed by the State agencies in the various States. In short, the budgets would be subject to the same approval as may be required by the current budgetary processes of the various States. The legislature, in approving or disapproving the requests, must decide whether the request is warranted."

The next question concerns section 14. 11(b). This question was raised by a situation in the City of New York at the present time where the chairman of the New York Port Authority is under jail sentence for refusing to give a committee of the Congress of the United States information that is requested.

"This section concerns the annual independent audit. The question was whether the duly authorized officers or representatives of the signatory parties entitled to examine, audit, or have access to the records of the commission included the legislature. Mr. Miller indicated that it was up to the legislature to decide who would be authorized officers or representatives who would have access to the records. The wording in this case was general due to the fact that it would leave the legislature free to designate those who would have such access, and also because the same offices do not exist in each of the respective States."

Another question involved the use of the word "shall" as it applies to the legislature. Mr. Miller agreed that if such wording is in the compact, there would be no possible way to obligate the legislature to act.

I ask, Mr. Speaker, that this be included in the record.

Mr. MORLEY submitted the following letter for the record:

Subject: Delaware Compact
Senate Bill 350

To: The Honorable Walter H. Morley
House of Representatives
From: Alan J. Sommerville
Chief Water Resources Development Engineer

As agreed at our meeting in Secretary Goddard's office yesterday, I have contacted Mr. William Miller, Esquire, Princeton, New Jersey, for specific answers to the three questions raised in regard to the proposed Compact. As you will recall, Mr. Miller is the legal counsel to the Delaware River Basin Advisory Committee, and was primarily responsible for the drafting of the proposed Compact. The answers follow:

Section 2.7: This section is in regard to an extension of the agency's powers outside of the basin. The question was whether the use of the phrase "consent of State" would mean that the consent of the Legislature would be required. Mr. Miller indicated that an act of Legislature would be necessary to permit any extension of the agency's powers outside of the basin and that it could not be done otherwise. In essence, therefore, the consent of the State means the consent of the Legislature.

Section 13.3: This section deals with annual current expense and capital budgets. The question on this section was whether it was mandatory that the Legislature must appropriate operating funds to the agency. Mr. Miller indicated that it was not mandatory and that the Legislature could withhold operating costs. The agency would be required to submit its budget in the same manner followed by the State agencies in the various states. In short, the budgets would be subject to the same approval as may be required by the current budgetary processes of the various states. The Legislature in approving or disapproving the request must decide whether the request is warranted. Incidentally, the Legislature of the State of Delaware went into this question in the same detail prior to passage in this state and found the wording satisfactory.

Section 14.11 (b): This section concerns the annual independent audit. The question was whether the duly authorized officers or representatives of the signatory parties entitled to examine, audit, or have access to the records of the Commission included the Legislature. Mr. Miller indicated that it was up to the Legislature to decide who would be the authorized officers or representatives who would have access to the records. The wording in this case was general due to the fact that it would leave the Legislature free to designate those who would have such access, and also because the same offices do not exist in each of the respective states.

I hope that this will answer the question raised to your satisfaction. I was unable to locate the reference stating that the Legislature "shall." Mr. Miller agreed that if such wording is in the Compact, there would be no possible way to obligate Legislature to act.

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

REASONS FOR VOTE

Mr. ADAMS filed the following reasons for his vote on Senate bill No. 350.

Mr. Speaker, my vote for this bill does not necessarily indicate my approval of the proposed location of dam sites as proposed by the Federal government on the Delaware River Basin Compact, specifically referring the proposed dam construction in the Virginville area, 4th Legislative District of Berks County which it is my privilege to represent. The Pomona Grange of Berks County has gone on record as opposed to the construction of this particular dam.

I have been advised by J. Collons McSpardan, master of the State Grange, that in order for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to have a voice in the location of dam sites, it was necessary to ratify the compact. I have voted accordingly in the best interests of the citizens of Berks County.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, this House will convene on Monday at 2:30 p.m., d.s.t.

When we adjourn today, for the information of the Democratic members, notices are going out for a caucus at 1 o'clock on Monday, d.s.t. I ask that all members try to arrange their schedule accordingly so they will be at the caucus and on the floor of the House to start voting on bills as early as possible on Monday, since we will convene at 2:30 p.m., d.s.t.

In addition, this is the last roll call today in this House.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the minority leader.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, we will caucus on Monday at 1 o'clock, as customary. The caucus will last until 2:30. At 2 o'clock we hope to have an expert on the Kerr-Mills Act in our caucus to explain the various ramifications, so it is important that our members be in caucus. If they cannot get there at 1:30, be sure and be at the caucus at 2 o'clock. But we will caucus from 1 o'clock until 2:30 on Monday, so we can be on the floor at 2:30.

PERMISSION TO ADD ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Mr. SCHAAF asked and obtained unanimous consent to add additional sponsors to resolution to be introduced by him.

Lord of the Universe, Thou art the source of life and of light. Moved by Thy Spirit and inspired of Thy will, our fathers established this Commonwealth in freedom, under law. Blessed by Thee, we have flourished through the years in peace and in plenty.

Grant, O God, that Thy Spirit may rest upon us as we take up the mantle of leadership for our generation. Guide us by Thy light that we may approach with consecrated hearts the tasks which are ours; to safeguard the rights and the liberties that are the sacred inheritance of our people, and to preserve the structure of law, under which, alone, the children of men can fulfill their destinies as children of God.

Mr. PROPERT by unanimous consent, offered the following resolution (Serial No. 74), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, June 26, 1961.

Miss Ethel Lynn Maloney, a striking, blue-eyed brunette from King of Prussia, who already held the title of Miss Montgomery County, was enthroned Saturday night, June 24, as Miss Pennsylvania of 1961. The twenty year-old beauty will represent Pennsylvania at the Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City in September.

The new Miss Pennsylvania, a 1958 graduate of Upper Merion High School, and now a Ursinus College coed in the junior class, displayed her talents for the judges by doing charcoal sketches and a pantomime dance. For her victory in the State beauty contest at West Chester, Pennsylvania, Miss Maloney was presented a four-year Governor's scholarship to one of three Pennsylvania universities; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Senate of Pennsylvania hereby extends its hearty congratulations to Miss Maloney upon her being selected as Miss Pennsylvania of 1961, and earnestly hope that her beauty and talents will lead her to even greater accomplishments; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to Miss Maloney at her home in King of Prussia, Pennsylvania.

The PRESIDENT. I might say, Senator, that the first lines of this resolution took me back a number of years because I married what I consider a striking, blue-eyed brunette, who also attended Ursinus College and who was born in Montgomery County.

RECONSIDERATION OF HB 1082

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which House Bill No. 1082, Printer's No. 1199, failed of final passage on June 21, 1961.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I voted with the prevailing side.

Mr. DONOLOW. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. DONOLOW. Mr. President, I voted with the prevailing side.

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I request that House Bill No. 1082, Printer's No. 1199, appear on tomorrow's Final Passage Calendar.

The PRESIDENT. There being no objection, the bill will appear on tomorrow's Final Passage Calendar.

INTERROGATION

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Weiner.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Weiner, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WEINER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, will the gentleman inform us, now that the bill is getting another run over the target, if the amendments may also get another run?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to advise the gentleman that the amendments had two runs; one in a bill by themselves, which failed to pass the Senate, and they had another bite at the apple when they were inserted in this bill. As a matter of fact, I even aided and abetted in that by getting an opinion from the Attorney General so that they could do it.

If they give the bill itself the same kind of treatment, I think we will be very happy.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman, and would only say that I could correct him in that the other bills have not failed of passage in the Senate. I think they are still reposing comfortably in committee.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I will be delighted to get for the gentleman the number of the bill; the one that was on the Calendar for sometime and then failed of passage here. As a matter of fact, some of the people even sent out some letters about this, trying to arouse some interest. To date, there appears to be no interest in this measure whatsoever, even with respect to asking me to bring it back. I will be glad to get the number for the gentleman.

I hope he will give the same kind of courteous treatment to this measure.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, we will endeavor to give the same treatment to this bill as was given to the others, yes.

Mr. STIEFEL, Mr. President, beginning with next week, I intend to deliver a series of addresses depicting the shortages of Pennsylvania, in so far as they pertain to the celebration of the Centennial of the Civil War.

This bill, Mr. President, is a much-needed bill. It provides for the preservation of the battle flags of Pennsylvania.

SENATE RESOLUTION

COMMENDING DANIEL H. GATTONE FOR HIS DEVELOPMENT OF A PORTABLE, LOW-PRESSURE OXYGEN INHALANT CONTAINER

Mr. DEVLIN, on behalf of Mr. DiSILVESTRO, offered the following resolution (Serial No. 75), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, June 26, 1961.

On February 3rd, 1960, the Public Service Award of the National Broadcasting Company was presented to Daniel H. Gattone, a native of Philadelphia, for his development of a portable low-pressure, oxygen inhalant container which is used to save the lives of victims of heart disease and asthma in cases of sudden attacks.

In presenting the Award, given for the first time by the network for the development of a product, Raymond Welcott, Vice-President of NBC, commented that the container created by Mr. Gattone "makes a great contribution to the millions of victims of heart disease throughout the world."

Mr. Gattone, who now resides in Drexel Park, was born in South Philadelphia. Following his graduation from the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania in 1933, he served as a salesman for pharmaceutical firms for the next 25 years. Early in 1958, he resigned his position as a divisional manager for the firm with which he was then associated in order to devote all of his time to the marketing of his product, upon which he had spent years of research.

Since that time, there have been many public reports of instances in which victims were saved by the use of Mr. Gattone's container, which are indicative of the widespread benefit it has brought in times of emergency to countless sufferers from heart and respiratory diseases; therefore be it

RESOLVED, The Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby commends Daniel H. Gattone, a native Philadelphia, for his development of a portable, low-pressure, oxygen inhalant container that is being used to save the lives of countless sufferers from heart and respiratory diseases in times of emergency; and be it further RESOLVED, That a copy of this Resolution be presented to Mr. Gattone as evidence of the sentiments of this legislative body.

The PRESIDENT. At this time, the Chair turns the gavel over to the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Ripp.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Joseph D. Ripp) in the Chair.

The PRESIDENT. Thank you, Senator Ripp, for taking my place while I was unable to be here.

GUESTS OF SENATOR CHARLES R. WEINER PRESENTED TO SENATE

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to introduce to the Chair, and to the Members of the Senate, a group of distinguished citizens from the city of Philadelphia who live in my District. They are visting the Capitol today and are now seated in the balcony of this Chamber. They consist of a group from the Twenty-Eighth Ward Democratic Committee, which is my home ward.

The PRESIDENT. Will the ladies and gentlemen from the Twenty-Eighth Ward Democratic Committee please rise?

On behalf of the Members of the Senate, the Chair is very happy to have you as visitors to our august Senate. I hope you will enjoy your visit and I hope you will come back very often in the future.

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President and Members of the Senate, I would like to have your attention because what I am about to say, I think is very important to me today. Possibly tomorrow, it may be important to one of you.

I have served in this Body for many, many years. I have served with the Majorities, with the Minorities, and now with a divided Senate. Throughout these many years, I have agreed and disagreed with many of my colleagues on bills which were controversial. The disagreements were always honest disagreements. Throughout these many years in this Chamber, I have tried to do what I thought was best for the people whom I represent. Never have I found fault with any of my colleagues when they opposed or supported certain measures.

As you all now know, it so happens that I have been chosen by my Party to be Chairman of the Committee on Local Government. Many bills come to that committee. Upon those bills my committee passes. We have tried to do a good and honest job. It also happens, Mr. President, that now in that committee there have been referred two bills, known as House Bill No. 1221 and House Bill No.

1438. These bills deal directly with the anthracite and bituminous coal strippers.

The record will show, when these bills were referred to my committee last week, that I assured you, Mr. President, my colleagues and the people of Pennsylvania, that I would start holding public hearings in order to give everyone an opportunity to be heard. It is my sincere belief that it is a fundamental right for every person to be heard. These bills may have a great effect upon the people of Pennsylvania. There are some fine people who are opposing these bills and there are some fine people who are supporting these bills.

In addition thereto, Mr. President, we have a group of hoodlums who are opposing these bills. I resent the attack and the approach which these hoodlums are making. Now it has struck back home. I shed a few tears this morning and my family is shedding tears right now.

This morning, I received a letter, postmarked Pittsburgh, 5:30 p. m. The letter reads as follows:

"6/25/61

"Sen. John J. Haluska

"Harrisburg, Penna.

"Re: Strip Mining Bill

"Believe me, Mr. Haluska, I am very close to you at home, and if you scuttle the Strip Mining Bill you are not going to know what hit you. We have tried all decent means of protecting the public interest. If you choose to serve the money-grabbing strippers instead of the people who put you in office, you will pay. Be warned.

"Disgusted Democrat"

This letter is written on unique stationery, Mr. President. I say to you that I believe I have knowledge of one or two men who have threatened my life or the life of my family. Therefore, I ask you, Mr. President, and all of my colleagues, in all common decency, to immediately summon the State Police and give me an aide to go to my office where I can take an affidavit and give them the names of the two people who I think sent out this letter. I believe the F.B.I. and the Postal Department should immediately start on their way to try to find the violators.

Mr. President, if I must die for a cause, I will die for a cause. I have no fear of dying. However, I think we have hit a new low, a very new low when any Member of this Senate has his life threatened just because he may have a difference of opinion on any piece of legislation. I do not believe this has ever happened before and I hope it will never happen again.

If I am in order, Mr. President, I am now asking you to proceed. If I am required to make a motion, I shall do so. I am hopeful that one of my colleagues, on either side, will second the motion to have the Chair take action immediately and instruct the State Police to proceed to pick up this violator.

The PRESIDENT. This will be referred to the State Police, Senator Haluska. I am very concerned about it.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

HB 67—Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Mr. BERGER.

HB 95—Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Mr. WEINER.

SB 261—Mr. HAYS. Mr. President, I request that Senate Bill No. 261 go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I am prepared and ready to debate Senate Bill No. 261 in detail today. However, it seems there are Members here who have additional amendments which they wish to offer. Therefore, I am going to agree to let the bill go over in its order today, but I must insist that tomorrow this legislation must be acted upon, because this legislation is going to protect the real estate owners of Pennsylvania from any raiding on the part of any political subdivision. I feel this is very important legislation. So, I will acquiesce and let the bill go over, but let us finish it up tomorrow.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I listened with great interest to Senator Lane's demand that this bill be acted upon tomorrow. If there are to be amendments offered tomorrow, and if tomorrow is the last day this week, then how could the bill possibly be acted upon tomorrow?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I believe the gentleman had in mind that some action take place and that if amendments are offered, they should come to the floor so that they can be debated and the measure acted upon. I think it is a reasonable request that we take some action on this bill. I think that is all he had in mind.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I have no objection to the bill going over in its order. I was only questioning Senator Lane's statement that it must be acted upon tomorrow, because if the amendments are not offered until tomorrow, the bill could not possibly be acted upon tomorrow.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, the reason I made that statement was because there have been some requests, during the past few days, with reference to this legislation going over in order.

I think the opposition is trying to put this bill over in order and eventually kill this legislation. I am willing and ready to debate any amendments which may be offered. However, should they be rejected, I am hoping that we can call the bill up and eventually have it passed.

If we are going to work just three days and if we dispose of the amendments tomorrow, of course, we can do the final work on Monday. That is the way I wished to express myself.

The PRESIDENT. There being no objection, the bill will go over in its order.

SB 322—Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Mr. BERGER.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

SB 342 (Pr. No. 861)—Read at length the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Mr. HAYS. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, may we be at ease a moment?

(The Senate was at ease.)

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—26

Camie!,	Lane,	Mullin,	Seyler,
Devlin,	Mahady,	Murray,	Silvert,
DiSilvestro,	Mallery,	Pechan,	Staisey,

BILL OVER IN ORDER

HB 1367 (Pr. No. 2402)—Read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, this bill appeared on the Calendar and was amended to take out the amendments which were placed in the bill in committee when the bill was being considered.

The bill probably has some merit to it. However, I would like the opportunity to study those amendments and see why the penalties were increased after the committee amendments. If the gentleman wishes to run the bill under those conditions, I am willing to do so. However, I would suggest that we put the bill over in its order so that we can find out why the penalties were increased.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I know a suggestion when I hear one. I will ask that the bill go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. There being no objection, House Bill No. 1367 will go over in its order on Third Reading.

BILL ON THIRD READING POSTPONED

SB 295 (Pr. No. 311)—Mr. LANE. Mr. President, call up Senate Bill No. 295 from the Third Reading Postponed Calendar.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I certainly do not object to the calling up of this bill. However, one of our Members, who was interested in this bill, is absent on a matter that he could not possibly avoid. For that reason, I would suggest that the bill remain where it is on the Postponed Calendar until he returns. If not, I suggest that it be passed on Third Reading and placed on the Final Passage Calendar. I do not care which, but there is no use dealing with it that way as long as we can leave it on the Postponed Calendar.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, may we be at ease a moment? The PRESIDENT. We may be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I yield to Senator Berger. I have called up Senate Bill No. 295, Printer's No. 311, and I now yield to Senator Berger.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, at this time, I join in the request, to call up this bill.

The PRESIDENT. There being no objection, Senate Bill No. 295 is now called up from the Third Reading Postponed Calendar.

REGULAR ORDER OF BUSINESS RESUMED

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Consideration of today's Calendar being completed, we will now revert to the regular order of business.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. MAHADY asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, the shoemaker is a lowly calling. We exempt from the sales tax all clothing, including shoes. However, the shoemaker is required not only to keep books, but to pay the sales tax on the materials that he uses in repairing shoes.

We also know that in times of depression or recession, the shoemaker does more work because the people are poorer, and instead of buying new shoes, they have the old ones repaired. Therefore, I am about to introduce a bill, exempting from the sales tax the materials that a shoemaker places on shoes. As you know, the Act requires him to charge the sales tax not only on his materials, but on his labor also.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Mr. MAHADY presented to the Chair SB 824, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 6, 1956 (P. L. 1228), entitled, as amended, "Selective Sales and Use Tax Act," excluding from the tax materials and supplies used or consumed in the repairing of shoes.

Which was committed to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. DEVLIN, on behalf of Messrs. MILLER, YATRON and HALUSKA presented to the Chair SB 825, entitled:

An Act fixing the number of Senators in the General Assembly of the State; apportioning the State into senatorial districts as provided by the Constitution; providing for the election of and the term of office of the present and future elected Senators; and repealing inconsistent laws in respect thereto.

Which was committed to the Committee on Reapportionment.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

WEEKLY ADJOURNMENT

Mr. MULLIN offered the following resolution, which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, June 27, 1961.

RESOLVED (the House of Representatives concurring), That when the Senate adjourns this week, it reconvene Thursday, July 6, 1961, at a time to be fixed by the Senate; and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week, it reconvene Monday, July 10, 1961, at a time to be fixed by the House, unless sooner recalled by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

SENATE RESOLUTION

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE

DOCTOR ROBERT ARCHIBALD MATTHEWS

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, on behalf of my colleagues, Senator Donolow and Senator Stiefel, and myself, I am about to offer a resolution (Serial No. 76).

Last week, you will recall, when we were speaking about mental health, that I mentioned the name of Doctor Robert Matthews, who was a professor of psychiatry and at one time was the Mental Health Commissioner of Pennsylvania.

I would like to read this resolution, if I may:

In the Senate, June 27, 1961.

The citizenry of Pennsylvania mourns the untimely death of Dr. Robert Archibald Matthews, Professor of Psychiatry of Jefferson Medical College and first statutory Commissioner of Mental Health of Pennsylvania, who was killed last week in an automobile accident, as a result of negligence on the part of a careless driver.

Dr. Matthews' memory will remain enshrined in the hearts of his fellow men for his unexcelled dedication to the cause of mental health in Pennsylvania which he so superbly and devotedly espoused.

The highlights of his rise in the world of medicine and service to Pennsylvania, are as follows:

Dr. Matthews was born at Johnstown, Pennsylvania on March 31, 1903; Graduated from Jefferson Medical College in 1928; Interned at Philadelphia General Hospital 1928-1930; Psychiatric resident at Philadelphia Hospital for Mental Diseases 1930-1931; Post graduate training at the Institute of the Pennsylvania Hospital at Philadelphia 1935-1936; Professor at Jefferson Medical College 1939-1942; Professor of Psychiatry at Louisiana State College 1950-1956; First statutory Commissioner of Mental Health—appointed September 1, 1956, until July 18, 1958; Most recently Professor of Psychiatry and head of the Psychiatric Department of Jefferson Medical College.

As a member of the renowned faculty of the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, Dr. Matthews was beloved and held in high regard by the leadership of Jefferson Medical College, by the entire membership of the faculty thereof and by the student body of that great Seat of Medical Learning, which has issued, in the presence of Dr. Matthews only two weeks ago, the twenty thousandth (20,000th) diploma since its establishment.

With the demise of Dr. Matthews, Pennsylvania lost a great son, who was in the very vanguard of scientific progress and medical education.

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED, That the Senate of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania express its condolences to the widow of the deceased, Mary Matthews, and the family of Dr. Matthews, as well as to the faculty and Dean William A. Sodeman of the Jefferson Medical College.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Secretary of the Senate forward copies of this resolution, following its adoption, to Mrs. Mary Matthews, wife of the deceased and to Dr. William A. Sodeman, Dean of Jefferson Medical College.

Mr. President, I ask for the immediate adoption of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

The resolution was adopted.

BIRTHDAY FELICITATIONS EXTENDED TO SENATOR CHARLES R. WEINER

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, this is in the form of a verbal resolution but nevertheless, properly belongs under this order of business.

Mr. President, today, June 27th, has a special significance for a particular Member of this Senate and to all of the Members of the Senate, because on this date we were regaled in the office of the Majority Leader, Senator Weiner, with a birthday cake and accompaniments.

On behalf of all of the Members of the Senate, Mr. President, it is a very pleasant duty to offer to Senator Weiner our heartiest congratulations on the birthday which, I understand, is a permanent fixture in the lives of most men, his thirty-ninth birthday.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair heartily agrees, and thirty-nine year old Senator Weiner is recognized.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I want to thank Senator Berger and all of the Members of this Senate. I do not know when I had a more pleasant birthday. I was perfectly willing to forget all about it and leave it go unnoticed, but my friends and some of the people who are close to me would not let me forget it. I am very happy that they did not. I enjoyed it very thoroughly. It has been a very pleasant day.

I hope all of you are here next year to help me celebrate it again. Thank you.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. HAYS. Mr. President and Members of the Senate, I think I should call your attention to some things which go on outside of the Senate Chamber at this time.

I think there are some people in the Commonwealth who fear that we are overexpanding and overbuilding the educational institutions of Pennsylvania. These people are probably in the minority.

I want to call your attention to two newspaper articles. One is from Washington, D. C., and reads as follows:

"The nation continues to have a bumper crop of babies.

"More were born during the first four months of 1961 than ever before during the comparable period, the Public Health Service estimated Monday.

"The total reached an estimated 1,382,000 registered births during the four months. The old record was 1,362,000 in 1959 and last year there was a drop to 1,340,000."

I also want to call to your attention another newspaper article which appeared in the Raleigh Times, Raleigh, North Carolina. This article is dated June 14, and reads as follows:

"The state's $1 billion plus budget for the biennium 1961-63—carrying the largest appropriation for education in history—passed into law Tuesday.

"The public school budget alone represents 27.7 per cent of the general fund expenditures and includes a 21.8 per cent raise for teachers, 1,400 additional teachers, additional clerical assistance, a program of in-service training for teachers and a permanent organization of the Curriculum Study Commission.

"The major item in the public school budget is $70 million to finance a pay raise for teachers.

"Other major items in the budget:

"Higher education, $56 million, with the Consolidated University getting $36 million. Funds are included to provide for an approximate 10 per cent raise in faculty salaries."

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

The SPEAKER. At the request of the majority leader and the minority leader, the Chair now recognizes the gentleman from Butler, Mr. King.

Mr. KING. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the indulgence of this House for a few moments to discuss a situation which exists in western Pennsylvania.

The Department of Highways, early this year, released an order which eliminated Van Port limestone, a common limestone found in western Pennsylvania, from its construction and maintenance programs, as related to asphalt paving.

The reason given for this action by the Department is that Van Port limestone polishes under traffic and becomes slippery when wet.

Of course this is true of all aggregates. All polish under traffic and every road in the State is less skid resistant when wet than when dry.

The ruling prohibiting Van Port limestone which has been used in road construction for at least 30 years has caused undue hardship on the producers and their employers of this industry which represents hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of plant investments.

Many road building contractors were left with the problem of finding a substitute for this material. With the low producing capacity of the steel mills, slag is not readily available. It is possible to bring in approved limestone from the State of Michigan through the Port of Erie, but the cost of transportation makes this almost prohibitive.

This leaves no alternative but to use gravel aggregates. There are only three approved sources of this material in our area. (1) The Oil City Sand and Gravel Co. The entire production is contracted for by the Interstate Amesite Co. (2) Tionesta Sand and Gravel Co. and (3) the J. K. Davidson Sand and Gravel Co. of Pittsburgh, which has benefited from this ruling more than any of the other companies.

Several weeks ago, Mr. Speaker, I asked for and received an appointment with the Honorable Park Martin. With me at the meeting were two other members of this House, the Honorable Albert McCandless and the Honorable James Willard. We were told that tests were being made on this material in Washington, D. C., through the facilities of the crushed stone producers and that employees of the Pennsylvania State Highway Department were helping conduct these tests in Washington, D. C.

It seems strange to me, Mr. Speaker, that the Pennsylvania State Highway Department does not possess the proper facilities to test every kind of road-building material.

The latest report that I have had is that according to the tests made in Washington, D. C., Van Port limestone, used with natural sand, compares favorably with other materials in the factors of safety.

If this is true, Mr. Speaker, then I would implore Mr. Park Martin to rescind this order, which I believe to have been an unfair ruling in the first place.

Also I would suggest to Mr. Martin that he send his trusted men out into the field where millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money is spent in highway construction and maintenance to investigate complaints which I have received concerning payoffs between State highway inspectors and road contractors. While they are out there, Mr. Speaker, it might be interesting for them to talk to some of the highway employees about their macing problems.

I would suggest that a complete investigation be made of the Erie Through-way. There is evidence of poorly built highways, where the shoulders were built with boulders instead of the approved base materials.

After the shoulders were completed and the guard rail installed it was necessary to take down the guard rail and build new shoulders or berms. This was done at a very considerable expense to the taxpayers. Part of the road in the North East Township caved in because the job was not done properly. This whole section had to be replaced. A year after the road was opened it still is not completed.

An article published in the Pittsburgh Press as of June 26, 1961, quotes Walter May of the United States Congressional Highway Investigating Committee as saying "Throw a dart at the map of the United States. Wherever it hits, we can find something wrong with the road-building program."

Speaking of an investigation just concluded in New Mexico, Mr. May stated, "This is the third straight hearing in which we have shown substantial wrong-doing in three different States. There is not a State in the country where we cannot investigate and develop substantially the same information."

Mr. Martin, I implore you to see to it that we do not have need for such investigations in the great State of Pennsylvania.

Since the Pennsylvania motorist is now being forced to pay seven cents a gallon gas tax, second only to the State of Washington, which is supposed to bring in $74 million additional money, then I am sure the members of this House will agree that the motorists of this State deserve to get the best for their money without corruption, inefficiency and waste.

Thank you.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House has passed the same with amendments in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Filo.

Mr. FILO. Mr. Speaker, I was locked out before I could vote. I would like to have it noted that I would have voted for this legislation.

The SPEAKER. The remarks of the gentleman will be spread upon the record.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of Senate bill No. 439, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 31, 1949 (P. L. 372), entitled "The General State Authority Act of 1949," empowering the Authority to construct additions and improvements to manual training schools receiving State aid authorizing contracts to lease and leases by the Department of Public Instruction from the Authority of any additions or improvements to manual training and agricultural and industrial schools receiving State aid and furnishing and equipment thereof when used or occupied and authorizing subleases of such projects.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Mr. Speaker, Senate bill 439 is an amendment to the General State Authority Act. It would include among the purposes for which General State Authority funds can be spent, manual training schools and agricultural and industrial schools which are presently receiving State aid.

An amendment to another section would authorize the leases on these projects to be handled through the Department of Public Instruction.

Mr. Speaker, in connection with this bill I would like to interrogate the majority leader.

The SPEAKER. Will the majority leader permit himself to be interrogated by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee, regarding some phase of Senate bill 439?

Mr. McCANN. I yield, Mr. Speaker, to the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Polen.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Polen. Will the gentleman consent to be interrogated?

Mr. POLEN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Mr. Speaker, the addition of these various schools would make them a proper subject for the expenditure of General State Authority funds, is that correct?

Mr. POLEN. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. M. LEE. We passed House bill 1335, which is the General State Authority bill of this session. Were there any authorizations in House bill 1335 for institutions of this particular type?

Mr. POLEN. No, Mr. Speaker, for the institutions that this is intended to cover there was no project included in House bill 1335.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Did the gentleman say there were no such authorizations?

Mr. POLEN. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. M. LEE. In the event we adopt this amendment to the purpose clause of this bill, where is the money going to come from to build these particular facilities?

Mr. POLEN. If we adopt these amendments, it would simply authorize the inclusion of this type in the General State Authority. It would have to be an authorization in a bill similar to 1335 for construction of them. The amendment is intended to cover, I believe, only two schools which do not participate at the present time.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Is the gentleman saying, even if we adopt this amendment we would still at some subsequent time have to put a line authorization in a GSA borrowing bill in order to have these facilities built?

Mr. POLEN. That has been the way we have handled it in the past. As to 1335, it could be that the Senate would include these in 1335, I do not know.

Mr. A. M. LEE. If the Senate included them in 1335, should they not put this amendment in 1335 rather than having a separate bill?

Mr. POLEN. I do not follow the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. M. LEE, Mr. Speaker, 1335 is an amendment to the same act, the General State Authority Act?

Mr. POLEN. That is correct.

Mr. A. M. LEE. So if it was the Senate's intention to make these amendments to the General State Authority Act, they could be included in 1335, is that not correct?

Mr. POLEN. They could be included in 1335, I believe. Without checking it, I am not certain. That is something the Legislative Reference Bureau would have to determine, but I believe the gentleman is correct.

Mr. A. M. LEE. With some trepidation, Mr. Speaker, I would inform the gentleman that I do not see any reason why these amendments could not be included in 1335. They are certainly germane, the same subject, and everything else.

Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman inform me, if we pass this amendment to the GSA bill, whether it would be possible for money to be allocated out of the so-called unallocated funds for the construction of facilities at these types of institutions?

Mr. POLEN. I would say it would be possible, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. M. LEE. So that when the gentleman advised me that it would be necessary to put a line item in 1335, or in some subsequent GSA bill, in order to build these facilities, that was not entirely correct?

Mr. POLEN. Mr. Speaker, I think I referred to the fact that is the way we would handle it in the House. As the gentleman probably knows, and as I know, from the unallocated funds it would be possible for the project to be built. The intention, I believe, of this bill which we have before us, Senate bill 439, is to make agricultural schools and industrial training schools eligible to receive GSA treatment. I think that is what this bill does.

As to what would be done in the Senate or what might be done by GSA as to what they would build, I am not in a position to say.

Mr. A. M. LEE. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

This, again, is another phase of the problem with which this General Assembly is concerned relating to the GSA. Here we are asked to put an authorization in the General State Authority Act which would permit the expenditure of unallocated funds, something over which this legislature has absolutely no control.

I will only say, Mr. Speaker, that so far as we are concerned, it may very well be that manual training schools and agricultural and industrial schools are perfectly proper objects for the expenditure of funds in the capital budget of the Commonwealth. If that is the case, those items should be included line by line in the General State Authority bill with the dollar amount of the authorization in there so that we, the members of the General Assembly, will know exactly what we are getting for our money and what the taxpayers are going to be called upon to pay back over the 25 or 30 years of the life of the bonds.

So I say, Mr. Speaker, this is an example of fiscal irresponsibility. I think this is a bad bill. If this is to be done, it should be done in House bill 1335. I ask the members to vote against it.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

CONGRATULATIONS

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, one of our distinguished members was married last Saturday and he is spending his honeymoon here in the House of Representatives. Representative James Greenlee was married Saturday, June 24th, and his lovely new wife is here in the House with him, Mrs. Ellen Young Greenlee. I just wonder if they would stand up and all give her and Jim a great big hand.

The SPEAKER. The Chair congratulates the gentleman upon his choice, and congratulates him that he is fortunate enough to be chosen.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. TOMPKINS asked unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Title, page 2, next to last line of title, by inserting after "registration" of persons confined to their places of residence by reason of illness or physical disability

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 18), page 3, lines 13 to 20, by striking out "residents of the" in line 13, all of lines 14 to 19, and "shall be deemed to be roving registrars" in line 20, and inserting: registered voters, or fraction thereof, of the county at the preceding general election, designate two duly qualified electors to act as roving registrars. Such registrars shall respectively be of the political party enrolling the largest and second largest number of voters within the county at the preceding general election. The county chairmen of the said political parties may recommend persons to be so designated, but their recommendations shall not be binding upon the commission. Such roving registrars shall be supplied by the commission with registration applications and cards.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 18), page 4, line 2, by inserting after "commission" except that such right shall be limited to the registration of persons who are confined to their places of residence by reason of illness or physical disability, as verified by a statement signed by a physician which statement shall accompany each registration so obtained, and Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 18), page 4, line 9, by inserting after "register" or who is not confined to his place of residence by reason of illness or physical disability.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, the bill before the House now provides for the appointment of roving registrars, two for each 50,000 residents of a county, or fraction thereof, and those registrars to be appointed by the chairmen of the respective political parties which had the highest number of votes in the preceding election.

The amendments provide that, instead of two roving registrars for each 50,000 residents, there shall be two roving registrars for each 50,000 registered electors as determined by the preceding general election.

It also provides that the county registration committee shall receive recommendations from the chairmen of the respective political parties, but that they shall not be bound thereby, and it limits the roving registration to residents by reason of illness or physical disability. In other words, it applies to shut-ins, principally. Those are the things the amendments provide for and we think they make a very much better bill of it in order to take care of those people who under normal, ordinary circumstances are unable to appear at the various registration places as now provided by law.

We think these are very good amendments and ask the members on this side of the House to vote for these amendments.

Mr. GAILEY. Mr. Speaker, I certainly can take no exception to the manner in which the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, explained these amendments. His explanation is entirely correct.

I do, however, take exception to the amendments themselves. They change entirely the context of the bill and its meaning and purpose.

It has been the position of the Democratic Party traditionally to sponsor registration for voting that will make it easier, whenever possible, consistent, of course, with guarding against bad practices.

It is the feeling of the members on this side of the House, I believe, that the bill as presently drawn does that. I feel that the amendments offered would sharply cut back this liberalization in registration and I would ask the membership on both sides of the House to vote against the amendments.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of the amendments, by reducing the numbers of registrars to two for each 50,000 registered electors, instead of two for each 50,000 residents, is to keep such a flock of roving registrars from roaming throughout the county.

Point No. 2: the bill as drafted makes it mandatory upon the county commissioners to accept the recommendations of the chairmen of the political parties. I say to you that when you supersede the power of your duly elected officials to operate in the sphere for which they have been elected by making it mandatory upon them to follow the dictates of the chairman of any political party, you in that respect are breaking down the operation of your local government. They should not have the power to make it mandatory upon the county commissioners to do things that the chairmen of the political parties designate them to do. I think it is a dangerous practice and it will lead to all kinds of abuses. For that reason we think these amendments are good and ought to be adopted.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 884, entitled:

An Act amending the "Pennsylvania Election Code" approved June 3, 1937 (P. L. 1333) removing prohibition against unincorporated associations making political contributions.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?
It was agreed to.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the Minority Leader.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. I believe the Membership all know what this bill does. It permits unincorporated associations to make political contributions. This would open the door to fraud. It is a bad thing to permit this in our elections in Pennsylvania. You are only letting one segment of industry make political contributions, namely, unions and other unincorporated associations and closing the door to corporations and others that might want to do it.

When this session is over with and everything is added up, you will find that a lot of these laws you are trying to put over in a one-sided way will only hurt industry again and in a lop-sided fashion you are trying to legislate here for the benefit of one particular class in the State.

I believe that it would be a bad thing for Pennsylvania and that we should all vote against this bill. We are having a tough enough time to have clean elections in our big cities now without opening the door to wholesale donations to political parties by people who should not be doing it.

Shall the bill pass finally?

NOT VOTING—11

Bossert,	McInroy,	Odorisio,	Ujobai,

Kessler,	Munley,	Strausser,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1270, entitled:

An Act amending the "Liquor Code" approved April 12, 1951 (P. L. 90), providing for the issuance of special caterer's permits.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Liquor Control.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1427, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 26, 1933 (P. L. 89), entitled "An act authorizing any city of the second class in this Commonwealth to sell or dispose of its interest in property condemned for public park or for any public use * * *" authorizing the property to be leased or to be used for other city purposes and removing certain limitations on sale and disposition of the city's right title and interest in property.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein, desires to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb. Will the gentleman form Allegheny, Mr. Lamb, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LAMB. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, what is the primary purpose and the need for this legislation?

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman inform me just which bill he is going to interrogate me on?

The SPEAKER. House Bill 1427, page 20 of the calendar.

Mr. LAMB. Thank you.

If I understand the gentleman's question, what is the purpose of this bill? Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this bill is to allow cities of the second class to dispose of property no longer in the public use, or no longer being used as public parks or public playgrounds.

Mr. Speaker, this is a right that cities of the third class now have that is written into the township code.

It is also written into the borough code. There are, in the course of changing times, properties which were once playgrounds and parks which are no longer used or needed as such. This would give the governing body the right to dispose of these properties. I trust that answers the gentleman's question.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. In part, Mr. Speaker. If your purpose is to dispose of the land, why do you give the city the power to lease? What is the necessity of leasing if the land is no longer needed by the city?

Mr. LAMB. I might say, Mr. Speaker, that the property considered is presently owned by the city and that ordinarily the right to sell also covers the rights of lease. I can imagine situations where cities, for one reason or another, may feel that under the circumstances a leasing arrangement may be better than a sales arrangement, and this would give them that power. Again I say, this is the same power that other municipalities now have.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Is there any provision in this legislation for competitive bidding for sale or lease?

Mr. LAMB. No, Mr. Speaker, there is not. The legislation provides that city council shall determine, by ordinance, that the property under consideration is no longer needed for the public use, and after that determination has been made, the city may then offer the property for sale. I might say, to allay the gentleman's fears, however, that the transaction is public and I feel certain that the best price will be obtained.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, we oppose the passage of this legislation because we feel that where the property of the city is involved, regardless of whether third class cities or other subdivisions have this right, we should get the highest price from the highest bidder whether it be on sale or lease. We should not rely upon private contracts approved by city council. This opens the door to skepticism and sometimes to fraud. For that reason I oppose the passage of this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, may I interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LAMB. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, when the city condemns land, what interest do they acquire by that condemnation under the present law?

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, the interest acquired by the city is the fee simple interest.

Mr. McCORMACK. Is there not also a provision in the law that when that land is acquired for a specific purpose, if it is no longer used for that purpose then it is to revert to the former owner?

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, that is the present law. As the law now reads, if the property were condemned for a park, and at some future time the use was no longer required, the only party the city could convey the interest to would be the person from whom, or against whom, the land was condemned. With the passage of many, many years, whatever the interest of that person might have been is now quite difficult of determination. There may be many, many problems that arise because of the passage of time as to whom the owners might be at this time. The intent of this act is to broaden the power of the municipality to convey to someone other than the person who has the reversionary interest.

Mr. McCORMACK. Granted that in many instances it would be most difficult to trace back the original owner, of course, who owned the land that had been condemned, but I am thinking that in the event there are reversionary interests which you now are attempting to divest, would that not be taking of an interest without due process of law? Would that not be depriving these people without compensating them for that taking away of their reversionary interest when the city no longer needs that land for the specific purpose for which it was condemned?

Mr. LAMB. No. Mr. Speaker, I say it is not. If I am to offer a legal opinion, as I said to the gentleman before, when the city takes that over, it takes title in fee simple. There is no reversionary interest as such, but the law does provide, however, that if at some future time the use is no longer required, the city then would sell to the—for lack of a better word I would call it the—reversionary interest. But under the law of conveyancing there is no reversionary interest established at the time the property is condemned.

Mr. McCORMACK. It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that when the city condemns the land they only have the authority to condemn for so long as that property is needed. One of the members is shaking his head. If he has authority to the contrary I would like to hear it, because that is what I am interested in. This is a legal question to which I would like to have the answer.

It seems to me that the person from whom that property was taken has a reversionary interest and is entitled to receive that property back when the city decides by resolution or by ordinance that they no longer need that property, and, therefore, by operation of law, I should think, it should revert to him, and, if that is so, by this act the city council has to, by resolution or by ordinance, decree that the property or the land is no longer needed for the purpose for which it was condemned. When you say now, if we pass this bill, they can lease it or sell it to someone else, you are depriving the original owner of the reversionary interest without compensating him, and, therefore, I think there is a constitutional question involved that I do not know the answer to, very frankly. I would like to hear some authority on it, if there is an authority in the House.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb.

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, I only wish to make this one point: When the city condemns the property involved, they pay the fair market value for that property and take it in fee simple. This is the highest estate that anyone can take under the law.

Now having this estate, and because of the limitation that was imposed in an earlier law, that they must sell it back to the person from whom it was condemned, we are now trying to broaden that law.

I feel that the House should understand the problems involved here where you have a tract of land where you might have hundreds and hundreds of former owners. Over the period of many, many years the property has been used for public use, a park or for a playground. Now just who the heirs, just who the reversionary interest, as Mr. McCormack might call it, would be, would be practically impossible of determination. So the council of the city of Pittsburgh, or any second class city—and as I said before, every municipality other than the cities of the second class have this right—are asking for the right to sell the property to someone else in the open market.

The theory has been stated here that the property may not go for the best obtainable price or that the lease may not be written on the best terms available. The only thing I can say to that is that certainly since the operation is open and public I feel certain the cities will take every precaution to see that they do get the best price obtainable.

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection,

House bill No. 1604, printer's No. 2018, was passed over at the request of Mr. TOMPKINS.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1616, entitled:

An Act amending "The Permanent Registration Act for Cities of the Second Class Cities of the Second Class A Cities of the Third Class Boroughs Towns and Townships" approved April 29, 1937 (P. L. 487), requiring that registration cards delivered to electors must be uniform.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the minority leader.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, in reading the bill, while we could be wrong about it, it would appear that statewide you would have to have a uniform registration card to be given the voters when they register to vote. I realize that the sponsor had in mind a condition which has been expressed to me that, as he claims, in his county there are different colored cards given depending upon whether you register Democratic or Republican.

This bill seems to be so broad in its application that someone would have to design a standard card and then it would be used statewide. In my own county, the cards that we have would have to be destroyed and we would have to use the card that would be printed and it seems that would put an unnecessary expense on the counties if everybody in the State were required to do this. I really cannot see any necessity for the bill.

What is more, it is to become effective immediately and, if the law were to go into effect, we feel it should not be effective immediately; it should be effective, say, six months from now.

Therefore I believe we should vote against this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Fry.

Mr. FRY. Mr. Speaker, the intent of this bill is not to change any counties where they are using a uniform card at the present time. In my county they do not use a uniform card and that is the only thing we want to correct. We do not care what the colors of the cards are as long as they do not discriminate for or against any political group.

I do not believe that this bill, as it is written, would cause any county, at the present time using a uniform card, to change their system.

For that reason I urge the membership to vote for it.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1665, entitled:

An Act amending the "Local Tax Enabling Act" approved June 25, 1947 (P. L. 1145), requiring taxes collected upon the transfer of real property or of any interest in real property to be collected at the county seat.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Issacs.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LAMB. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, the only thing that this amendment does is to say that the real estate transfer tax must be collected at the county seat. Is that correct?

Mr. LAMB. That is the intent of the bill, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, what is the purpose of the bill?

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this bill is to provide that all municipalities that impose a real estate transfer tax shall have these tax stamps available somewhere in the county seat. The need for this bill is obvious when you realize that in some counties every municipality and school district area imposes a real estate transfer tax. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, it is necessary for whomever may be closing the real estate transaction to go into the municipality or into the school district to buy these stamps. This is an unnecessary hardship and we feel that it would be much better if there was a central place where one might go to acquire these tax stamps.

Mr. ISAACS. Now, Mr. Speaker, who would collect this tax?

Mr. LAMB. The bill is silent, Mr. Speaker, about who will collect the tax. However, the municipality imposing the tax can designate someone in the county seat to be the collector. The practice presently, Mr. Speaker, is that the solicitor—I notice it is true in most of the municipalities in Allegheny County—the solicitor for the municipality is the agent or a bank is designated as the agent.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, what provision is there in this bill either to say who will collect it or what commission, if any, they will be paid for the collection?

Mr. LAMB. The question of commission, Mr. Speaker, is left to the municipality involved. All the municipalities when they impose a transfer tax make some indication therein as to what the commission will be for the collector. This bill in no way interferes with the commission.

Mr. ISAACS. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker, and I would like to debate the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order and will proceed.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose this bill for a number of reasons.

First, and rightly so, it is opposed by the Pennsylvania State tax collectors and I believe by every tax collector in this Commonwealth. I do not know about Allegheny County where the sponsor comes from but in my county the tax is collected by the tax collector of the individual borough or township. In some cases these stamps are issued; in others the deed is stamped that the tax has been paid.

Under interrogation, from the answers of the gentleman from Allegheny, there could be as many collectors as you have municipalities in a county. The bill is very loosely drawn. It does not say who should be the collector other than he should be in the county seat. Under the provisions of this bill, if you had 48 municipalities, you could have 48 different collectors. I think it is poor legislation. It is legislation again attacking home rule, taking your collections away from your local tax collector or treasurer who is elected for that purpose. It serves no good end that I can see. It is more centralization of government and I ask the members on both sides of this House to defeat this measure.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Kramer.

Mr. KRAMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak in support of the bill. This is a very good bill. It makes for common sense.

In Allegheny County we have over a hundred municipalities collecting this realty transfer tax. And a check of the records will show that over 90 percent of those municipalities now collect that tax in downtown Pittsburgh where almost all the real estate transactions are carried out.

If you would ever experience two real estate closings in one day, where you have to transfer monies around immediately and find out at the closing that you have to travel 12 or 15 miles away to pick up the transfer stamps, you would realize the efficiency that this bill will bring about.

Now most of the municipalities in Allegheny County use their solicitors who in almost all cases have offices downtown, or use downtown banks where the purchaser or the seller who has to pay for stamps and put them on the deeds can purchase stamps.

It makes no sense to me whatsoever to require purchasers and sellers of real estate to travel to the outskirts of some of our large counties to pick up stamps when they could have them downtown and buy the stamps immediately.

I ask all members on both sides of the House to vote in favor of the bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Lippincott.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this bill. There may be some merit in the arguments raised by the gentleman from Allegheny, but it seems to me that the way this bill is drawn will create utter chaos and confusion. For the people in our county, we have 49 municipalities and about forty or some school districts. All of them have transfer tax resolutions practically. Everyone is slightly different than every other one. This would mean that whoever collects this tax at the county seat, of course the bill does not say who that is, will have to interpret every one of these resolutions every time a ruling came up. Some resolutions and ordinances exempt transfers between husbands and wives; others do not. There are many different changes and different provisions in the different ordinances and resolutions. Under the present system, the solicitor for each school district and municipality who drew the resolution or ordinance interprets it. I think that is the way it should be. This way you are going to put a burden on someone who will have to read everyone of these ordinances and resolutions to decide what they mean and whether a property is included or not included. Another provision that is very nebulous and vague in this is who is going to be paid for interpreting these resolutions and ordinances and collecting the tax. There is nothing in the bill concerning that.

Now, I would like to point out one other point that the gentleman I think overlooks and that is this: I would say, in my county 75 percent of the resolutions and ordinances do not have stamps in them; they merely have an affidavit or a certification on the deed. There are no stamps being sold. Perhaps, it is common in Allegheny County and our county. I say that this bill, in its present form, would absolutely create tremendous confusion back home in the collection of these taxes and I therefore ask everyone to vote against it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Murphy.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Speaker, I too rise in opposition to this bill. I believe if we are to permit the local authorities to levy a tax, we should also permit them the discretion of naming who shall be their tax collector and, although it may be of convenience to many of us who are solicitors to have these stamps placed in one central locality, we are in a sense infringing upon the home rule of these various taxing bodies and forcing them to go to one place to select their tax collectors. Now, the bill does not say who their tax collectors shall be. It does not guarantee that the tax collector shall be stationed in the courthouse or some other central location. Perhaps every municipality will have twenty or twenty-five people in the city representing the county seat, each individually collecting their real estate transfer tax. This will not simplify matters; it will only complicate them further. Thank you.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Adams.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I have here in my possession a letter from the president of the Tax Collectors' Association of Pennsylvania, Walter A. Benfield, who happens to be one of my constituents. He expresses opposition to this bill, stating that it tends to "break down" home rule, and I would like to have his letter inserted in the record.

The letter submitted was as follows:

PENNSYLVANIA

Office of the President
45 North Sixth Street
Reading, Pa.

June 14, 1961.

Mr. Richard Adams
General Assembly
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania
Dear Mr. Adams:

House Bill No. 1665, Printer's No. 2099, may be coming up before the House in the near future, and we would appreciate your opposing this bill, as it does tend to "break down" Home Rule. We certainly would appreciate your support in helping to oppose this bill.

Very truly yours,
PENNSYLVANIA STATE TAX COLLECTORS' ASSOCIATION

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the minority leader rise?

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. When it was properly voted upon the first time the bill failed. Which roll call do we now go by the de facto roll call or the first one?

The SPEAKER. The last roll call is the one that came through in perfect condition. The other jammed as it was coming through and whether it was right or wrong the Chair did not announce the result because he never received the result from the chief clerk.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Was the voting recorded improperly on the first vote on the bill?

The SPEAKER. We would have to have a statement of the mechanical difficulties. The chief clerk reported that he was unable to furnish the Chair with facts as to the roll call. After they had fixed the machine they asked for another roll call.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, following the roll call I may have something more to say about this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would like to say there was no recording at the machine. The machine was jammed. The members voted but it was not recorded on the roll call, so there was no record. Of course, until it is finally closed you never know what the final showing is to be anyway.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1667, entitled:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1678, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 22, 1935 (P. L. 414), entitled as amended "An act to provide revenue for State purposes imposing taxes upon certain classes of personal property providing for the assessment collection and lien of the same and the distribution of the proceeds thereof imposing duties on executors administrators registers of wills * * *" providing that certain corporations doing business with professional school employes shall not be subject to the provision of the act.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Speaker, House bill 1678, as I understand it, is an attempt to relieve a business corporation, that is a corporation for profit, from the payment of the corporate-loans tax.

The information available to me indicates that this bill applies to one corporation which is engaged in the business of receiving deposits and lending the money to employes of the Philadelphia school system at interest.

I would only say, in my opinion, being a corporation for profit, if we relieve them from the payment of the corporate-loans tax it certainly is not going to benefit the employes of the school system, but would only benefit the stockholders of the corporation.

Therefore, I think it is a bad precedent to set. I think the bill makes a rather narrow classification which probably is unconstitutional. I therefore ask the members to vote against it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, may I interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, is it not a fact that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee, represents the Philadelphia Teachers' Credit Union, which would be hurt competitively by the organization of which he is now complaining?

Mr. A. M. LEE. In answer to the gentleman's interrogation, Mr. Speaker, it is true that in my private law practice I represent the Philadelphia Teachers' Credit Union; my office has represented them for a period of some 20 years.

As far as their being hurt by the passage of this particular legislation, I would say that as far as they are concerned they would be no more hurt than any other credit union in the State of Pennsylvania, any other building and loan, Federal savings and loan, or bank, or any other institution that is in the business of accepting deposits and lending out the money at interest.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, is it not a fact that the Philadelphia Teachers' Credit Union competes with the organization of which the gentleman complains?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I did not understand. Is it not a fact that they do what?

Mr. EILBERG. Compete.

Mr. A. M. LEE. I would say in the nature of the thing certainly they would be in competition, and as I have indicated there would be competition with any institution of a similar nature.

Mr. EILBERG. That is all.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dougherty.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. Mr. Speaker, all this bill does is to release from the corporate-loans tax any institution of this type. This is a very good bill, in my estimation, and I ask the members to vote for it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate either Mr. Eilberg or Mr. Dougherty, or somebody familiar with the terms of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EILBERG. I shall.

Mr. Speaker, may I suggest that Mr. Gelfand would consent to be interrogated if Mr. Tompkins would like any questions answered.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, if this bill passes, is it true that the corporate-loans taxes to which this company or corporation would be subjected would be relieved of those taxes in the State of Pennsylvania?

Mr. GELFAND. I did not hear the question clearly, and if the gentleman will repeat it I will endeavor to answer it if I can.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, if this bill passes, would not this corporation be relieved from the payment of its corporate-loan taxes to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania?

Mr. GELFAND. When the gentleman says "this corporation," I do not know whereof he speaks. If his question is directed to the amendment and the question is: Will it relieve corporations which qualify under this amendment, the answer is yes, it will relieve them of a 4-mill corporate-loan tax.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Would that not be transferred to the holders of those obligations for personal property tax under the form for the 6-mill personal-property tax in Philadelphia?

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, it would transfer that tax in local counties which have a 4-mill personal-property tax to the holder of the note, judgment note, or type of indebtedness—representation of indebtedness. The answer is, yes.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Does not Philadelphia have a 4- or 6-mill tax on personal property?

Mr. GELFAND. The answer to that question is also, yes.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is all, Mr. Speaker. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman's answer to my interrogation indicates that this bill would eliminate taxes due the State of Pennsylvania and transfer those taxes into the coffers of the city of Philadelphia. I do not believe that is a very good procedure with what we have been hollering about for taxes at the Commonwealth level. Furthermore, I have raised the question as to whether or not this might not constitute an unreasonable classification and therefore be declared unconstitutional.

Shall the bill pass finally?

NOT VOTING—9

Bossert,	Mihm,	Odorislo,	Polen,
Eshback,	Munley,	Piper,	Strausser,
Kessler,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up on today's calendar, bills on second reading, House bill No. 226.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House bill No. 226, entitled:

An Act abolishing the penalty of death for any offense for which it presently is a penalty and providing life imprisonment as the sole penalty for any offense for which death is presently a penalty.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendments to House bill 226.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be sent to the desk and read.

The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, has the floor for the reading of his amendments and for his discussion of his amendments. As long as he confines himself to the discussion of the amendments, he has the floor until he has terminated. At the termination of his discussion, other motions of higher priority are in order.

The amendments are rather lengthy. Will the clerk just read them the short way and then the gentleman from Philadelphia explain his amendments?

Mr. McCORMACK. I will be glad to do that, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCORMACK offered the following amendments:

Amend Title, page 1, first line of Title, by striking out "Abolishing" and inserting Providing for a referendum to determine the will of the electorate with respect to abolishing

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, lines 1 and 2, by striking out both of said lines

Amend Sec. 2, page 2, lines 1, 2 and 3, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 3, page 2, lines 4 and 5, by striking out both of said lines, and inserting

Section 1. At the election in the year 1961 there shall be submitted in the manner provided by the election laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, a question to determine the will of the electorate of the Commonwealth in regard to abolishing the penalty of death for any offense for which it is presently an offense, and providing for life imprisonment as the sole penalty in lieu thereof. The question shall be in the following form: Do you favor the abolition of the penalty of death for any offense for which it presently is a penalty and the imposition as the sole penalty—the penalty of life imprisonment in lieu thereof?

Section 2. The question shall be printed on separate ballots in bound form by the county commissioners of each county. A sufficient number of ballots shall be furnished to the election officers in each election district of every county so that one ballot may be supplied to each voter at the election. In districts where voting machines are used, the question shall appear on the face of the machine where the machine is properly equipped for the purpose.

Section 3. The results of the election shall be tabulated by the proper election officials of each county and the results thereof certified to the Secretary of the Commonwealth who shall certify the results thereof to the General Assembly. The General Assembly shall enact legislation to carry out the will of the electors as shown by the return of the election.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, as we all know, House bill 226 has to do with abolishing the penalty of death for the crime of murder in the first degree in the Commonwealth.

These amendments which I have just offered merely amend this bill by providing that the people at the general election in 1961 on a referendum vote should decide the question as to whether or not the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania should abolish the penalty of death for murder and in its place substitute life imprisonment solely. That is the intent and purpose of these amendments.

The reason, Mr. Speaker, I am offering these amendments at the present time is because of my belief that this bill has evoked, more than any other bill presently before the General Assembly, a host of controversy and criticism. As a result of the individual letters that I have received, not only from constituents, but from learned scholars and legal men in Pennsylvania, it has been indicated to me that this is such an important and fundamental issue that the people themselves should have the right to vote on it. Throughout the years there has been a lot of discussion as to the merits of a bill to abolish capital punishment. It is my firm conviction, because this has to do with life and death over individuals, that we can only truly get the will of all the people of Pennsylvania by submitting the question to them for their determination.

I am well aware of the fact that there is sentiment to recommit this bill, but I ask you, after I discuss this, that you not make such a motion because this is going to plague us every year that we come back to Harrisburg. The question is going to be with us, and I think that we ought to know, and we ought to know this year, especially after the Governor and members of his administration have expressed an opinion with respect to the abolition of capital punishment. I would like to know this year so I can decide once and for all what the vast majority of the people of Pennsylvania want to do about capital punishment.

So I therefore ask that, after weighing it carefully, you decide whether or not you feel this issue is so important that we should give it directly to the people for their ultimate and wise decision.

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the majority leader rise?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise simply for the purpose of stating that at the last minute the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein, has come over here and informed me that he has a set of amendments to the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny does not have the floor and whoever is next recognized by the Chair has the floor.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, I will yield to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein.

The SPEAKER. That is all right with the Chair, but you cannot confuse the procedure. If you were proceeding on that basis, the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia will first have to be disposed of and voted on.

Does the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg, desire to be recognized?

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, with due respect for my colleague from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, I at this time move that House bill 226, printer's No. 234, be re-committed to the Committee on rules.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, may I interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EILBERG. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, what is the purpose of recommitment to the Committee on Rules?

Mr. EILBERG. Does the gentleman refer to the question of recommitment or to the question of the committee to which the motion is referred?

Mr. McCORMACK. I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, I did not understand or I did not hear the answer to the question.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman says, does the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, refer to the recommitment or to the committee to which it was referred? Which is he questioning?

Mr. McCORMACK. If he can separate them, give me two answers; if not, give me one.

I question the reason for the recommitment, not to the Rules Committee, but to any committee at this stage of the game.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, one of the considerations in my mind at this time is the fact which may not yet be known to all the members of the House—

The SPEAKER. If the gentleman is about to refer to action as taken in another place, the Chair would have to hold that he was out of order.

Mr. EILBERG. Very well, I will not refer to the action in the other place.

Mr. Speaker, I feel that this bill is a bad bill and I certainly feel that passing a difficult question on to the voters is no way of solving this problem. I feel that should this question appear on the ballot, and I did not hear the amendments or see the amendments as to whether they—

The SPEAKER. The Chair would remind the gentleman that the question is on recommitment and not the amendments proposed by the gentleman from Philadelphia.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, I disagree with the principles set forth in this bill. I think that the matter should be studied further by the committee because it is so controversial.

Mr. McCORMACK. What committee did this come out of Mr. Speaker?

Mr. EILBERG. Judiciary Special.

Mr. McCORMACK. Has it never been to the Rules Committee?

Mr. EILBERG. I do not believe so.

Mr. McCORMACK. I did not hear the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. It was placed in the custody of the Rules Committee with the understanding that later on it would be reported during this session.

Mr. McCORMACK. Was the bill discussed in the Rules Committee?

The SPEAKER. As the gentleman well knows, that is a perfectly improper question.

Mr. McCORMACK. I did not ask what the discussion was.

Mr. Speaker, I am not debating with the Speaker. If you want to be interrogated, I would appreciate it if you would appoint—

The SPEAKER. The Chair is in error. I thought we did send it back, but it was another bill. It was referred to the Committee on Judiciary Special, recommitted to the Committee on Rules on February 20, re-reported as committed from the Committee on Rules on June 20.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I am interrogating the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg. If you desire to be interrogated, I would be glad to interrogate you, but I do not think I should interrogate you while you are in the Speaker's chair.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman asks for information; the Chair furnishes the information asked.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, the reason for recommitment is so that the Rules Committee might study it, and my question, I think, is a fair one; it is reasonable and in compliance with the rules. I just asked whether or not—

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not want to get into an argument with the gentleman from Philadelphia, but the Chair is perfectly cognizant of the reasons why he asks. The chair asks as one of the sponsors of the bill that, rather than riding on the calendar day after day, it be referred to the custody of the Rules Committee with the understanding that during this session it would be reported for action on the floor.

Mr. McCORMACK. But my question is, was it discussed in the Rules Committee?

The SPEAKER. It was referred to the Rules Committee with the prior understanding that at the proper time, sometime during this session, it would be reported.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, as Chairman of the Rules Committee, I can properly say that the legislation was discussed, the same as any other piece of legislation in any other committee is discussed.

Mr. McCORMACK. Inasmuch as it was discussed in the Rules Committee, Mr. Speaker, then what further discussion would be necessary? I do not know who has the floor.

The SPEAKER. If the gentleman from Philadelphia does not soon find out in which direction he is going, he will not have the floor.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I am not worried about where I am going; I am worried about where the bill is going.

Mr. Speaker, may I ask you sincerely whether the motion to recommit is to pickle the bill or to discuss it further?

Mr. SPEAKER. I have answered.

Mr. McCORMACK. Not you, Mr. Speaker, this is—

Mr. SPEAKER. I am answering because I was the primary agent as one of the sponsors of the bill. I knew there would not be early action and, rather than have this bill riding week after week on the second reading calendar, I thought it was better that it be sent to some responsible committee with the understanding that at the proper time, sometime before the session ended, that committee would re-report it. That was done at the request of the Chair and at the request of the gentleman from Cambria, one of the sponsors of the bill.

Mr. McCORMACK. I understand that, Mr. Speaker, perfectly, but I am worried about the future now. Is the bill going back? And I am directing this to Mr. Eilberg through the Chair.

The SPEAKER. Now the gentleman is heading in the right direction. He can ask a proper question, any proper question, of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg, who, at his discretion, is privileged to answer or refuse to answer.

Mr. McCORMACK. Is this motion to recommit a sincere desire to discuss this matter further or is it for the purpose of killing the bill permanently?

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, let me observe, first, that the recommitment to the Rules Committee on February 20, as I recall it, had in mind the fact that a separate hearing was taking place on this very subject, and, rather than have the thing lay on the calendar, it would be taken off the calendar during this separate investigation which was taking place. It is my recollection that the Rules Committee never discussed House bill No. 226. I, therefore, say that by recommitting it to the Rules Committee now it will give us an opportunity in the committee to discuss the bill.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, on this recommitment motion, my amendments are not part of the bill that is being recommitment. Is that correct, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. The amendments will travel along with the bill if the motion prevails. Your proposed amendments will also be in the custody of the Rules Committee if the motion to recommit prevails.

Mr. McCORMACK. If I withdrew the amendments now, would you withdraw the motion and let the bill come up for a vote?

The SPEAKER. The Chair did not make the motion. The Chair cannot deny the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg, the privilege of making the motion to recommit. The only thing before the House is the motion to recommit.

Mr. McCORMACK. Well, Mr. Eilberg, if I withdrew the amendments, would you be satisfied with the bill in that form?

Mr. EILBERG. I feel that the bill should be studied further by the Rules Committee.

Mr. McCORMACK. That is all I have, Mr. Speaker.

I would like to address myself very briefly to this motion.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order., ,

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, despite the interrogation, I am convinced that this bill will definitely not again see the light of day in this session. That is a prediction that I can make with a reasonable degree of accuracy.

Now, personally, at this stage of the game I am against the bill, but at the same time I recognize and I ask the other members to recognize the fact that this is a perennial problem and we cannot sweep it under the rug forever. We are going to have pressure groups and other groups coming up constantly asking us to do something about it. We have the attorney general who is in favor of it. Even the Governor went on record, I believe, as favoring abolishment. So we are going to get this pressure and I say, do not recommit the bill. Vote on it. Make an intelligent decision. Examine your consciences. If you are in favor of it, vote for it; if you are against it, vote against it, but do not sweep it under the rug. We have got to live with this. We have got to probe into the minds of the criminals to decide whether this is a good time to abolish the death penalty. There are all sorts of arguments that you can make on a motion to recommit, but at the same time it deserves a hearing on the merits, and we cannot give it that under the parliamentary procedure on a motion to recommit.

For goodness sakes, vote against this motion and then do what your consciences dictate. I ask you to vote against the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley.

Mr. WORLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose this motion to recommit.

This General Assembly has had the taxpayers pay for public hearings and reports on whether or not this legislation should be enacted into law. Lives are waiting in the death cells of this Commonwealth pending the outcome of this legislation and the people of Pennsylvania have not sent us here to pass the buck.

We must be statesmen in our small way. We must stand for the right as God gives us the inner light to see the right. I say we must vote against this motion to recommit and then we must have courage to take our stand for right as we now see it, whatever that shall be.

Mr. Speaker, a vote to recommit is a vote for capital punishment. I say that a vote to recommit is a vote for the death penalty in Pennsylvania. I ask you to vote against this motion to recommit and I ask for a recorded roll call.

Let us have a chance to face this issue and let us have a chance to wipe this barbaric law from the statute books of this Commonwealth.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose this motion for recommitment.

I want it clearly understood that in so doing I am not expressing any opinion either in favor of, or against, the bill. I do not address myself to the merits of this bill, but I think that every legislator in this House knows there is not a single piece of legislation that has been presented to us this session about which more controversy has arisen than the bill before us at this time.

This bill places upon our shoulders a tremendous responsibility. As someone said who preceded me, there are lives hanging in the balance. We have read where executions that are pending have been deferred until the legislature disposes of this piece of legislation. If we, in effect, kill this bill, and again I reiterate, I am not expressing an opinion as to the bill, but if we kill this bill we will be essentially pulling the electrocution lever.

Now frankly, this is too heavy a responsibility for me to assume or for any legislator to assume, and when you have such controversy, such expression of opinion, both for and against a bill, I think we should look for a clear mandate from the citizenry of this State. We should be instructed by the people of this State what their wishes are in this thing. Now if this bill is killed, the referendum which is the contemplated course of action that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, hopes to accomplish will, in effect, be done for. I say this is a problem that we should give back to the people to have them give us their mandate and have them tell us just what their desire in this thing is.

It is for these reasons that I oppose this recommitment motion.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, desire to be recognized?

Mr. GAILEY. Very briefly, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from York.

Mr. GAILEY. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman, has said, I think probably more cogently and more expressively than I could, my point of view on this matter before us. I just want, in the space of a few seconds, to lend my voice to his in a plea to this House to consider the bill on its merits.

I do not think anyone can say that the bill is not in proper form. The bill is perfectly clear, perfectly well drafted; we all know exactly what this bill does. I think, also, that perhaps there has not been an issue before us in this session, or within recent memory, which has been more explored in detail, on which we have not been exposed to the arguments both pro and con, any more than this bill which is before us now. This is to my mind one of the great moral issues of our time, and it seems to me that this House in one way or another should face this issue. To vote to recommit this bill at this time will serve only to muddy the issue. I do not think there is anyone here who in his heart would pretend that this bill needs further study. I think the sole purpose of this motion is to help us avoid making a decision on this issue. I think it is high time that we made such a decision. I think the members of this House should gather their courage in both hands, vote against this motion for recommitment, and then consider this bill on its merits.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the lady from Philadelphia, Mrs. Pashley.

Mrs. PASHLEY. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley, to say that if you voted against recommitment you would be for or against this bill? I intend to vote against recommitment and I am opposed to this bill. I am for capital punishment and I want that stated clearly.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Irvis.

Mr. IRVIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the motion for recommitment. I think never before have we had our hands so close to a great moral issue as we have here today. I think, also, that this is an issue which transcends party lines, group interest and even individual preferences. I have every confidence, Mr. Speaker, that those of us who sit in the hall of this House are today prepared to debate this issue, are today prepared to decide it. I think if we recommit this bill now, we shall have run like frightened rabbits to the nearest hole. I think nobody wishes to be that.

Therefore, I oppose the motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Kramer, desire to be recognized? The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Kramer.

Mr. KRAMER. Mr. Speaker, will the majority leader submit himself to interrogation, please?

Mr. McCANN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. KRAMER. Mr. Speaker, in order to aid me in deciding how to vote on the motion to recommit, I would like to ask the majority leader what action will be taken on Resolution No. 28?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, Resolution No. 28, which may be found on page 40, if the motion to recommit carries, will be called up immediately and I will make a motion to recommit it to the Committee on Rules.

Mr. KRAMER. You will recommit Resolution No. 28, along with House bill No. 226?

Mr. McCANN. No, I will make a motion to recommit Resolution No. 28, if the recommittal motion carries on House bill 226.

Mr. KRAMER. Thank you, sir.

Mr. Speaker, if I understood the majority leader's answer to my question, that would then mean that those people who are now in the penitentiary awaiting disposition of this bill would, as Mr. Fineman stated, be subject to be placed in the electric chair. If, as was stated by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg, the reason for recommitment is the further study of this bill, then I for one would not want to have anyone's death placed on my shoulders if it should later turn out that this legislature should pass a bill such as House bill 226.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted as follows:

Mr. Lippincott for Mr. ISAACS for remainder of today's session.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion to recommit House bill No. 226?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. EILBERG and WORLEY and were as follows:

NOT VOTING—11

Bossert,	Kessler,	O'Dell,	Seltzer,
George,	Mihm,	Odorisio,	Strausser,
Isaacs,	Munley,	Piper,

So the question was determined in the negative and the motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I rise to debate the amendments.

The SPEAKER. The amendments are before the House and the gentleman is in order.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I rise in firm opposition to the amendments which have been presented by Mr. McCormack.

I take this stand because I believe when we were elected to represent our constituents we had a firm duty to come to Harrisburg and represent them in all measures which come before this legislature, be they controversial or not. To my way of thinking this legislation, though it touches on the moral convictions of many of us, is no more controversial than many of the tax measures that we have voted on in this House, many of the bills dealing with schools that we have voted on in this House, and a multitude of other measures which have touched the entire Commonwealth.

It is my firm belief that when a man is elected to public office to represent his community in the halls of the legislature that it is incumbent upon him to represent that community fully. Unless he is willing to do so and assume the responsibility of voting for or against any measure which is placed before him, he abdicates the purpose for which he is elected. I feel that the legislature is a body of able men, men who are elected on platforms which have planks, men who come here to take positions on controversial issues and let the chips fall where they may.

I think it is incumbent upon us to stand up at this time to be counted on this great moral issue, one of the great moral issues of our times. I think it is incumbent upon us, no matter what may happen to each of us individually in the future, to express a firm conviction as to whether or not we are in favor of or against capital punishment. When we shift the burden to our community it is to say that though we have received a great deal of information, though we have received the results of a study which has taken some weeks and which was made by a joint body of this legislature, and though we have all this information at our fingertips we are still—except to touch the issue gingerly—unwilling to take a position. I believe firmly that if the position you take is strong within your mind and your conscience and your heart, you can go back to your own community and make your people, your constituents, believe, no matter what position you have taken, at least you acted in the way you thought was right and for the benefit of the entire Commonwealth.

I have made a decision here. I have thought; I have considered; I have weighed; and, I have reached a conclusion. I for one, am going to express it by voting on this bill as it is. I believe that every legislator here in this hall today has that same duty. He should be willing to recognize that duty and take the responsibility upon his shoulders to do what he has been elected to do, and that is to vote for or against legislation which is presented to him and not to send it back to his local community for a referendum, or allow it to get tossed in the winds by every emotional speaker who takes the stand and takes the stump in order to present the issue with a tremendous amount of emotion and no logic.

I call upon you all, under these circumstances, to give my words full and weighty thought, and, after you have given them full and weighty thought, to vote against this amendment to send it back to the community for a referendum. What you do is abdicate the very purpose for which you have been elected and you demean your capacity as a legislator.

I beseech you to disregard this amendment and vote it down resoundingly so that we can vote on the bill and have a true expression of what we really think our community wants.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Filo.

Mr. FILO. Mr. Speaker, I think that everybody knows the position of the Fraternal Order of Police regarding this legislation and I know that they are unprepared for any amendments to be offered, such as those offered by Mr. McCormack.

I took it upon myself to talk to some of the members of the FOP. They are opposed to any amendments to this bill such as those proposed by Mr. McCormack. I thank you.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, very briefly in reply to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand, I want to stress the fact that we are not dealing with property rights but we are dealing with human lives. I think if ever there was any reason why we should submit a question to a referendum of the people, we should certainly in this instance put it directly to the people.

It is needless for me to say that there is ample precedent in this General Assembly for referendums. Just in the past few years we were apparently unable to decide whether we should have harness racing in the counties, and we therefore submitted that to a referendum. I recall very well that the gentleman from Philadelphia voted in favor of that. With respect to the Sunday sales of liquor in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, we recall the vote on that. Certainly if these matters can be referred to the people—they are so insignificant by comparison—we should without hesitation submit this question of human lives to the people of the Commonwealth for them to decide. If we get such mandate from them, then I say we should come back here and pass a bill abolishing it. But until we get that mandate no one knows what the majority of our citizens want. It is those people whom we have to protect. They are the ones who are causing such comment and criticism and discussion about this. They are the ones who want something done, who want protection of their lives and property. So let them tell us that we should abolish it and I will be the first one to come back here and introduce a bill to amend the Penal Code, but until such a time as we hear from the people I think we ought not to meddle into this very important aspect of the criminal law. Thank you.

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

MESSRS. M. H. GOLDSTEIN and HAUDENSHIELD offered the following amendments:

Amend Title, page 1, lines 1, 2 and 3 of Title, by striking out all of said lines and inserting

Amending the act of June 24, 1939 (P. L. 872), entitled "An act to consolidate, amend and revise the penal laws of the Commonwealth," creating new classes of murder in the first degree and providing for the fixing of penalties.

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, lines 1 and 2, by striking out both lines

Amend Sec. 2, page 2, lines 1, 2 and 3, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 3, page 2, lines 4 and 5, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 4, page 2, line 6, by striking out all of said line and inserting

Section 1. Section 701, act of June 24, 1939 (P. L. 872), known as "The Penal Code," amended December 1, 1959 (P. L. 1621), is amended to read:

Section 701. Murder of the First and Second Degree.—All murder which shall be [perpetrated by means of poison, or by lying in wait, or by any other kind of willful, deliberate and premeditated killing, or which shall be committed in the perpetration of, or attempting to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery burglary, or kidnapping, shall be murder in the first degree of the felony class. All murder which shall be perpetrated by means of poison, or by lying in wait, or by any other kind of willful, deliberate and premeditated killing shall be murder in the first degree of the non-felony class. All other kinds of murder shall be murder in the second degree. The jury before whom any person indicted for murder shall be tried, shall, if they find such person guilty thereof, ascertain in their verdict whether the person is guilty of murder of the first [or] degree of the felony class, murder of the first degree of the non-felony class or murder of the second degree. If such person is convicted by confession, the court shall proceed, by examination of witnesses, to determine the degree of the crime, and to give sentence accordingly.

Whoever is convicted of the crime of murder of the first degree is guilty of a felony and shall be sentenced to suffer death in the manner provided by law, or to undergo imprisonment for life, at the discretion of the jury trying the case, which shall, in the manner herein-after provided, fix the penalty. [In the trial of an indictment for murder, the court shall inform the jury that if they find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree, it will be their further duty to fix the penalty therefor, after hearing such additional evidence as may be submitted upon that question. Whenever the jury shall agree upon a verdict of murder of the first degree, they shall immediately return and render the same, which shall be recorded, and shall not thereafter be subject to reconsideration by the jury, or any member thereof. After such verdict is recorded and before the jury is permitted to separate, the court shall proceed to receive such additional evidence not previously received in the trial as may be relevant and admissible upon the question of the penalty to be imposed upon the defendant, and shall permit such argument by counsel, and deliver such charge thereon as may be just and proper in the circumstances. The jury shall then retire and consider the penalty to be imposed and render such verdict respecting it as they shall agree upon. A failure of the jury to agree upon the penalty to be imposed, shall not be held to impeach or in any way affect the validity of the verdict already recorded, and whenever the court shall be of opinion that further deliberation by the jury will not result in an agreement upon the penalty to be imposed, it may, in its discretion, discharge the jury from further consideration thereof, in which event if no retrial of the indictment is directed, the court shall sentence the defendant to life imprisonment upon the verdict theretofore rendered by the jury, and recorded as aforesaid. The court shall impose the sentence so fixed as in other cases. In cases of pleas of guilty, the court where it determines the crime to be murder of the first degree, shall, at its discretion, impose sentence of death or imprisonment for life. Where a sentence of death is imposed, the clerk of the court, wherein conviction takes place shall, within ten (10) days after such sentence of death, transmit a full and complete record of the trial and conviction to the Governor.] Whoever is convicted of murder in the first degree of the non-felony class shall be guilty of a felony and shall undergo imprisonment for life.

Whoever is convicted of the crime of murder of the second degree is guilty of a felony, and shall, for the first offense, be sentenced to undergo imprisonment by separate or solitary confinement not exceeding twenty (20) years, or fine not exceeding ten thousand dollars, or both, and for the second offense shall undergo imprisonment for the period of his natural life.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of these amendments is to redefine murder in the first degree.

Murder in the first degree today calls for the alternative punishment of the death penalty or life imprisonment in the discretion of the jury or the discretion of a court.

The present law now defines murder in the first degree as follows: "All murder which shall be perpetrated by means of poison or by lying-in-wait or by any other kind of willful, deliberate and premeditated killing, or which shall be committed in the perpetration of or attempting to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery, burglary or kidnapping shall be murder of the first degree."

Now, briefly speaking, my amendments are as follows:

I propose that there shall be two classifications of murder in the first degree.

Murders of the felony class, which will be murder occurring in the attempt to commit or committing any robbery, burglary, rape, arson or kidnapping.

All other murders such as lying-in-wait, or the so-called premeditated murder, shall be murder of the first degree of the non-felony class. If it be a murder of the felony class of first degree murder, then the penalty of death can still be imposed by the court or by the jury.

If it be a murder of the non-felony class, then the punishment shall be limited to life imprisonment.

And my reason for this is briefly as follows: The murders which occur in the course of a hold-up or a kidnapping, like the "Lindberg Case," are murders for the purpose of making money. These are generally professional murders. Sometimes we have cases where they are boys or young men of tender years, and in those exceptional cases the jury can give life imprisonment if it so desires.

Now, what concerns the public a great deal are these so-called murders of passion, or murders which sometime occur by lying-in-wait which relate to murders in passion, which the public feels do not warrant the death penalty. I may be wrong, but I believe there is a man in the Rockview Penitentiary now who is awaiting execution for a lying-in-wait murder of the first degree.

If the law would be as I propose his punishment would be life imprisonment at the maximum.

Now, briefly speaking and to summarize, we feel that the felony murder warrants the continuation of the death penalty. We feel that other types of murders warrant only life imprisonment. We are not trying to compromise. We have had this particular amendment in our files since last February. We think this is the answer and we would like to have the gentlemen on both sides of the aisle vote in favor of this amendment. Thank you.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, desire to be recognized?

Mr. McCORMACK. I wish to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. M. H. Goldstein.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. M. H. Goldstein, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCORMACK. I am not sure whether I understand the intent of your amendment, so let me give you a hypothetical situation. Let us say that I was seeking revenge upon several people and that I decided to do away with them, so I got myself a machine gun and I waited for them over a weekend, Saturday and Sunday, and they did not appear and, on Monday morning, let us say, five out of the twelve whom I was seeking to annihilate appeared and I proceeded, being of sound mind, to mow these people down, to kill them. As I understand from what you said, a murder of that type would not be subject to the death penalty, is that correct?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. That is correct, because I feel that if you were of such character that it is a crime related to passion or revenge and it is not the type of crime that repeats itself, I feel that under those circumstances you might border on action insanity but not legal insanity, and I am not trying to be facetious. Therefore I believe that type of murder should be confined and limited to life imprisonment. However, should you have hired some person to hold somebody up for the purpose of robbing them of the proceeds of a business, which is robbery or highway robbery, even though you are a principal and not directly in the crime, you would get the death penalty.

Mr. McCORMACK. Now, let us carry that hypothetical situation one step further. Let us suppose that I was a little timid about that and I hired a professional killer to do this same act. This professional killer, acting on my request, proceeds and does accomplish this act and kills five or six people, he still would not be subject to the death penalty. Is that correct?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. That is correct. Yes.

Mr. McCORMACK. That's all.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Kramer.

Mr. KRAMER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. KRAMER. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman aware under the felony murder rule and the Supreme Court decision in the Redline case that an accomplice who may be hundreds of yards away, who may be in an automobile without knowledge of what was going on at the scene of a homicide, who may not himself have any intention whatsoever to do any harm, bodily harm, to a victim, could be found guilty of murder in the first degree under the present law?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. I am aware of that and I am aware also of this factual situation. I believe it is a Philadelphia case. Two or three men were engaged in the robbery of a store and while fleeing from the store a policeman killed one of the culprits, and I believe the Supreme Court sustained the conviction of first degree murder with the death penalty on the ground that the murder occurred in the course of attempting a burglary or robbery. The fact that the man is an accomplice 100 yards away does not make him any less guilty. He may be the brains of the operation.

What I am trying to do in here is to rationalize and take care of the crimes which are not generally crimes of passion but which are mercenary crimes and crimes for the purpose of getting money.

Mr. KRAMER. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman agree then that under his amendments it would still be possible for a person who accompanied another person but who did commit the homicide, who did not have actual intent to commit homicide, and had no knowledge of the actual homicide, to be electrocuted?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. He could.

Mr. KRAMER. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I had occasion to defend a man in a murder case whereby the facts are roughly as asked in my question of Mr. Goldstein. This particular man did not know anything about the homicide, I believe the facts of the case show. The facts did show, however, he was in the vicinity and did accompany the person who may have committed this homicide. Under facts like this, this young man could have been put in the electric chair and killed for something he did not know anything about and had no actual hand in.

For that reason I say these are bad amendments. I would ask all persons on the floor of this House to vote against them.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb.

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein, consent to interrogation?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, would a murder committed during a prison break be considered first degree murder punishable by death, under your amendments?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. It would not.

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, would a murder committed by, let us say, a poisoning be considered first degree murder, under your amendments?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. It would not.

Mr. LAMB. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LAMB. Mr. Speaker, speaking now on the amendments, I rise to oppose the amendments and to lend my support to Mr. Kramer.

I also wish to point out that the answers of Mr. Goldstein to interrogation by Mr. Kramer and myself would indicate that there are many fields where murder—I will call it murder in the first degree—committed in the act of a prison break, murder committed by lying-in-wait, murder committed by some hired, professional killer, these would be removed from the act; whereas, on the other hand, a murder committed by accident in the course of a robbery would be considered murder under the act and punishable by death. I think that this is a very illogical distinction and I oppose the amendments.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein.

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to speak briefly on the observations of Mr. Lamb and Mr. Kramer on murder by accident.

The law today is that if A, B and C are engaged in the holdup of a grocery store and B is in a car 300 feet away from the store and a murder occurs, he is guilty of murder in the first degree today and can be sent to the electric chair. He is just as guilty in the eyes of the law as the man who pulled the trigger. That is perfectly all right in that particular type of crime because a good genius would always be in the get-away car, he would not pull the trigger, he would have a sucker to pull the trigger and go to the chair while he would get life imprisonment or less.

Now I advocate, so far as felony murders are concerned, and I repeat, murder committed in the course of perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate the following crimes: arson, rape, robbery, burglary or kidnapping shall be felony murders and shall be subjected to the death penalty. What Mr. Kramer is so concerned about today is the law as it is today and I am not changing that law.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman.

Mr. FINEMAN. I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, just one question for purposes of clarification.

If the act of a defendant can be described as being both a felony and a non-felony type of action, what do your amendments provide? In other words, if someone sets out to rob an individual and he lies in wait for that purpose so that his action is both felony and non-felony, which penalty is assessed against that defendant?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Why, of course, it would be a felony murder because the legislature in 1860 defined murder in the following types: lying-in-wait, murder occurring during the course of arson or rape or burglary as first degree murder. So if Mr. A was lying in wait for the purpose of robbery, he would be in the felony murder class.

Mr. FINEMAN. That is, with your amendments?

Mr. M. H. GOLDSTEIN. Sure, the method in which he committed the murder would be immaterial, whether he did it lying in wait or not lying in wait.

Mr. FINEMAN. I thank the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley.

Mr. WORLEY. In these amendments, Mr. Speaker, apparently there seems to be a distinction without a difference, and I ask that they be voted down.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. SCHAAF offered the following amendments:

Amend Title, page 1, lines 1, 2 and 3 of Title, by striking out all of said lines and inserting

Amending the act of June 24, 1939 (P. L. 872), entitled "An act to consolidate, amend and revise the penal laws of the Commonwealth," changing the method for determining the penalty to be imposed for the crime of murder of the first degree and providing for review.

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, lines 1 and 2, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 2, page 2, lines 1, 2 and 3, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 3, page 2, lines 4 and 5, by striking out both of said lines

Amend Sec. 4, page 2, line 6, by striking out all of said line and inserting

Section 1, Section 701, act of June 24, 1939 (P. L. 872), known as "The Penal Code," amended December 1, 1959 (P. L. 1621), is amended to read:

Section 701. Murder of the First and Second Degree.—All murder which shall be perpetrated by means of poison, or by laying in wait, or by any other kind of willful, deliberate and premeditated killing, or which shall be committed in the perpetration of, or attempting to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery, burglary, or kidnapping, shall be murder in the first degree. All other kinds of murder shall be murder in the second degree. The jury before whom any person indicted for murder shall be tried, shall, if they find such person guilty thereof, ascertain in their verdict whether the person is guilty of murder of the first or second degree. If such person is convicted by confession, the court shall proceed, by examination of witnesses, to determine the degree of the crime, and to give sentence accordingly.

Whoever is convicted of the crime of murder of the first degree is guilty of a felony and shall be sentenced to suffer death in the manner provided by law, or to undergo imprisonment for a term of twenty-five (25) years to life, at the discretion of the (jury) judge trying the case, (which shall, in the manner hereinafter provided, fix the penalty. In the trial of an indictment for murder, the court shall inform the jury that if they find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree, it will be their further duty to fix the penalty therefor, after hearing such additional evidence as may be submitted upon that question. Whenever the jury shall agree upon a verdict of murder of the first degree, they shall immediately return and render the same, which shall be recorded, and shall not thereafter be subject to reconsideration by the jury, or any member thereof. After such verdict is recorded and before the jury is permitted to separate, the court shall proceed to receive such additional evidence not previously received in the trial as may be relevant and admissible upon the question of the penalty to be imposed upon the defendant, and shall permit such argument by counsel, and deliver such charge thereon as may be just and proper in the circumstances. A failure of the jury to agree upon the penalty to be imposed, shall not be held to impeach or in any way affect the validity of the verdict already recorded, and whenever the court shall be of opinion that further deliberation by the jury will not result in an agreement upon the penalty to be imposed, it may, in its discretion, discharge the jury from further consideration thereof, in which event if no retrial of the indictment is directed, the court shall sentence the defendant to life imprisonment upon the verdict theretofore rendered by the jury, and recorded as aforesaid. The court shall impose the sentence so fixed as in other cases. In cases of pleas of guilty, the court where it determines the crime to be murder of the first degree, shall, at its discretion, impose sentence of death or imprisonment for life. Where a sentence of death is imposed, the clerk of the court, wherein conviction takes place, shall, within ten (10) days after such sentence of death, transmit a full and complete record of the trial and conviction to the Governor.)

Whoever is convicted of the crime of murder of the second degree is guilty of a felony, and shall, for the first offense, be sentenced to undergo imprisonment by separate or solitary confinement not exceeding twenty (20) years, or fined not exceeding ten thousand dollars, or both, and for the second offense shall undergo imprisonment for the period of his natural life.

When any person is convicted of murder in the first degree and a sentence is imposed or when any person pleads guilty and the court determines the crime to be murder in the first degree and a sentence is imposed, the Supreme Court shall automatically review the case whether or not the defendant appeals.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Schaaf.

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, these amendments are offered on the basis of an assumption. The assumption on my part, and my assumption alone, is that the disposition of this House is to defeat House bill 226.

I offer these amendments after observing for the period of the last six or seven months the controversy which has raged around this issue. I think that my amendments, my own personal belief, at least, is that they have some merit to them.

The amendments provide three things basically:

Number one, where life imprisonment is to be imposed, as opposed to death, life imprisonment is then modified so that the sentencing authority has discretion as to whether or not to give from 25 years to life.

Number two, the province of sentencing is removed from the jury and is given to the judge alone.

Number three, a sentence of conviction is automatically reviewable by the Supreme Court.

Why, Mr. Speaker, do I offer these amendments? I have come to two conclusions. Number one: the biggest deficiency in the system presently employed here in the State of Pennsylvania seems to be best illustrated by the argument that the poor fellow does not have the benefits of the wealthy lawyers, and consequently he is the fellow who is more apt to go to the electric chair. Statistics seem to bear this out. If you are a wealthy man and you can hire good legal counsel, chances are you will end up in jail. If you are not so wealthy, then you will end up in the electric chair.

The second observation that seems to have been made here in the past is that there is no uniformity in the sentences imposed county to county, in the sense that some counties habitually do not sentence to the electric chair, while other counties for similar crimes do sentence to the electric chair.

Mr. Speaker, I submit that these amendments would give a degree of uniformity, give a degree of standardization in the imposition of the death penalty here in Pennsylvania. To that extent, and as I say, on the assumption that this legislature is disposed to defeat the bill in its present form, the amendments are offered. I thank the Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. HELM IN THE CHAIR

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE POSTPONED

Agreeably to order,

The bill having been called up from the postponed calendar by Mr. McCANN.

The House resumed the consideration on final passage of House bill No. 1162, entitled

An Act amending "The C P A Law" approved May 26, 1947 (P. L. 318), further regulating the certification and public practice of certified public accountants.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HOCKER. Mr. Speaker, the hour is getting late and I do not want to go over the ground that has been covered on this bill. I think much has been said in favor and against the bill. I just want to let it be known that I am still opposed to the bill and I want to reiterate to the members of this House that if they want to take the privileges away from the boys and girls of America, this is the best way to do it.

Mr. BACKENSTOE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EILBERG. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BACKENSTOE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman tell me if there is any language in this statute which would prohibit an accountant who is not a CPA from using the title "Public Accountant"?

Mr. EILBERG. There is no language in the bill which would prevent a public accountant from using such a title.

Mr. BACKENSTOE. Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman to look at page 22, lines 3 through 6, which say that it shall be unlawful for any person or partnership to use a title including the word "certified" as a part thereof or any other title or designation likely to be confused with certified public accountant or any title or designation implying or connotating accreditation by State or political subdivision of the United States. Would those words prohibit an accountant who is not a CPA from using the title "Public Accountant?"

Mr. EILBERG. They would not.

Mr. BACKENSTOE. Mr. Speaker, is it the intent of the legislators, the drafters of this statute, and, in effect, the legislative intent to allow accountants who are not CPA's to use the title "Public Accountants"?

Mr. EILBERG. That would certainly be my understanding.

Mr. BACKENSTOE. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. I have done a lot of talking today and I do not intend to do very much more.

I understand that on this bill the orders to pass it have come down.

For some reason or other nobody passed the orders along to me. I do not know whether that is a compliment or not.

I do not like this bill. I do not like the manner in which the people, and I am not referring to the members of this House, the people back of this bill have gone about passing it. They have been arrogant. They come down here with a program, and in conference up there are asked, Why don't you fellows get together with these other people and talk a little bit of compromise? Absolutely nothing doing. They insist on passing the bill as is.

Well, maybe there are some amendments in the bill now—it has been amended, but they still leave the words in "or its equivalent" as far as education is concerned. Do you know how they justify the equivalent? Why they say that is the way we knock out lawyers sometimes. Yes, that is the way they get around somebody when they do not want him, they lick him on the equivalent.

I still maintain that the only way you can determine whether anybody has a sufficient background of knowledge to pass an examination is for him to pass the examination. That is the determination and I do not care what bill it is, it has no right to say "the equivalent," and then butter up this bit of legislation by saying they are not going to put it in full force for six years. It is the principle of the thing that I address to the conscience of this House and the principle is simply this: That anybody who claims to have the background to take the examination should have the chance to prove it by the examination and not by any board, particularly if they are as firm and as arrogant with the people before them as they have been with me. I will say there is small chance of anybody they did not like getting by; they would trot out the "equivalent" and say, "the equivalent, you have not got it, and you are out."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Adams.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I will make it very brief. Sunday afternoon a CPA came to my home to speak in behalf of this bill and wanted to know the reason I had opposed it previously. I explained it to him.

I asked him what was wrong with the present law. He said, "Is there a present law?" I said, "yes, there is." He went on, and so I said, "What is wrong with the present law?" He said, "Nothing." I said, "Well then, why change it? Why not keep it the way it is?" That is what I say now, why not keep it the way it is?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Morley.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman yields to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Morley.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman.

Mr. MORLEY. Mr. Speaker, when this bill was under discussion a week ago, the Speaker of this House came down into the well and he labeled this a bad bill. I also called it a bad bill. We gave our reasons and this House voted it down. Since then I have given this bill further study and consideration and I can only come to one conclusion and that is, Mr. Speaker, that this bill is twice as bad as I thought it was.

Once again I ask the members of this House to vote it down.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, I would at this time like to particularly address my remarks by way of reply to those of the Speaker, Mr. Andrews.

I would call to his attention again, and to the members of this House, that the use of the language "equivalent" appears many times in our satutory law. It appears in the medical practices act, it appears in the chiropody act, it appears in the chiropractic registration act, it appears in the registered architects' act, it appears in the optometrists' act, so that the word "equivalent" has a very definite statutory meaning.

The Speaker and others have placed great emphasis on the significance of passing the examination. I happen to be a lawyer, and in the course of my life I have taken many examinations, many, many examinations—many final examinations. I tell you, Mr. Speaker, sometimes when the morning of the examination came I was real good and ready. Other times I was in poor shape, relatively, physically or otherwise. I say that no examination in itself is a complete answer to a man's quality. I say that, by attempting to raise the level of educational requirements, we broaden the man, broaden his background and make him better able to serve the public.

The Speaker has said on a couple of occasions in his remarks that the people who are interested in these bills, the CPA's among others, have been arrogant men. Perhaps this has been his experience, but I would like to say to him that I have found them to be completely professional, completely mannerly, and it may be that the Speaker has in mind other people than those with whom I have talked, but it has been a distinct pleasure to talk and learn about this particular bill.

I say that this bill had a very close call the last time it was up. It is worthy of reconsideration and I hope you will vote for it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Boies.

Mr. BOIES. Mr. Speaker, this nonsense about depriving the youth of the country of an opportunity by setting up an education standard is, as the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Morley, says, double nonsense.

If this is a profession, let us make it a profession or say that it is not a profession. If it is a profession, it must have professional standards and educational standards. The remarks of the Speaker would indicate that all that is necessary to pass a professional examination is the ability to pass that particular examination. Would anybody here want, as I said before, a physician or a surgeon who has had no professional, no educational standards to meet, before taking that examination?

It is ridiculous. You either have a profession here with professional and educational standards or you do not. If you think it is a profession in the true meaning of a profession, vote for this bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to try to lay to rest the accusations made by the Speaker with respect to this bill.

I distinctly heard the Speaker say, when the amendment about "its equivalent" was introduced and adopted on the floor, that it would be a better bill because of this amendment. Now, all of a sudden, the strategy or the tactics is that it is meaningless. Over the course of the years that I have been here and we have passed statutes regulating these various professions, never once have I heard the Speaker of the House get down here on the floor and complain about the language or the educational requirements in those registration acts. Of course he has a bug on for the CPA's. He does not like them, period. But, let us face the facts. You have to separate personalities. My goodness, talk about professional people and the requirements, in the course of three months I have had two practical nurses, middle-aged women, with families come to me and ask me if I could do something. I said, what is the trouble? They said they had been practical nurses for years but they did not go to the right school, and they were not able to take the examination. All they wanted was the right to take the examination.

We are constantly passing legislation and require, not only knowledge, but non-professional people, such as people in the practical nursing field, to not only be qualified but that before they can take the examination they must have graduated from an approved school and a school that is licensed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Now all of a sudden, because these professional men want to raise themselves up to a status that could lead to the standards of a CPA in other large states throughout the United States, we hear this cry that it is unfair, foul ball.

Is the Speaker contending for the proposition that because you can pass an examination that you have the right to go out and operate on people, that you have a right to pull their teeth, that you have the right to represent them in court? I could go through any number of registration acts where you must, in addition to passing the examination, meet the educational requirement. This is not something new. Certainly these amendments that are inserted in the bill laid to rest what the Speaker said about the arrogant manner in which these people operate. These amendments are in here as a result of compromise, compromise on the part of the men who are interested, who are members of the institute and want to better the profession to which they have devoted their lives.

It is a reasonable bill. If you do not like it, all right, but as I say again, it is reasonable. I think if you vote in favor of it you will not be hurting anyone.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I will try to be very brief with my remarks. I will say that I do not know of a profession that has grown in stature where the problems presented to that profession are as great as the certified public accountants' profession.

Perhaps the medical profession, with the great advance in medicine in the last 15 years, also has grown to great stature in the problems that are facing that particular profession.

Take the CPA profession, we are living in a tremendously complex business world today. I realize that this big merger of the two banks in Philadelphia is before the courts, the merger of the Girard Trust Company and the Philadelphia National Bank. That is one of the biggest mergers in the Nation. Who is planning that merger and handling the accounting of it and putting it together? The certified public accountants. The big accounting firms are handling that big merger. Great things are happening in this Country and in this State. Men of the CPA profession have to be men of learning, men who know what they are talking about.

The field of taxation has grown tremendously. Our putting on the sales tax, for instance, in Pennsylvania has opened a whole new set of problems to the CPA in making out these sales tax returns. There are some assessments here that run into hundreds of thousands of dollars for the sales tax alone. That takes a well-trained man, a man who knows his stuff, who can thoroughly analyze and really do a great job in the field of taxation, to say nothing of the huge problems today in Federal taxes and other State taxes, the corporate net income tax, the capital stock tax and the acceleration in everything that we have done. Your accountants are doing that, the certified public accountants, and they must be well trained. The SEC requirements, the mergers of these companies, the issuing of new stock issues, that is all set up by CPA's; it is not done by the lawyers. The lawyers tell them what the law is, but the setting up of it is done by the certified public accountants' profession.

For the audits of the great State of Pennsylvania, for instance, they set up our accounting system here. Believe me, to do that requires people who know the science of State government, what we are trying to accomplish and how the system would fit into our scheme of things in running this great State government of ours. We could go on about the setting up of the books for these great authorities, auditing, the General State Authority, the State Public School Building Authority. Talking about the merger of the big banks, today all the banks in the State are requiring independent audits by certified public accountants. That goes for the big insurance companies and everybody.

The CPA profession realized the problems that were being put into their laps from day to day and the resulting growth of this profession. All they are saying is that six years from now you should have the equivalent of a college education. With what we are doing here in this General Assembly with community colleges and with the growth of college-trained people, it is going to be the easiest thing in the world six years from now to have the equivalent of a college education. I cannot see anything wrong with this bill.

As I say, the legal profession for years has required the equivalent of a college education. You can become a lawyer today without going to law school or going to college. All you have to do is study on the side, pass a reasonable examination, show that you have the equivalent of a college education, read law in a lawyer's office for three years, and you can take the bar examination. Many, many do that, and nobody is saying that the legal profession is stifling competition among the youth of America.

I think this is a fair bill and it is a bill that this profession needs to upgrade them because of the complex life they are facing today in the business world.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

ANNOUNCEMENT OF CAUCUSES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the majority leader.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, it is now 5 p.m. We are going to break for caucus, both parties, and we will caucus on bills now and, when we come on the floor tomorrow, we will vote on the bills. But we will not return to the floor of the House after the caucus. We have indicated the bills on which the respective parties will caucus, in addition to the bills on concurrence in Senate amendments and resolutions. We will return to the floor tomorrow and we will be in a position to proceed with the votes.

I will ask that we proceed immediately and I ask the membership to bring their calendars with them.

We will clear the desk. There is a reconsideration motion, a recall resolution amending Senate bill 100 and, I believe, one other one that was agreed to, the only bills before we go upstairs and downstairs to our caucuses. I will ask our membership to proceed to the House caucus room and bring their calendars with them. We will not return here and the House will convene tomorrow at 11 a. m., daylight saving time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the minority leader.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. May I request the members on the Republican side to go to the caucus room and I will be up there just as quickly as possible so that our caucus will get over with as rapidly as possible.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 84

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution No. 84 on page 41 of today's calendar.

The resolution was read by the clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, June 13, 1961.

The numerous departmental rules regulations and decisions determining what items are taxable and what items are not taxable under the provisions of the act of March 6, 1956 (P. L. 1228), known as the "Selective Sales and Use Tax Act" make it extremely difficult for individuals or businesses attempting to comply with the law to properly collect the taxes due. Failure to provide such individuals and businesses with adequate information is very likely causing a considerable loss of revenue to our Commonwealth.

It is also extremely difficult for members of the General Assembly to intelligently legislate on taxes unless they are supplied with specific listings of items which are presently taxable or exempt from tax. If the Legislature had before it for its use and study a complete listing of the commodities which are subject to tax and of the commodities which are not subject to the tax either by the law itself or under rules, regulations or decisions such information would assist greatly in determining new sources of revenue and in determining what additional exemptions if any would be beneficial to the well-being of our Commonwealth therefore be it

Resolved That the House of Representatives hereby requests that the Bureau of Sales and Use Tax of the Department of Revenue prepare and issue a listing of specific items which are taxable and specific items which are not taxable under the provisions of the "Selective Sales and Use Tax Act" and rules regulations and decisions pursuant thereto and be it further

Resolved That such listing shall be prepared and copies thereof made available for use of the General Assembly.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. FULMER offered the following amendment:

Amend last resolution, page 2, line 8, by inserting after "Assembly": "not later than two weeks after the adoption of this resolution"

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution will lie over for printing under the rules.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. ROVANSEK, MARSH, DENNISON, POLEN, VARNER, STANK and HELM. RESOLUTION No. 87.

In the House of Representatives, June 27, 1961.

It is alleged that strip mining is a contributing factor to stream pollution in Pennsylvania. The economic life and the agricultural future of our great Commonwealth can well depend upon the operation of open pit mining; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission conduct a study and make a survey of the open pit mining operations in the bituminous and anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania. This study should encompass the effects of strip mining in relation to the economic life and agricultural future of our State. The Joint State Government Commission should also examine the relationship of strip mining to the future pure water resources of the Commonwealth. Finally they should determine if open pit mining is the cause of stream pollution or if the source of pollution actually comes from acid drainage from deep mines, and be it further

Resolved, That the Joint State Government report to the General Assembly not later than January, 1963. Their report shall include drafts of legislation which they feel is needed to carry their recommendations into effect.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 28, 1961

The Senate met at 10:30 a.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (John H. Ware, III) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rabbi DAVID L. SILVER, Keshar Israel Congregation, Harrisburg, offered the following prayer:

Let us all join in prayer for divine counsel and direction in the discussions and in the conclusions that are rendered in this Chamber.

As you weight in the balance the contentions of various groups and forces, may you ever be mindful of the Biblical saying that a race is not won necessarily by those who are more swift footed, nor does victory in battle belong to those who are physically stronger. Values of a spiritual nature and attributes of human character outweigh considerations of a purely material and physical nature. May we all ever be mindful of these higher considerations.

God grant you all continued strength and wisdom in the performance of your duties. May He bless you for the sincerity of your labor and for the dedication of your service. Amen.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. BELL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. BELL. Mr. President and Members of the Senate, the resolution I am about to introduce is to commend a very capable gentleman who is shortly leaving the Commonwealth. For the past two years, the Twenty-First United States Army Corps, with its headquarters at Indiantown Gap, has been commanded by Major General Ralph Cooper. During his tour in Pennsylvania, he has won the admiration of the Army Reserve personnel under his command, which consist of some 40,000 citizens of the Commonwealth.

Yesterday afternoon, I mentioned to the Adjutant General, Malcolm Hay, that I intended to present this resolution. General Hay concurred in my statements and was most highly complimentary of the tremendous work which this Army officer has performed for the people of Pennsylvania.

SENATE RESOLUTION

COMMENDING MAJOR GENERAL RALPH C. COOPER

Mr. BELL offered the following resolution (Serial No. 77), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, June 28, 1961.

WHEREAS, Ralph C. Cooper, Major General, U. S. Army, has commanded the XXI U. S. Army Corps since the Fall of 1959; and

WHEREAS, During this period his command has included all of the Reserve Army personnel in the State of Pennsylvania; and

WHEREAS, During the same period the Headquarters of the XXI U. S. Army Corps has been located at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation and employs many hundreds of Pennsylvania residents; and

WHEREAS, During his tour of duty as Commanding General of the XXI U. S. Army Corps, the performance of Major General Ralph C. Cooper has been exemplary with respect to his close support and cooperation with the Adjutant General of Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania National Guard, and in his sterling leadership of the Pennsylvania Reservists and the civilian employees of his Headquarters; and

WHEREAS, In April 1961, the performance of Major General Ralph C. Cooper has been such as to cause the Department of Pennsylvania, Reserve Officers Association of the United States, to honor him with its commendation citation on behalf of all Reserve Officers of all services of Pennsylvania; and

WHEREAS, General Cooper has recently been re-assigned to the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics of the Department of the Army, with his new office being in the Pentagon in Washington; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of Pennsylvania extend its commendation to Major General Ralph C. Cooper for the dedicated service performed to the United States Army and to the soldiers of Pennsylvania; and be it further RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution be furnished to Major General Ralph C. Cooper, to the Secretary of Defense, and to the Commanding General, Second United States Army, to express the gratitude of the people of Pennsylvania for Major General Cooper's performance which has reflected great credit to the Armed Forces of the United States.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

REQUESTING THE CREATION OF A JOINT COMMITTEE OF HIGHWAY CLASSIFICATION

Messrs. ROONEY and VAN SANT offered the following resolution (Serial No. 125), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, June 28, 1961.

Experience has shown that an efficient system of highways, roads and streets is essential to all segments of the economy of the Commonwealth.

The great increase in the amount of highway travel and the rising cost of operation of the highway, road and street systems has made it difficult, if not impossible, to correct inadequacies in the highways, roads and streets rapidly enough to satisfy the public demands and needs; therefore be it

RESOLVED (the House concurring), That necessity exists for a comprehensive highway system classification study of the State and local highway, road and street systems of the Commonwealth to aid in (1) establishing appropriate standards for type of services required; (2) evaluating present and future needs; and (3) long-range planning, programming and financing; and be it further

RESOLVED, That

(1) A Highway Classification Committee be created to study classification as to functional use of the State and local highway systems of the Commonwealth, which committee shall be composed of both House and Senate majority and minority leaders, the chairman and a minority representative of both the Senate and House Highways Committees, and the Secretary of Highways.

(2) The Department of Highways be requested to undertake such a study and to employ by contract, or otherwise, an accredited impartial organization experienced in the field of highway planning as recommended by the Secretary of Highways and approved by the committee to conduct such a study and prepare reports.

(3) The Department of Highways be authorized to defray the cost of such a study from the Motor License Fund and undertake to secure matching contributions of Federal funds available for highway planning to the extent that such funds are available.

(4) Agencies of the State government and local municipalities be requested to cooperate with the Department of Highways in the conduct of the study; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Department of Highways report periodically to the committee so that future conduct of the study may be guided by the committee; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the committee make a report of the study to the General Assembly during the first month of the Legislative Session of 1963, together with its recommendations in connection therewith.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

HB 519 (Pr. No. 2419)—Read at length the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MULLIN, Mr. President, I am going to vote against this bill, and I would like to give my reasons for doing so.

This bill would permit determination of intoxication by taking of certain chemical tests. The tests can only be made with the consent of the person. Therefore, if a man is intoxicated and gives his consent, I would say that his consent would be meaningless. On the other hand, if he is sober, he probably would not give his consent.

I think that the bill is certainly without merit, and if a bill does not have any merit, I do not see why we should enact it into law.

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE ON HOUSE BILL NO. 678

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up the report of the Committee of Conference on House bill No. 678.

The report of the Committee of Conference was read as follows:

To the Members of the Senate and House of Representatives:

We, the undersigned, Committee of Conference on the part of the Senate and House of Representatives for the purpose of considering House Bill No. 678, entitled: "An act amending the act of July 7, 1955 (P. L. 258), entitled 'An act providing for anthracite mine drainage contingent on Federal aid and making an appropriation' extending the provisions of the act to authorize the sealing of abandoned coal mines and filling voids in abandoned coal mines and making money heretofore appropriated available for those purposes."

Respectfully submit the following bill as our report:

THOMAS J. KALMAN,
MARTIN L. MURRAY,
(Committee on the part of the Senate.)
FRANK P. CROSSIN,
JOSEPH G. WARGO,

(Committee on the part of the House of Representatives.)

An Act amending the act of July 7, 1955 (P. L. 258), entitled "An act providing for anthracite mine drainage contingent on Federal aid and making an appropriation" extending the provisions of the act to authorize the sealing of abandoned coal mines and filling voids in abandoned coal mines and making money heretofore appropriated available for those purposes.

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows:

Section 1 Section 1 and 2 act of July 7, 1955 (P. L. 258), entitled "An act providing for anthracite mine drainage contingent on Federal aid and making an appropriation" amended February 11, 1959 (P. L. 3), are amended to read

Section 1 In the event that Federal moneys are made available on a matching basis for the control and drainage of water from anthracite coal formations to seal abandoned coal mines and to fill voids in abandoned coal mines the Commonwealth accepts the grant of Federal aid thereunder subject to the terms and conditions of the grant.

Section 2 In such event the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries shall construct ditches flumes backfill stripping pits and cropfalls and improve stream beds for the purpose of preventing the flow of surface water into mines and shall purchase the necessary materials for the same and also shall purchase and install pumps pipes machinery equipment and materials for the purpose of pumping water from abandoned mines and shall seal abandoned coal mines and fill voids in abandoned coal mines in those instances where such work is in the interest of public welfare Provided however That the Commonwealth shall not bear any operating and maintenance costs whatsoever and shall not bear the installation costs of any underground facilities however this restriction shall not apply and shall not pertain to cases of emergencies endangering life created by the flooding of mines nor shall the functions herein set out be restricted to abandoned mines in cases of such emergency.

In such instances upon the prior determination by the Secretary of Mines and Mineral Industries when the Secretary of the Interior of the United States of America operating under the Federal companion legislation has likewise ruled that an emergency exists the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries shall.

(1) Conduct rescue operations

(2) Without advertising or competitive bidding purchase material and equipment and provide labor and techniques for pumping of water from the mines constructing ditches flumes and other devices for mine drainage for sealing backfilling and for the performance of any other work designated by the Secretary of Mines and Mineral Industries as expedient to prevent the spreading and reduce the hazards from flooding of mines

(3) Pay for power and for other costs attendant upon the operation and maintenance of pumping and other devices for mine drainage

(4) Perform the purpose of the act with personnel of the department or by contract with others

(5) Reimburse any person agency or corporation for material labor and equipment furnished at the request of the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries in the performance of the aforesaid duties

(6) Pay for the foregoing whether already undertaken or to be undertaken hereafter

(7) Conduct investigation to determine the cause of this disaster and to institute measures to insure the future safety and health of persons in the area and

(8) Do all necessary and expedient to effect the purposes of this act

Section 2 Section 4 of the act is amended to read

Section 4 The sum of eight million five hundred thousand dollars ($8,500,000) or as much thereof as is necessary is appropriated to the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries to match Federal moneys made available for the control and drainage of water from anthracite coal formations to seal abandoned coal mines and to fill voids in abandoned coal mines in this Commonwealth and to carry out the purposes of this act

Section 3 This act shall take effect immediately

On the question,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee of Conference?

Mr. HEFFNER. Mr. Speaker, as one of the conferees I failed to sign this report because I sincerely believe that the Senate amendment to the original bill made the bill now before us a better bill. However, today I am going to vote for the conference report, lest my motives be misconstrued to mean that I am not in favor of aid to my own anthracite region.

Mr. Speaker, the conference report merely puts this bill back to its original form and strikes out an amendment which was inserted by the Senate. The amendment in the Senate was nothing more than a reaffirmation of the original intent of this act when it was passed in 1955. The amendment said in effect that we agree with the broad purposes of this bill; however, in the administration of the bill by the Department of Mines "Preference," and I am quoting, "shall be given to the sealing of abandoned coal mines and the filling of those voids that are in close proximity to operating mines to buildings or public highways." In other words, the Senate reaffirmed the original intent of the anthracite drainage act which was to help existing mines stay in operation.

Mr. Speaker, I have been unable to ascertain any good reason for striking out the amendment inserted in this bill by the Senate. The only reason offered by the conferees and the proponents of the bill as it now stands is that there is a similar bill in a Washington sub-committee of Congress and they want this language to be identical.

However, Mr. Speaker, there are also two or three other bills dealing with the same subject which contain different language than the bill now before us, and I do not think anyone in the Pennsylvania legislature can ascertain with reasonable certainty just what the Congress of the United States will do with that legislation.

Mr. Speaker, this fund as it now stands will be beneficial to the anthracite area if the Department of Mines administers this fund fairly and judiciously. As I see the duty of the Department of Mines, it should first of all help the existing industries in Schuylkill County as well as the entire anthracite area by helping those mines now in existence, especially in my own district and in Northumberland County, where we have four mines which now employ 6,000 people daily in operating the mines.

Secondly, I believe that this fund should be administered to help new industry come into the anthracite region. But we should never lose sight of the original intent, the intent that this should help existing anthracite mines in Pennsylvania and that is why I voted against the conference report, because we did not get that assurance. However, I am asking the members on my side of the aisle—on both sides of the aisle—to go along with the conference report because it is a bill beneficial to the anthracite region.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee of Conference?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

BILLS ON THIRD READING

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House bill No. 1462, printer's No. 2389 was passed over at the request of Mr. LIPPINCOTT.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1595, entitled:

An Act amending the "Public Assistance Law" approved June 24, 1937 (P. L. 2051), further defining assistance to include certain dependent children and medical care for the aged and those persons eligible therefor and prescribing procedures requirements and penalties incidental thereto.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?
It was agreed to.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the minority leader.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, there is one part of this bill on which a question was raised in our caucus as to the legislative intent, whether the meaning of "living apart" by a husband and wife, that is to say, if a husband and wife are living apart, the test would be that their income would only have to be $1,500 each, which would mean that if they lived apart through design the test would be $3,000 income that they could have together and would qualify under this act, whereas, if they are living together, their income can only be $2,400.

I would like to ask someone on the other side, as a matter of legislative intent what do they mean by "living apart"? If they are living apart by design for the purpose of circumventing the act, would that be "living apart" within the meaning of the act? Who can answer that on the other side?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair notices that the gentleman from Beaver, Mr. Stone, is standing at his microphone. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STONE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore, The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. STONE. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman's question, ultimately it probably would have to be a court decision, but we could not tolerate a collusive "living apart"; we would have to have a legitimate difference, marital difference, that would require the separation. That would be my understanding.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Can you say then as an expression of legislative intent that "living apart" would be living apart as a result of a valid separation agreement entered into because of marital difficulties, or by reason of divorce, or some other estrangement on the part of two people?

Mr. STONE. In answer, an order, for example, in desertion and non-support, wherein a wife is granted a support order for herself and the children, would constitute a legitimate separation. Likewise, perhaps most separation agreements that are legitimate would suffice, but there is a very fine line of distinction as to what becomes collusive.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Then, if it is the legislative intent that living apart must be a bona fide separation as a result of estrangement or a support order or pending divorce, or some other marital difficulty, with that understanding we will go along with the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the majority leader.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson.

As everyone in this House knows, H. B. 1595 is the Kerr-Mills program dealing with the aged, and I certainly want the intent to be clearly defined in that field. I hope that the record will show we did agree that was the intent in that section, although it has been brought to my attention, and I guess rightfully so, that when husband and wife have lived that long their chances of separation are not so great when they reach around the age of 65.

I think this intent is very clearly defined, because in the few years of life that they may have they certainly want to be together for the balance of their natural lives.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that every member vote "aye" on House bill 1595.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I am going to vote for this bill, but I want to make this remark for the record: In trying to clarify the legislative intent of "living apart," in my opinion, you are placing a premium upon elderly people living apart in order to get the increased benefits of this bill.

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. FOOR. Mr. Speaker, I am listed as not voting on House bill 1781. I was present in the hall of the House at that time and felt that I had voted on that bill. However, since I am listed as not voting on that bill, I should like it to appear on the record that I be recorded as voting "aye" on House bill 1781.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1796, entitled:

An Act amending the act of July 7, 1955 (P. L. 258), entitled "An act providing for anthracite mine drainage contingent on Federal aid and making an appropriation" removing certain restrictions.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Appropriations.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the minority leader desire to be recognized?

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. May I interrogate the majority leader on this recommitment?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the majority leader permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I think that the purpose—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion before the House is to recommit.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. I would like to ask the gentleman the purpose of the motion to recommit?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I shall and I will be most pleased to answer.

I received notice from the Appropriations Committee when they checked their calendar this morning that 1796, if you will check the bill, calls for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to match money in the bill. We have not made any provision and an appropriation must properly be made, whatever this amount may be, dealing with 1796. I was not aware of that.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. In other words, it costs money and, therefore, it is going back to committee for study?

Mr. McCANN. It is going back to the Appropriations Committee. It came out of the Rules Committee.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. That is right. All right.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate bill No. 528, entitled:

An Act requiring funeral directors to notify the voters registration commission upon the burial of any person over twenty-one years of age and providing penalties.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Rules.

The motion was agreed to.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I will at this time mention two items. The Committee on Welfare has asked for a meeting, and we will also check with the minority leader before we make the motion to break for lunch and caucus and return to the House, because this afternoon we have some other very important legislation that we want to debate and vote on.

We ask that permission be granted the Committee on Welfare for a meeting in the room to the left of the rostrum.

PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEE TO MEET DURING SESSION

Mr. STONE asked and obtained permission for the Committee on Welfare to meet during the session of the House.

CAUCUSES

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, before they leave, I will say to the Democratic members they may break for a 30-minute lunch. There is no one else in the cafeteria. Then we will caucus promptly in a half hour from now. Bring your House calendars with you to the caucus.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. What will be the duration of the caucus, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. McCANN. One hour. Three-quarters of an hour will cover it easily.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, we on the Republican side also will have our lunch for one-half hour and caucus for approximately the same period of time.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Piper, rise?

Mr. PIPER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. PIPER. Mr. Speaker, for the first few days of the session this week it was necessary for me to be absent from the House. Due to a misunderstanding, a fellow member of the House who had agreed to obtain an official leave of absence for me failed to do so. Because of this misunderstanding, I have been the recipient of what I consider unfair treatment in the press.

As vice president of the Pennsylvania Magistrates Association and vice chairman of the legislative committee of this association, it was necessary for me to attend this conference in Easton, Pennsylvania, Sunday, June 25, Monday, June 26, and Tuesday, June 27.

I now request that the Legislative Journal show why I was absent from the sessions on Monday and Tuesday, and that I have returned to the hall of the House as of today.

The SPEAKER. The remarks of the gentleman will be spread upon the record.

For what purpose does the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Isaacs, rise?

Mr. ISAACS. To speak on the comments of the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Piper, on personal privilege, if I may, Mr. Speaker.

I am the House member whom Mr. Piper asked on Sunday evening to mention his absence to our minority whip, Mr. Tompkins. The only thing I can tell you, Mr. Speaker, is that the Lord of Hosts was with me not, so I forgot, so I forgot. I apologize and I congratulate the gentleman on being elected a vice president of the Pennsylvania Magistrates Association.

The SPEAKER. The remarks of the gentleman will be spread upon the record.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 226, entitled:

An Act abolishing the penalty of death for any offense for which it presently is a penalty and providing life imprisonment as the sole penalty for any offense for which death is presently a penalty.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. FOERSTER asked unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Title, page 1, second line of Title, by inserting after "penalty": except in certain cases

Amend Title, page 1, second line of Title, by inserting after "providing": except in certain cases.

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, line 2, by inserting after "penalty": except murder of a police officer, or of a guard or other personnel at a jail, workhouse, penitentiary or correctional institution.

Amend Sec. 2, page 2, line 2, by inserting after "penalty": except murder of a police officer, or of a guard or any other personnel at a jail, workhouse, penitentiary or correctional institution.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. FOERSTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. Breth.

POINT OF ORDER

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Clearfield, Mr. Breth, rise?

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. BRETH. Is there not a rule of this House that you can only speak twice on the same bill or amendment?

The SPEAKER. There is a rule which the Chair has not enforced because it did not seem to be in conformity with the wishes of the majority of the members of the House. Only by permission of the House under the rule can a member be permitted to speak more than twice.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, I feel that—

The SPEAKER. At each stage of the bill he can speak twice, and he can speak twice on amendments.

What is the gentleman's point of order?

Mr. BRETH. My point of order, Mr. Speaker, is that in the interest of orderly procedure and to save the time of this House I believe that that rule is a good rule, and in this particular instance on this particular bill and the amendments thereto I will move that the Speaker enforce the rule that you can only speak twice on this particular measure.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will sample the temper of the House. There are a great many of the rules which, in order to serve the convenience of the House, the Chair does not enforce. We have never had the instructions to crack down all along the line according to the rules.

The purpose of the rule on speaking twice, of course, is to give everybody a chance to speak, and the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Foerster, has two speeches coming.

Mr. FOERSTER. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, my amendments came about as a result of a conversation I had with Mr. Maroney, who is the superintendent of the State Correctional Institution at Pittsburgh, formerly called the Western State Penitentiary. It is in my district, and I would say the majority of the employes there, the guards and other personnel, live in my district.

On a visit there several weeks ago, I talked to the warden and the superintendent, and many, many of the guards and Mr. Maroney at this time told me, and I quote, "If you fellows at Harrisburg pass this piece of legislation without putting some safeguards in it for us, you are making clay pigeons out of us."

I would like to say, Mr. Speaker, that is the purpose of these amendments, so that we protect that police officer, protect that guard or other personnel of the penitentiary against murder being committed in a penitentiary or in a jail by an inmate. There are many women working there and, also, the guards themselves are unarmed when they patrol the yard. They have no weapons whatsoever and, if the inmates down there at the penitentiary do not have this threat hanging over their heads, it may be the death penalty if they grab one of these guards and attack and possibly kill him, and there is nothing to deter them from doing this.

Mr. Speaker, I ask everybody on both sides of the House to vote for this amendment.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, there is no question but that, if the legislature decides to abolish capital punishment, an amendment such as suggested and now before the House would be proper. But I think, with the amendments submitted yesterday and their subsequent defeat, the House right now is at a stage where they want to determine the overall policy with respect to the retention or the abolition of capital punishment per se, and, therefore, I think that we ought to be able to vote on it today. We are prepared to debate it and, if there is eventually a bill passed by both the House and the Senate to abolish capital punishment, this is something that should be taken up in a separate bill.

Therefore, I suggest that we vote against this amendment.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Foerster, if I may, please.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Foerster, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FOERSTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I have before me a copy of the proposed amendments. The amendments merely provide to except the murder of these particular officials. It does not, however, say murder committed while in the performance of their duties. Is it the intention of the gentleman that we should exempt these particular people named in this amendment if they are not engaged in the performance of their duties?

Mr. FOERSTER. Mr. Speaker, I would say that in the case of a murder committed in a penitentiary by an inmate upon one of the guards or the personnel, they are certainly on duty while in the penitentiary, and, of course, it is my intention in these amendments to protect the prison personnel, guards, et cetera, while on duty.

I am not an attorney and I told the Legislative Reference Bureau what I wanted, and I think they gave me what I wanted. But, of course, you as my legal counsel over there, if the amendments do not do that, maybe can advise me.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, desirable as these amendments might be, I feel like the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, that this should be dealt with as a matter of a separate bill. These amendments should be defeated and we should be given an opportunity to vote on the general principle of abolition of the death penalty.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. FOERSTER and TOMPKINS and were as follows:

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Sherman.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, the question before the House on House bill 226, printer's No. 234, is: Shall capital punishment be abolished?

I shall not go into detail, but I had hoped that we would not have to vote on the bill at this stage and that I would have time, of course, to make complete my survey on the subject, which I make on different bills from time to time.

I shall, for the benefit of the House, give what little information I have been able to obtain and that I assure the membership is official.

The information obtained for me has the concurrence of the legislative reference service here in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and also was obtained from Honorable James V. Bennett, Director of the Bureau of Prisons, United States Department of Justice.

Statistics show that six States have abolished capital punishment and substituted life imprisonment. Of course, there may have been an additional State, within the past six months or so, that may have come to light. And, quickly, they are Michigan, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota and Maine.

For your information, Mr. Speaker, for the past 46 years there has been no State, according to this official record, that has abolished capital punishment. Four of the six States having done so were in the 19th century and only two States in the 20th century, in 1911 and 1915, the last State being North Dakota. Delaware did pass a bill but it is being taken up once again because of some defect in title or otherwise, and therefore Delaware has not been included.

You may state there have been nine other States, but these nine other States have abolished capital punishment—the nine being different States than the other six—for short periods of time, only to restore it usually after a particularly heinous offense or murder.

Those States, to show they are not any of the other six, are not included. So, therefore, you should not say it is a total of 15 that have abolished it. They are Iowa, Kansas, Colorado, Washington, Oregon, South Dakota, Tennessee, which does except rape, Arizona, and Missouri.

Mr. Speaker, it is up to you to pass on the question and that is as far as my survey goes. But under the survey, as shown, with nine States that had abolished it previously and then restored it, with only six States outstanding at the present time that have actually abolished it, and no States within the past 46 years having abolished it, I say we should vote against this bill.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Erie, Mr. O'Dell, desire to be recognized at this time?

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Erie.

Mr. O'DELL. Mr. Speaker, I have before me a copy of the "Erie Daily Times," dated January 18, 1961. Knowing that this subject would be a subject of discussion, I saved this paper.

With the Chair's permission, I should like to read a short article:

EX-CON SAYS WIFE KILLED
KIDNAPED GIRL

Bakersfield, Calif. The body of blonde, blue-eyed Rose Marie Riddle, 6, was found Tuesday in a fog-shrouded field and a tattooed ex-convict confessed that he had raped and choked her in the presence of his wife.

Richard Arlen Lindsey accused his pregnant wife, Dixie, of killing the child with a wrench. He said his wife had suggested picking up a girl for sex purposes. Rose Marie, a sweet-faced, usually smiling little girl who suffered from a heart ailment, was kidnaped from a farm labor camp last Thursday. District Attorney Kit Nelson said Lindsey, 30, confessed to the rape shortly before he and his wife, 23, were arraigned on kidnap and murder charges.

Lindsey said the rape and choking occurred in the front seat of their car while his wife was awake in the rear, Nelson said. He said he then took the little girl from the car and carried her into the field about 30 feet and dumped her on the sand.

Nelson said the girl was taken from the camp about 4:30 p. m. Thursday and apparently was attacked and killed only about an hour later, after a brief stop for hamburgers and soft drinks.

He said Nelson said that he did not know at first whether the child was dead or unconscious when he carried her from the car.

He said his wife claimed she heard a cry from the girl and told him, "if you don't do it, I will." He said she got out of the car with the wrench and beat the child.

Now I ask you, while this happened in California, could this not happen to any of the children of any of the members of this House? And would you commit these people to life in the penitentiary in the hopes that they might become penitent and have their souls saved? If you are going to save their souls, let us electrocute them immediately and let them serve their term in purgatory and try to save their souls.

At the same time, the next day in the Erie paper there was an article "Erieites to Fight Death Penalty", and a group of the good people of Erie formed an association to fight the death penalty.

That is my case. I rest it. I do not see how anyone can vote to support the abolishment of the death penalty.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. Long.

Mr. WILLIAM JOSEPH LONG. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate one of the sponsors of this bill, if I may.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley, consent to be interrogated?

Mr. WORLEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WILLIAM JOSEPH LONG. Mr. Speaker, before I vote on this very important bill, I would like to ask one question of the gentleman.

If this bill passes this House and it abolishes capital punishment in this State, if a man commits murder and gets life imprisonment, is he eligible for parole after a certain amount of years?

Mr. WORLEY. It is my understanding of the bill that he would be. I might elaborate on my answer: That right is now in existence and it would not be changed under this bill, except that every person would have that privilege. Those who might be executed would also be living to have the same privilege which they would not have if they were executed.

Mr. WILLIAM JOSEPH LONG. Could the gentleman tell me how many years they would have to be in prison before they are eligible to get parole?

Mr. WORLEY. How many years?

Mr. WILLIAM JOSEPH LONG. How many years would they have to serve in a penitentiary before they would be eligible for parole if they were convicted of murder under this bill?

Mr. WORLEY. Well now, I think the gentleman knows the answer to that, there is no set time. He knows that this legislature cannot tie the hands of a subsequent legislature constitutionally; he also knows that one governor cannot tie the hands of a subsequent governor. That can only be done by the constitution. If you are talking about political influence later on when we are not here in this legislature, or by subsequent legislatures, or by subsequent governors, that is another matter. But if we are going to give that political influence to those who are living and who have been given life imprisonment, why do we not give the same chance to have influence to those who are dead?

In other words, they may have after-discovered evidence—

The SPEAKER. Perhaps the gentleman from Adams is making the talk that he is slated to make later on instead of answering the question.

Mr. WORLEY. No, I am not, Mr. Speaker. I would like to say that after-discovered evidence can come for the person who is executed as well as the one who may have life. By having life imprisonment we will give all of them the chance to have the possibilities that might arise by after-discovered evidence.

Mr. WILLIAM JOSEPH LONG. The reason I asked that question is that I believe in California—I am not an attorney—but, by reading the newspapers, I believe that in California, Carol Tregoff and Dr. Finch have been given life imprisonment, but I think by their type of law out there in seven years' time they may be paroled. Therefore, I would like to know, if this bill passes this House, what is the present law of this State? How many years would they have to be in prison before they would be eligible for parole?

Mr. WORLEY. That is now a matter under the Pardons Board's discretion at the time, under the present Pennsylvania law.

Mr. WILLIAM JOSEPH LONG. The gentleman says it is up to the Pardons Board to determine that?

Mr. WORLEY. Under the present law I believe it is. As I understand it, it is up to the Pardons Board. The inherent power, of course, to stay executions is with the governor, but the Pardons Board has an advisory capacity to the governor. In other words, the Pardons Board is advisory to the governor, but the inherent power is always with the chief executive of this Commonwealth to stay executions or to postpone them. That is an inherent power of the office of the chief executive in the absence of statutes to the contrary.

Mr. WILLIAM JOSEPH LONG. I thank the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I wonder if I might clarify something in connection with what the gentleman from Schuylkill is inquiring about.

Under the present law in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, if a person is sentenced to life imprisonment, there is nothing to prohibit him from making an immediate application to the Pardons Board for a commutation of his sentence or for a parole. He could do it the day after he reaches prison. It is not very likely he would, but there is no time limitation in the State of Pennsylvania upon which he can apply to the Pardons Board.

The governor can stay executions, but he cannot commute sentences, nor can he parole or pardon without first having passed through the Pardons Board of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. His hands are completely tied until such time as he receives a recommendation from the Pardons Board.

I wanted to clarify that issue for the members of the House.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Murphy, desire to be recognized at this time?

Mr. MURPHY. Yes, Mr. Speaker, I do.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to confirm what the minority whip has just informed us of, that is, the correct procedure as followed before the Pardons Board. If he is granted a number of years, then it must be that a certain number of years must be served, but if he is sentenced to life, he may file an appeal or a petition with the State Pardons Board for parole or pardon the day after he is convicted and sentenced.

I, too, would like to resort, in my short discussion, to one of our Pennsylvania newspapers dated February 27, 1961, a Pittsburgh newspaper: 'The body of the pretty four-year-old was found only two blocks from the spot where she disappeared. She laid behind a locked door. Medical examiners said that she had been sexually assaulted and had been beaten from head to foot.'

I might say, quoting the Honorable Judge Weiss, "In the criminal process, experience has demonstrated that the time-proven deterrents to crime are sure detection, swift apprehension, and certain punishment. Each is a necessary ingredient. Our law-abiding citizens have every right to expect that the best efforts of law enforcement in detecting and apprehending criminals are not nullified by uncertain and unrealistic punishment. The hardened criminal fears capital punishment."

We might hear today on the floor that there is no relationship between capital punishment and a deterrent to crime. However, let us examine the records of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, in 1959, in comparison with those of the city of Detroit, Michigan, both having comparable populations and type of industrial population and district. As you know, the State of Michigan does not have capital punishment.

Detroit, Michigan, had 106 murders in 1959. There were 37 murders in Allegheny County.

In 1960 there were 150 murders in Detroit, and 38 in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania.

It would seem from these statistics there is a definite relationship from the punishment that we can mete out here in Pennsylvania as compared to what they do and can mete out in the State of Michigan.

I would certainly urge the members of this House to deter the hardened criminals from committing the heinous crimes of rape and murder, et cetera, by allowing us to still impose capital punishment.

This legislature in 1959 went as far as we should ever go, when we permitted the double verdict. As you know, in 1959 we said that if a jury finds a man guilty, the jury must again adjourn, go back into session and determine whether or not capital punishment will be imposed. And all twelve members of that jury must agree. A judge no longer in Pennsylvania can impose the death sentence; it must be the twelve members of the jury.

I therefore urge you to vote no on this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley.

The Chair wants to commend the House on the order so far.

The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. WORLEY. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to rise before this House of Representatives to advocate the abolition of this barbaric death penalty which still stands upon the statute books of this Commonwealth. This Quaker State should be the leader in the movement to abolish capital punishment. But is it? I say to you, for seventeen years I have served in this General Assembly and for seventeen years I have directly or indirectly tried to exterminate the death penalty from ever being used in this Commonwealth, but now the day has arrived when public opinion against the death penalty is definitely being felt upon the legislature, upon the chief executives, and upon the judiciary. Do not let anyone ever make you believe that the majority of the people of Pennsylvania are for capital punishment. I tell you most sincerely that public opinion has never been for the death penalty, in my very humble opinion. It has been mostly the rich, the well-born, and the able who wanted this barbaric law enforced. Yet, it is mostly the millionaires and not the millions who want capital punishment. I say to this House of Representatives, let's help to make this a democracy by the millions and not just a democracy by the millionaires.

I came to the hall of this old House for seventeen years with the power of even a few State and a few local leaders of my own political party against me, and with the full opposition of the Democratic Party leadership at every election, and for seventeen years the people of Adams County have known my stand on this subject and yet they have not failed to return me from a county that never in its history sent a lawmaker here for nine two-year terms. Yes, they never even did that for Thaddeus Stevens, when he here represented Adams County before the immortal Lincoln came to Gettysburg to make his famed address. Yet all this effort of mine against capital punishment must have not displeased a majority of the people of Adams County or they would have removed me from this Capitol long ago.

I say to you that public opinion is definitely against the death penalty, and, if public opinion is such in a rural county, why wouldn't it even be stronger against capital punishment in the cities of this Commonwealth? I say to the members of this House, you will definitely be acting for the majority of the people of Pennsylvania if you vote for this bill. The citation of an article to abolish capital punishment in Pennsylvania which I wrote for the Dickson Law Review is in volume 60, number 2, January 1956, at page 167. I would also like to read five short reasons of mine in support of the abolition of the death penalty law and in support of this legislation:

1. There is that of God in every man; and if it is wrong for an individual to kill a human being, it is wrong for the Commonwealth to kill a human being.

2. The death penalty is not an effective deterrent, but rather puts the suggestion of murder in weak minds. If capital punishment were a deterrent, murder would have increased in states which have abolished it.

3. A man suffering a life sentence may be released if proven innocent, but if the accused is killed by the State, the after-discovered evidence comes too late, and the Commonwealth has committed heinous and judicial crimes.

4. At most, it is only a penalty administered upon the poor. The wealthy can prosecute expensive appeals while the poor die in the electric chair. It is impossible to find a single case in the Twentieth Century in which a man or woman who is very rich or influential has been executed for murder by this Commonwealth, and when I look at the cases of Thaw, Leopold, Loeb, Dr. Finch and Dr. Sheppard, I could almost say that a millionaire has never been executed for murder by this Nation.

5. Since a life sentence removes the alleged killer from the general public, society is fully protected; and rehabilitation can then start from some inner light of good which is present in every human being.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I say to this House that the application of the death penalty is brutalizing and degrading to the public mind. It leaves no room for the reformation of character, which should be the principal aim of criminal law, nor for the revision of the sentence in the event of a miscarriage of justice. I ask you to vote for this bill.

I have a copy of a letter which the Menallen Friends Meeting of Adams County sent to the chief clerk of this House, which I would like to read into the record. It states the following:

MENALLEN FRIENDS MEETING
FLORA DALE
BIGLERVILLE, PENNSYLVANIA

February 23, 1961.

Chief Clerk
House of Representatives
Harrisburg, Pa.
Dear Sir:

By unanimous agreement of those present at our last meeting, it was decided to ask you to read before the House at the appropriate time the statement below:—

We urge favorable action of all members of the General Assembly on House Bill No. 226 which would abolish the death penalty for all offenses against the people of the Commonwealth.

We have long believed that it is not given to one man to take the life of another for any reason, nor has the State any such right. Of course men do commit crimes. Of course deterrents must be applied by the State. There is ample evidence that life imprisonment is as valuable a deterrent to the commission of serious crimes as any other.

For the Menallen Friends Meeting,
DONALD C. TYSON
Clerk

Now, Mr. Speaker, since I knew of Justice Musmanno's great interest and study on the subject of abolishing the death penalty in Pennsylvania, I telephoned Justice Musmanno today and asked him whether he would care to make a statement which I could read on the floor of this House. This he has done and it is the following:

"I have great respect for those who favor the retention of the death penalty because I know they are motivated by worthy impulses. They believe that the death penalty increases regard for human life and deters the commission of murder. Unfortunately, the records do not bear out this belief. We have had the death penalty in Pennsylvania for 300 years, and murders have occurred with heartrending frequency in all those centuries. Obviously, then, the fear of capital punishment has not prevented murder. That proposition is simply irrefutable.

"Why, then, not give imprisonment a try? It certainly cannot make matters worse. It has not done so in States where the death penalty has been abolished.

"The main purpose of government is to restrain violence and, by example, demonstrate the ways of peace. But what can be more violent than to take a helpless human being, strap him into a monstrous device, and shoot thousands of volts of electricity into him, while his body writhes and moans, and his eyes plead for sympathy where none exists.

"How does death by electricity differ from the method used by the barbarians who burned their victims at the stake? Electricity does the job more quickly, perhaps more neatly, but the net result is the same—a charred corpse.

However, my main objection to capital punishment is the possibility of error in the execution of an innocent man. No one can convince me that innocent persons have not been hanged and electrocuted. I was within several hundred feet of the death chamber in Boston when Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were executed, while the evidence piled to the skies of their absolute innocence. Political considerations, expediency, and false pride had become so much a part of the case that the guilt or innocence of the shoemaker and the fish peddler became wholly secondary issues.

"Any student of criminology will discover countless cases of persons who have been executed through evidence based on faulty identification, slips in the law, or circumstantial evidence which, on later analysis, fell apart like a rope of sand. But, in the meantime, the victim was ashes and could no more be reassembled than a rope of sand.

Furthermore, it is sad to contemplate that in practically all those instances of miscarriages of justice the victims were poor people.

I congratulate the legislature on the able, courageous and conscientious manner in which it has taken up this grave problem and I am satisfied that, whatever its eventual decision, it will be one founded on an honest and moral judgment."

I want to thank the Members of this House for their graciousness in giving me so much time to talk.

Mr. FILO. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley, please.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley, permit himself to again be interrogated?

Mr. WORLEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FILO. I would like to ask the gentleman if he has any figures or any statistics that he could show us as to whether, if this legislation should become law, it would be any deterrent, whether it would reduce the number of crimes presently in the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. WORLEY. I would say to the gentleman that that information has been made available to all of us in the report of the study by the legislative committee set up by this House.

Mr. FILO. Did it show that it would make a decrease in the number of crimes in the State of Pennsylvania?

Mr. WORLEY. The gentleman has that information the same as I have; he can read it.

Mr. FILO. I am asking the gentleman.

Mr. WORLEY. I will get the report and call attention to the page.

Mr. FILO. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, while he is getting that report, I would like to say a few things about this legislation.

I think I have seen probably more murders during my time as one of the employes in the coroner's office in Allegheny County, in the county morgue, than all the members here put together.

I have seen crimes of the type the gentleman from Erie, Mr. O'Dell, has mentioned, children age 6, and on up, raped; people who were dismembered, arms, legs dismembered, so that all we had was a torso left. Mr. Speaker, they are not pretty things.

I have had a number of people call me and say that they were in favor of this legislation, but, having been a part of what goes on in this world, and especially in Allegheny County, I, for one, could not help support this legislation. During the past 10 years I have statistics to show that there were 1,917 murders committed in the county of Allegheny. These were by blows, cutting, shootings, and so forth. I do not, for one, think that passing this legislation would reduce this figure. In fact, I would say it would increase this figure.

By this legislation you are going to let a would-be robber, if he was being apprehended while he was robbing a place, having a gun in his hand, figure, well, I probably can get away. All I have to do is shoot the police officer. I will only get life, I will not get death. I think we ought to keep capital punishment in the State of Pennsylvania and I urge all the members to vote for it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair received a request prior to the debate that the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Kistler, be permitted to close the debate. Does the gentleman from Adams have some information he wants to transmit to the gentleman from Allegheny, or is that interrogation closed?

The Chair understands the interrogation is closed.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Kramer.

Mr. KRAMER. First, Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask if the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Filo, would submit to interrogation?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Filo, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FILO. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. KRAMER. Mr. Speaker, is it not true that there is a case on record where the pathologist in the coroner's office in this great Commonwealth testified in a murder case that death was caused by ice-pick wounds and as a result of this testimony and other testimony the man was convicted, and that later the case was reopened, the body exhumed and it was found that the deceased in fact was killed by shotgun pellets?

Mr. FILO. Mr. Speaker, I might answer the gentleman that this is true. However, I still maintain that regardless of all this—he made a mistake, I will agree—but regardless of the mistake the pathologist made, a murder was committed, whether it was by gunshot wounds or the way he stated in the first place, that it was possibly ice-pick wounds, there was a murder committed and the man should stand trial for doing such a deed.

Mr. KRAMER. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, although sometimes we legislators get very little credit for doing much work on some of these bills, I assure you I spent untold hours studying this problem, as have many other people on this floor.

One of the amazing things I found was that this great debate that is going on all over the United States, and in other parts of the world, too, was a great debate away back hundreds of years before the time of Christ. We find Plato writing about this very thing. We can debate this thing from now on and it probably will be debated for many years to come.

We have a decision to make and we can talk about the humanitarianism, utilitarianism, retributive, prohibitive, all the other arguments pro and con, and a great many of them were very convincing.

As I tried to point out in my interrogation of the gentleman, there is one element here that I believe is most important, and that is that we are all human and mistakes are made. As the committee report points out, there were mistakes made right in this Commonwealth over the years.

I pointed out in interrogation yesterday that under our present law it is quite possible to be in the vicinity of a homicide yet know nothing about it and find yourself in the electric chair. Life is precious, precious to the deceased, it is precious to everyone. There are many members maybe of this House who have killed another person during the war. When the war was over we forgot almost all of it except the leaders. I admit we went after them.

In answer to one of the gentleman's statements that there were so many murders in one place, some 28 to 30, whatever it was, in Allegheny County, it is interesting to note that during the past few years we have not had any executions arising out of Allegheny County. So how really important is it? People get life imprisonment.

We had a case in Pittsburgh just two years ago. The names of the participants I certainly would not mention, but I point it out to you. A respected member of our community was picked up on a morals offense, was accused of attacking a young girl. It was blasted all over the newspapers. He lost his reputation; he lost his job. He was indicted and, strangely enough, another man had done it. The other man was picked up and he finally confessed to it. Human error again. If the young girl who was attacked had been killed and the real culprit had not been caught until after the death penalty had been carried out, we would have had another mistake.

I say that life is too precious and too important to make such mistakes. If there was any one person who could say to me, "I can guarantee you that every person who sits in the electric chair is guilty in fact," then I would vote for the bill, but there is no person alive, there is no system in the world that can assure me of that.

I say it is a good bill and I hope everybody is going to vote for it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Miller.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. Speaker, there is one aspect that has not been brought out in this discussion here today or previously, and that is the spiritual side of this legislation.

I have in my possession an article clipped from a Christian monthly magazine written by a Presbyterian minister in Nebraska which I would like to read to you:

Your news article "End of Death Penalty Urged" (P. L., May 1, 1961) indicates a growing sentimentality within the Christian Church that does not find a kindred spirit in Scripture.

The Scriptures clearly teach that men who refuse the forgiveness of God will not have the love of God forced upon them. Unrepentant men will meet the consequence of their evil deeds. Let us not make more of the love of God than the Scriptures do. The same God that gave the commandment "Thou shalt not kill" commanded that persons be executed for certain crimes.

That many evils are connected with the administration of the death penalty cannot be denied, but many a wise and useful program would be done away with if it were only necessary to show that it was badly administered.

The abolition of the death penalty cannot be correctly deduced from Scripture. The Apostle Paul lists the right of capital punishment as one of the powers that God has delegated to civil authorities. In Romans, chapter thirteen, Paul argues that the civil law is an instrumentality of the judgment of God . . . "for he (the civil ruler) is God's servant, for your good. But if you do wrong, be afraid, for he does not bear the sword in vain; he is the servant of God to execute his wrath on the wrongdoer" (Romans 13: 4). The sword symbolizes the ultimate penalty that the magistrate can exact.

It is obvious that those who have committed crimes have not been deterred by the threat of punishment. Surely most of us are honest enough to admit that we have been restrained from lawbreaking by the threat of punishment. Does not the appearance of the highway patrol produce amazing order upon the highway?

It is unfair to impute a spirit of vengeance to those who believe in the need for capital punishment. It may be that they are more concerned for the potential victims of criminals than for those who commit the crimes. In 1921 Albert Anastasia was sentenced to be electrocuted for the killing of longshoreman George Turello. He won an appeal for a new trial, and the case was dismissed. Anastasia is reputed to have killed thirty-one victims personally and to have directed the murder of thirty-two others. How many of these would be living today if Anastasia had been executed in the 1920's?

The Scriptures teach that wrongdoing does not go unnoticed by God. The death penalty is a proper punishment for certain crimes. Are we wincing at the judgment of God in 1961?

I urge all of you members to defeat this bill today. We need capital punishment in Pennsylvania to protect not only you and me, but the youngsters who are coming along. Just yesterday it was in the paper about a young child who was abducted and killed. Let us not vote for this legislation today. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I have listened with a great deal of interest to the debate on this bill, as well as the debate on the amendments yesterday. Up to this point I have not heard anybody raise the issue that I am going to raise.

In 1959 in an effort to place in the hands of the people the right to determine whether or not a person should receive the death penalty, we passed the so-called double verdict bill in this General Assembly.

That double verdict bill places squarely upon the shoulders of 12 people, known as a jury, the right to determine whether or not a person shall receive the death penalty or shall receive life imprisonment. And the mercy which we have heard about today can be shown by that jury who are a part of the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. In the case of a particularly atrocious crime for which the death penalty should be imposed, they have that right in their hands.

For that reason I do not see why we should abolish the death penalty in the State of Pennsylvania, but leave something in the hands of the people to protect themselves against such vicious criminals.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Adams.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley, consent to be interrogated?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WORLEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ADAMS. I would ask whether the gentleman is familiar with the Elmo Smith murder case that occurred in Montgomery County not too long ago?

Mr. WORLEY. I know the case and I know a person who sat through the trial. I am probably not as familiar with it as a person who sat through the trial. What is the gentleman's question?

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, was Elmo Smith tried for murder in Adams County?

Mr. WORLEY. According to the information I have, he was.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, the reason I bring this up is that the gentleman from Adams lent great weight to the thinking and the attitude of the people in Adams County in his earlier statement. Was Elmo Smith convicted of murder in the first degree in Adams County?

Mr. WORLEY. According to the information I have, he was.

Mr. ADAMS. Was Elmo Smith given the death sentence in Adams County?

Mr. WORLEY. According to my information, he was.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, was it a jury of 12 men and women from Adams County who imposed that death sentence?

Mr. WORLEY. I think the gentleman knows the answer to that; it takes a jury of 12.

Mr. ADAMS. I was trying to clarify whether this had taken place since the law was changed taking it from the hands of the judge and placing it into the jury's hands.

Mr. WORLEY. Would the gentleman repeat the question, please?

Mr. ADAMS. I am trying to clarify whether the verdict was made by the 12 people on the jury on the double verdict type of decision, rather than at the hands of the judge, as it was previous to the 1959 change in the law?

Mr. WORLEY. It is my understanding of the law that the jury always did it, even before. As to the double verdict, the only difference with the double verdict is that the jury does not consider prior crimes at the same time that they consider the facts in the particular case in determining the question of the sentence.

Mr. ADAMS. That is all, Mr. Speaker, of the interrogation.

The point I am trying to make is that it would appear that the weight lent to the attitude of the people from Adams County would not appear to be reflected in the verdict of jurors who tried the Elmo Smith case, which case was taken from Montgomery County because of the high feeling there, I believe, and taken to a county somewhat distant in order to get a fair trial.

I would like to make a further statement: I believe yesterday during the debate on the amendments I heard a statement made by someone, I do not recall who it was, that the people who are trying to keep capital punishment would in effect be pulling the switch to the electric chair, or words to that effect. That gave me considerable food for thought, placing the onus upon the people who are trying to retain the law as it is. I would also like to make this point in answer to that in case that line of thinking is in anyone's mind. I feel, and raise the question, would not the person who is trying to abolish capital punishment be giving the green light to the murderer, the kidnapper and the rapist to go out in the communities and perpetrate these heinous crimes with the knowledge and the feeling and the safety that he can, at the worst, be sentenced to life imprisonment and, with the admitted statements earlier, that he would be eligible to apply for a parole very shortly after he was committed if he so desired? I would like that to be on the record. The onus can be worn on the other foot, if it is analyzed in that manner.

I feel that the law should be retained the way it is. Thank you.

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Adams rise?

Mr. WORLEY. I would like to answer the gentleman from Berks. I have information which I received last night from a person who sat through the entire trial of Elmo Smith in Adams County that there were between 125 and 150 jurymen impanelled before they were able to get 12 to go along with the death penalty.

Now that case was not a case that started in Adams County. It was brought from another county near Philadelphia to Adams County.

I just want that to be on the record, that there were well over 100 jurymen impanelled before they could find 12. I think that is some evidence of public opinion against the death penalty.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is advised that the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Foerster, has been signalling for recognition and this is his second address.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny.

Mr. FOERSTER. Mr. Speaker, many months ago I was committed to vote for this bill before a group of ministers back in my district.

After many hours of deliberation and study on it, I have come to the conclusion that I cannot vote for the bill until there are proper safeguards in it such as were in the amendments I offered this afternoon and also the amendments offered by my colleague, Mr. Goldstein, yesterday, and also until somebody can prove to me that life imprisonment means life imprisonment.

Therefore I am voting against the bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has prior recognition and will recognize the gentleman from Philadelphia after having recognized the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Lamb.

Mr. LAMB. As I have sat here and listened intently to the arguments and as I have read the many articles that have come out on the question, pro and con, I find that there are four areas which I feel must be explored and which must be answered

No. 1, the proponents of the bill to abolish capital punishment in Pennsylvania state first that the State has no moral right to take the life of another.

No. 2, that capital punishment is not a deterrent to crime.

No. 3, that only the affluent and the rich avoid the death penalty while the poor person must suffer the death penalty.

No. 4, that there is a strong possibility of error being committed, resulting therefore in the death of an innocent man.

The one argument I cannot say too much about because much has been written and those who say that it is a deterrent could be met with many others who say it is not a deterrent. The question, as Mr. Kramer said earlier, is a question that could be argued forever. I know that many statistics have been produced. I know that Mr. Murphy, for example, produced, I thought, a very telling statistic by comparing the number of murders, let us say, in Allegheny County or in Pittsburgh with the number in Detroit. In Michigan there is no death penalty; in Pennsylvania there is.

I do not feel informed enough to discuss this part of the question, but with respect to the other three, I have a few remarks to make.

I think that all of us at one time or another received what I think is an excellent report prepared by The District Attorneys Association of Pennsylvania, entitled "Should Capital Punishment Be Retained in Pennsylvania?"

With respect to the first question, whether or not the State has a moral right to take the life of another, I would like to refer to a finding that was made by a special commission to investigate the abolition of the death penalty in Massachusetts. Now under this question the following finding and conclusion is made:

Only God who created human life has the right to take it away. Since, however, the authority of the State derives ultimately from God, and is exercised in God's name, it is not inconsistent to hold that the State may claim the right, in the name of God, to take away human life in circumstances in which this would appear clearly to be in accord with God's own will.

When a man, through his own fault, has endangered the right of the State to carry on its divinely appointed functions, there may be reason to assume that he has forfeited his God-given right to live, and that the taking of his life may be justified as an indispensable means of protecting society from serious harm.

On the question, Mr. Speaker, with respect to whether only the poor man receives capital punishment, I would like to refer to another study. The argument was that the death penalty is limited only to the poor man.

Those favoring abolition of the death penalty have long argued that it is a poor man's penalty. Today's protection of the poor and indigent murderer in Pennsylvania is almost unbelievable. The law of Pennsylvania provides the murderer with one or two lawyers for his defense, each of which is paid up to $500 by the county wherein the case is tried. The law further provides that such investigators, experts, psychiatrists, psychologists, fire arms experts, etc., as the circumstances warrant will be provided for the defendant at the county's expense. The county pays for the printing of homicide records of trials and appeal costs. No defendant in a capital case is ever denied counsel of his own choice, and if he is without funds the county will pay said counsel as heretofore set forth.

Parenthetically, I might also point out that the lawyer of an accused is entitled automatically to the right of review of the trial by the Supreme Court.

The last point that I wish to bring out is the possibility of error.

The likelihood of conviction of an innocent man ignores the role scientific crime detection plays in modern trials. Such facilities as the crime laboratories of the F. B. I., the Pennsylvania State Police, and Allegheny and Philadelphia Counties play an increasingly important role in the production of evidence in homicide cases. Science has taken its rightful place in the prosecution of murder cases, and the evidence and conclusions reached by the outstanding crime laboratories of our state and nation work for the protection of the innocent as well as the conviction of the guilty.

Thank you.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will recognize the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand, and the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Filo, in the order named.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Filo.

Mr. FILO. I thank the gentleman. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The only thing I want to do is to make a correction. I made a misstatement on a figure I gave as far as the number of deaths is concerned. The total in the last 10 years is 699 deaths instead of 1,917. Thank you.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia. Does the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, simply yield priority or does he yield?

The Chair thanks the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr.

McCormack, and recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I think Mr. McCormack pulled a fast one on me. However, I reserve the right to a second speech.

Mr. Speaker, from the time during the French Revolution when pickpocketing was an offense punishable by the guillotine, capital punishment has served no worthwhile purpose. In those days if one would pick pockets and he was apprehended the offense was punishable with no appeal, by the guillotine. Yet public executions were the noteworthy things in those days, and amongst the audiences that observed the guillotining there were numerous pickpockets who used the opportunity to accomplish their own deserts and experience the fruits of their efforts, with no deterrent on their activities whatsoever nor with any fear of retribution, although they were operating in the very shadows of the guillotine which would sever their heads from their bodies if they were apprehended.

I say this because this is the historic attitude and I say this to indicate that from the time of the French Revolution, and many years before that, although we are a civilized society, we have not advanced whatsoever in our attitude toward the punishment of the criminal nor in the rehabilitation of the criminal.

Along the line of civilized education, I suppose, many of the states of the United States and many other countries of the world have been considering this problem for years and years. On many, many occasions prior to this in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in this very legislature, we have had numerous bills dealing with this problem. And to the end of serving what we believe is justice, this session we appointed an august committee of both houses of the legislature to investigate the problem and come back to us with recommendations on what their findings were with regard to proper treatment of capital punishment and the abolition of capital punishment.

After they completed their study, and I know it was a difficult one which took them throughout the Commonwealth, they presented to us in booklet form, their findings. Much to my dismay as I listened to this debate today, I can see that we have honored their findings by completely ignoring what they have learned, because many of the questions that were asked on this very floor in this very debate were answered at length in this booklet and there was an indication of their findings with regard to the need for capital punishment and its deterrent effect on crime of a heinous nature.

Let me read portions of the book for those of us in this House who have not either had the opportunity or who have not enjoyed the desire to see what they could have learned, because many of the questions that were asked this afternoon will come out in answer form as I go through this. Possibly some of us who are not yet determined in our attitude and in the way that we intend to vote on this very, very meaningful legislation will be able to in the next few minutes come to a decision which at least will be worthy of our conscience.

First, let me start by saying this. In its study and its findings this committee went to a great deal of effort. They accepted statements and heard witnesses from all over the Commonwealth and they heard very many logical and very many visceral and emotional reactions. They weighed them all, and much to my unhappiness, I will say, they did not come to a definite decision. But if you read the booklet, you will find that the tone of the report and the vote of the committee indicated a leaning in a definite direction as curried and determined from the evidence.

They did not want to force their viewpoints on this legislature, but they have presented us the evidence and it is up to us, after weighing this evidence, not emotionally, but logically, to come to a conclusion. If we weigh it logically and not emotionally, we will come to the conclusion that I believe this booklet leads us to, and that is the passage of this bill. They say this:

During the last 150 years numerous abolition bills have been introduced in the Legislature in Pennsylvania, but they have either died in committee or failed of passage. Elsewhere in the nation, nine states have abolished capital punishment: Alaska, Delaware, Hawaii, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Rhode Island and Wisconsin; as have Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Among foreign nations, it no longer exists, in peace time, in Queensland, Israel, Italy, Portugal, Austria, Switzerland, Western Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Norway, and Iceland. It has also been abandoned by Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, Venezuela, Uruguay, Costa Rica, Dominica, Panama, and parts of Mexico.

So that, actually, what we consider here today is not unique or unusual in its aspect, but is something which has been weighed all over the United States and all over the world, and I am proud to say that in many of the civilized communities of the world they are reaching the conclusion we should reach here today and that is to abolish capital punishment as a means of solving heinous crimes of murder.

Now let me read something else:—

Mr. Speaker, I know this is in the latter part of the debate, but I do beg the indulgence of the members. Although I do not like to quote verbatim from articles I have in my possession and oftentimes I speak extemporaneously, to me this issue is very important and I fear that many of us have failed to read adequately and thoroughly this report. At the risk of imposing upon you, I would at least like you to have the information that is in this report so that when you vote at last on this bill you can give it full and considered judgment, bearing in mind what has been learned.

The report continued:

The Committee was somewhat surprised by the fact that, despite all its efforts to get as wide an expression of opinion as possible, there were very few people who appeared to present the position that capital punishment should be retained. The Committee is, however, fully conscious of the letters expressing such views that have been received and of the various recent newspaper editorials. However, the difference between fact and opinion must be noted. It is one thing to express a visceral reaction and quite another to back it up with facts. The paucity of the factual information submitted in support of capital punishment may not prove by itself that the facts are against the position, but it is remarkable" and I repeat, "it is remarkable that the proponents submitted very little, if any, statistical data. Instead, they relied principally upon expression of opinion and prophecies of what would happen if the death penalty were abolished.

Notice is taken of the fact that similar dire prophecies have been made against every effort to abolish this penalty, even for offenses that are not now punishable by death.

Here in a footnote they give this statement:

"Lord Elenborough"—Lord Elenborough was the Chief Justice of the King's Bench years before the United States was even a country.

Lord Elenborough, Chief Justice of the King's Bench, in arguing against a bill to abolish the death penalty for stealing 5 shillings from the dwelling house, predicted that no man could 'trust himself for an hour without the most alarming apprehensions, that on his return, every vestige of his property will be swept away by the hardened robber.'

It need not be demonstrated that the voice of this eminent jurist of many years ago sounds a bit absurd today in the light of subsequent events, and, as a matter of fact, there is no death penalty for stealing five shillings and this has not caused men to have all their entire possessions swept away.

Now, to get to some of the arguments that were demonstrated on this floor by some of the opponents of this legislation. For instance, one gentleman interrogated earlier in the afternoon said he would vote for this bill if he were sure that life imprisonment would mean something, and he raised the question that there was a recent murder, a very, very well publicized murder, in California in which the two defendants both received life imprisonment, but there is a statute in California which says that after seven years they, under certain circumstances, could be paroled from prison, and he said he is worried about what happens in Pennsylvania.

First, I would like to allay his fears, because we have no such statute in Pennsylvania and life imprisonment in Pennsylvania could mean life. However, be that as it may, I think an important—

Mr. Speaker, I am sorry if I am imposing on the body. Apparently, the tides that affect this bill have already begun to flow, but if they have and I cannot stem them, then I am very, very sorry, but what I have to say about this bill I feel deeply and sincerely and I intend to say it. If you are getting restless, I am very, very sorry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman, in defending his right to speak, is defending the right of every member of this House to secure attention. It is very important that we establish a tradition here that every member—every member—is accorded the attention of his colleagues on the floor of this House.

The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. GELFAND. As I was saying, Mr. Speaker, the important thing with regard to life imprisonment, is what does it mean and to what extent does it serve as punishment, and on this score I think it is incumbent upon us to at least look at what the record indicates so we will be aware of what happens in Pennsylvania when a man receives life imprisonment.

For instance, a report issued recently by the State Bureau of Corrections indicate this: That in the year 1954 life imprisonment in Pennsylvania meant that a prisoner had to serve 19.6 years in the penitentiary; in 1955 it meant he had to serve 17.5 years in the penitentiary; in 1958, it meant he had to serve 17.2; and in 1960 it meant he had to serve 23.8 years in penitentiary confinement. That is what life imprisonment means.

The next thing that is important in connection with life imprisonment is this: What is the extent of recidivism? To what extent does a paroled life prisoner commit heinous crimes? To what extent does he commit a second murder, and how safe a risk is a life prisoner? Here the evidence is the strongest, because here is where we indicate that life imprisonment does serve a purpose, because the lowest ratio of returned criminals to penitentiaries are criminals who have committed a murder and received life imprisonment and subsequently have been paroled, the lowest ratio of returned prisoners is this type of individual. So it should be obvious, if we are thinking people and not emotional people, that life imprisonment does serve a purpose, life imprisonment does have an effect, and that execution is not the important thing, but the important thing is, has a criminal who has committed a crime, who has been confined, been rehabilitated?

Murder is a base thing, but murder by society is a thought-out thing. Does it make it any less base because we do it as a society rather than as an individual?

After all, if a man commits a heinous crime of murder and he should be executed, then why should not we all as individuals, who suffered it to happen, suffer the same penalty, because we are deliberately executing this individual, knowing in our good minds and thinking, supposedly, that this is the proper thing to do.

Let us go further. Let us look into more of these things. One of the gentlemen who spoke said that if we did away with the death penalty we would have police afraid to apprehend criminals, that there would be more deaths amongst the police force and that actually it would make their job more fearful and more difficult.

Yet in the states that have abolished capital punishment there is no proof of this whatsoever. In the States that have abolished it they have exactly the same type of experience with regard to the murder of policemen, or homicide of policemen, in the enforcement of their duties as they have in the States that do have it. There is no relationship, no connection, and no evidence whatsoever, to prove that one thing has anything to do with the other. Yet we echo and re-echo these fallacies, and by echoing and re-echoing them we assume that they become truisms when the facts prove otherwise.

In this booklet there are a number of charts and a number of statements in which they compare the States that have abolished capital punishment with those States that have not abolished capital punishment. They have endeavored to do it on a logical and reasonable basis so they can compare the same type of economic area and the same type of population with each other State.

Then what did they find out? This is what they found out: The States that have abolished capital punishment have the same, almost exact, experience as the States which have not abolished capital punishment and that the fear of reprisal upon a defendant for having committed a heinous crime has no effect whatsoever. The fear of being electrocuted or gassed in a lethal chamber does neither deter nor increase this type of crime.

Being one who advocates doing away with capital punishment, I do not say that we will reduce the number of heinous crimes of murder, but what I do say is this, that capital punishment serves no purpose whatsoever, and it has not served to reduce such crimes.

Because it has not served any purpose whatsoever, I believe we debase ourselves as civilized human beings by continuing to advocate such a thing. I think that in order to catch up to the Twentieth Century we should examine what has to be done to rehabilitate criminals, and we should be more reasonable in our approach to these things, and not animalistic.

Finally, although I could continue a little more, because there are many, many things in this booklet that answer questions that have been raised on this floor, I would like to say this: I too, have the same fear that Mr. Kramer has. I am not so sure that in every instance the man who goes to the gas chamber or to the electric chair did commit that heinous crime. There are reported instances where, prior to execution, a man who had been scheduled for execution, has been found to be innocent. As a matter of fact, in this very booklet there are some cases indicated. There is nothing so final as death, and if these men were electrocuted, having been convicted erroneously, it would be a shame upon every citizen of this Commonwealth. I say because of these things, because capital punishment acts as no deterrent, because it has not proven to be of any worthwhile use, and because the retention of it only appeals to emotion and to a visceral attitude that we have to have vengeance upon a killer. I think because of these things we should vote in favor of this bill and do away with capital punishment in the civilized State of Pennsylvania.

The SPEAKER. The Chair certainly does not recognize any mass call for a roll. There is a way of terminating debate if any member desires to use it.

I thought the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, relinquished his priority and right to speak. I asked him at the time whether he was surrendering his place on the schedule or simply surrendering his priority and I thought he was—

Mr. McCORMACK. I said priority, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, and then, unless some other member insists upon speaking, will recognize the gentleman from Cumberland, who will close the debate.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to briefly speak against House bill 226. As a point of departure, I would like to allude to several of the statements made by the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley.

Of course, it is pure speculation as to why the people of Adams County returned him for 17 years. I do not know whether it was because he advocated the abolition of the death penalty or not, but apparently he operates on the theory that since it took 150 people in Adams County to get a jury of 12, that therefore he will get the vote of 138 of them anyhow. That being the majority, he is pretty safe.

Mr. Speaker, I think that if there is ever a time in any situation where the people in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania should be united, it is in this problem of the war against crime and criminals. It is for that reason, above everything else, that I believe the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is wise in retaining and having in the laws, the law of capital punishment.

The gentleman from Adams attacked this present policy in the present law on several grounds. I believe the first was on the moral ground that only God had the right to take a life, and not the individual or society. I believe we have heard it mentioned by Mr. Miller and others that moral theology holds that there is a basis for capital punishment, that clearly in Scriptures, both in Exodus and Romans, that society does have the right to take life.

I want to recall to your minds the situation that existed over 1900 years ago, when a Galilean carpenter stood before Pontius Pilate and Pontius Pilate said to him: "Dost thou not know that I have the power to set you free or to crucify you?" And the carpenter stood before him and calmly said, "Thou would have no power unless it were given to thee from above." And He submitted to it.

The point I am raising is that He submitted to it. He did not abrogate it; He did not declare a moratorium on it; He submitted to it. So, I think clearly, on the basis of Scripture and tradition, the State has the right in certain instances to take the life of an individual.

As far as I am able to reason, Mr. Speaker, I cannot see any distinction between the State and the individuals who compose the State taking the life of an individual and the State or the Nation going to war. I have certainly participated in wars and I have killed people, and I say that I did not think it was morally right, or rather, I did not think it was morally wrong because it was in self-defense. We were morally justified in going to war and in killing people who were trying to interfere and take our lives and our property. We had the right to do it in war, and for the same reason, self-defense, the State has the right to protect itself and its citizens by declaring that those who commit the most callous, the most heinous of crimes, murder, should in proper instances, die.

The gentleman from Adams also mentioned that this was not a deterrent. Well, I have examined the records and I say that it is impossible for us to fully determine whether or not capital punishment is a deterrent regardless of any statistics that you might quote from, you still are not able to accurately, and statistically or analytically or conclusively decide that it is or is not a deterrent. We are men of reason; we must be reasonable and reason this out ourselves. Who is there to say that it is not in the mind of at least one criminal to take a life, if he knew that he would not suffer death?

We have an eminent authority saying that capital punishment is the greatest possible deterrent against the criminal. I respect that authority; I respect it more so than the sociologists and a lot of maudlin individuals and sentimentalists who come up here and tell us that it is not a deterrent.

The gentleman also alluded to the fact that it is only the poor who suffer this penalty. Well, of course, we know it is mostly the poor who are involved in felony murders, such as robbery and burglary, and they do it for money. So it would necessarily follow that it would be mostly the poor who would be involved in situations where a jury might return a verdict of death. Now if the argument is that it is only the poor, if that argument is raised because you are inferring that the poor are deprived of eminent counsel and money with which to prosecute not only a successful trial, but an appeal, then I say to you that the facts do not warrant that conclusion. I can think of the most brilliant defenses in the history of this Commonwealth wherein attorneys represented defendants charged with first degree murder who did not have a penny to defend themselves. And I refer to a great criminal lawyer and former Attorney General who participated in one that went through the State courts time and again and wound up in the Federal Court, Commonwealth v. James Smith, I believe, who killed a taxicab driver. Tom McBride defended him. His services were worth $100,000. You could not have paid him for the services that he rendered that penurious defendant in the case, and yet, he was a very poor man. I do not think that Thomas McBride got a dime for that.

Look at the case of the Commonwealth v. Treetop Turner. The work, the number of trials, the numbers of appeals in that case—the lawyer involved, whose name momentarily escapes me—devoted years of his experience, years of his life to successfully defend this criminal who did not have a dime. You could not buy that type of defense. So that certainly, so far as I am concerned, refutes the argument that the poor are the ones who suffer by this because they do not have enough money to engage trial counsel or to prosecute appeals. That just is not so under the law.

I think of one thing we can be certain. I think that getting back to the deterrent aspects of this again, we know that an executed criminal will never commit another crime. Of that we can be certain. I think we can also be certain of the fact that where a criminal is perpetrating a felony, which is enumerated in the felony statute, that he might very well pull the trigger to silence a witness to that felony where he realizes that he is going to suffer the same amount of time in prison as he would for the crime itself. I think we can be certain of that.

Now, getting back for a minute to the argument about the poor, to carry that to its logical conclusion. If we do away with the death penalty, we are still, Mr. Speaker, dealing with the poor and next they will come up here and say it is only the poor in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania who are receiving the life sentence, and therefore we should abolish life sentences. It does not apply to the rich, it only applies to the poor, so there is a lot of fallacy in that argument.

Now, rather than listening too closely to these social scientists and penologists, I would like to refer very briefly to the report submitted by Judge Sam Weiss from Pittsburgh that was alluded to before by several members.

Here is a man who was in the legislature from 1936 to 1939, I believe, and he was dead set against capital punishment in Pennsylvania. He went on the bench in 1946. I think he was a trial judge in 63 murder cases. In 1953 he sat in seven consecutive murder cases. I respect his opinion and I respect his courage and his forthrightness in appearing before this legislative committee and in taking the time and trouble to submit his detailed report. He certainly believes that the death penalty is not only necessary but that it is vital to the defense of the citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and in the report he quotes from Dr. Baldi, the former warden of our State Penitentiary at Rockview and director and superintendent of the Holmesburg and Moyamensing prisons. This is one thing that Dr. Baldi says in his book, "The Last Mile." "The one thing that the desperate criminal mind fears, the one thing that can hold the finger from the trigger is the electric chair awaiting at the end of the trial. Remove that chair, and we remove the greatest physiological deterrent to premeditated murder."

Now, it is true that I am not going to change any votes and no one else is going to change any votes, but I think before we undertake to eliminate what I consider an essential measure for the protection of the citizens of this great Commonwealth, we ought to think twice about it. For that reason, after listening to all the arguments, we ought to vote to retain it, especially in light of what we did just two short years ago, when we provided a greater measure of protection for criminals by not permitting the district attorney to reveal the facts of the terrible record that that particular defendant charged with murder may have. They have to hold that until after the jury decides on the facts of the case. We ought to give that a greater trial and, until some better measure does, we ought to keep this measure on our books. Therefore, I urge you all to vote against this bill.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Hocker, desire to be recognized?

Mr. HOCKER. Mr. Speaker, I do and I will be very brief; the hour is getting late. I, too, have given this much thought. I think it is one of the major problems that will probably come before this session this year. My mind is not changed very readily—but if Mr. McCormack would allow himself to be interrogated, I would like to interrogate the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCORMACK. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HOCKER. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I think during the debate, if my memory serves me correctly, you used the term "paid killer," is that true?

Mr. McCORMACK. A professional killer?

Mr. HOCKER. Yes.

Mr. McCORMACK. That is right. Yes, sir.

Mr. HOCKER. Mr. Speaker, do you think in your own mind that this person exists, a person of this type?

Mr. McCORMACK. Sure. As a matter of fact, it happened just recently in Florida, where they did away with a judge.

Mr. HOCKER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman and, if I may, this is what has let me arrive at the decision which I think is fair. I sum this whole thing up to this. I think that a man, if there is such thing as a paid killer, and I think there is, who just committed a very hideous crime in the state of Florida, was convicted, and if that person exists, I am quite sure that for money, he will gamble on twenty years in the penitentiary. But I wonder how much thought he will give to committing a murder for a price if he knows that he is going to pay with his life. That has given me my answer, Mr. Speaker, and I will certainly oppose the abolishment of capital punishment. Thank you.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I shall be as brief as possible, but I think the record ought to be made as full and as clear on this very, very important question as it can possibly be made. We have debated it thoroughly this afternoon. There is not any question that has faced the people of Pennsylvania that possibly has caused so much thinking, so much comment, since the 2 percent sales tax or the tax was raised on gasoline.

I have listened very attentively to all the arguments. A great many of those proposed by the people favoring this bill, I believe, have been adequately answered. The question of public opinion, possibly, is a very important factor. The gentleman from Adams County, Mr. Worley, raised it, and he expressed it as the public opinion of the people of his county, 44,000-and-some in population.

To offset that, let me say that I am absolutely sure from comments that I have received from my own county of Blair, with some nearly four times the number of people in Adams County, that they are absolutely opposed to the abolishment of capital punishment in Pennsylvania.

The argument as to millionaires never being convicted, I believe, has been adequately answered.

The argument that only the poor are executed, I believe, has been adequately answered because, as has been said on the floor of this House, we here in Pennsylvania have surrounded the defendant who is indigent with every possible safeguard and provided him with every possible means of giving him the best defense possible in a murder trial, or in any other criminal trial, for that matter.

A great deal of pressure has been brought—I will not say pressure exactly—certainly a great commotion has been raised on this very important question by various religious denominations over this State. One of them is the Council of Churches. I talked with their leaders personally and debated the problem with them on this particular subject. I asked them this question, and I think it is entirely right, that we are living under a civil government and throughout all history the protection of our society has been under the civil government, and rightfully so, and not under the church. So I would say that the churches, possibly, without taking a poll of their members—and I could find none of them that did so and they admitted to me that they had not—are certainly out of order to express an opinion of any denomination, that the people of any denomination, in this Commonwealth are opposed to capital punishment or favored capital punishment. I say frankly that I think they stuck their necks out, that they did not have any business sticking them out in business that does not belong to them. I told them so, and I am not saying anything behind their backs.

I believe that capital punishment has its place. I believe that in a government as we are living under today and which has the protection of society as its goal, as one of its main goals, it should be left to civil government to work it out. And that has been true throughout all history.

I believe that much has been said, and probably will be said in the future, on this very important question. It will not be answered today forever. That is the reason I say that the record ought to be made as clear today as possible. This question is bound to return, no doubt, in future sessions to come. This is as far as it has ever got in my remembrance, to an open debate on the floor of the House.

People have said, and I have had church people say to me, some of these very church people that I have talked to, and this is probably a very good point, at least it is in my estimation, that every man should have a right to repent. That is possibly true of a cold-blooded murderer who maybe does not even have it in mind to repent at all. Usually when it comes to crimes of passion, we have provided the means here for his life imprisonment, that he has a chance to repent.

But I would say to those people and to all the people who raise that argument, what about the people whom these cold-blooded murderers have killed? They have taken every chance away from them for the right and pursuit of happiness, and to lead a good, christian, useful life among their communities. You do not hear them raise that question. Very few people plead for the victims; they all plead for the aggressor. Society seems to me to be moving in that direction, that we are constantly surrounding the criminal with protection instead of trying to protect the people who ought to be protected, the innocent victims.

So I ask everybody in the House to keep this thing on the books so it will be a deterrent to these cold-blooded murderers, and they are the only people that it affects.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cumberland who will close the debate.

Mr. KISTLER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the Chair for the permission to close the debate and I would like to ask the indulgence of the members of the House for just a brief moment. I know that everybody is tired. This has been a tense session. This has been a thing that we have built up to for some time; this is truly a matter of life and death.

I can tell you with some assurance that there is little doubt that there have been other bills that were more easy of solution with respect to our votes than House bill 226. This is a bill that has come before us with a great deal of pressure from various segments of our society. Nevertheless it is an important bill. The very foundation of our society is predicated upon the continued life of the State, and, therefore, it behooves us to give serious consideration as we cast our vote pro or con for this bill.

I would not suppose that the members of this House did not study in detail the lengthy works that have been put at their disposal with respect to research, statistics, and so forth, on this vital matter. I believe every member here has done this. Therefore, I will not burden you with additional comment in this regard.

I do want to pay some respects to Mr. Lamb, the gentleman from Allegheny, and who I think has made a wonderful summation of the matter before us.

In my own case I have gone outside of some of the comment that has gone on this afternoon to get some information from people, who, in my opinion, I believe to be in authority on this matter. In this connection I wrote to J. Edgar Hoover of the United States Department of Justice and he, in turn, wrote to me at some length. With your indulgence, I would like to submit for your consideration parts of what he had to say with respect to this vital subject. I have a letter from The United States Department of Justice, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, as of May 11, 1961. He says, in part:

My dear Mr. Kistler:

I have received your letter and appreciate the interest which prompted you to write. This is indeed appreciated. My position on the subject of capital punishment is well known and I have spoken out repeatedly over the years against the trend to abolish realistic punishment. Frequent misguided compassion overshadows the concern that we should have for victims of murderers, rapists, and other hardened criminals.

The question of capital punishment has sent a storm of controversy thundering across our Nation. Millions of spoken and written words seek to examine the question so that decisions may be reached which befit our civilization. The struggle for answers concerning the taking of men's lives is one to which every American should lend his voice, for the problem in a democracy such as ours, is not one for a handful of men to solve alone. As a representative of law enforcement, it is my belief that a great many of the more vociferous cries for abolition of capital punishment emanate from those areas of our society which have been insulated against the horrors man can and does perpetrate against his fellow beings. Certainly, penetrative and searching thought must be given before considering any blanket cessation of capital punishment in a time when unspeakable crimes are being committed. The savagely mutilated bodies and mentally ravaged victims of murderers, rapists and other criminal beasts beg consideration when the evidence is weighed on both sides of the scales of Justice.

At the same time, nothing is so precious in our country as the life of a human being, whether he is a criminal or not, and on the other side of the scales must be placed all of the legal safeguards which our society demands.

Experience has clearly demonstrated, however, that the timeproven deterrents to crime are sure detection, swift apprehension, and the proper punishment. Each is a necessary ingredient. Law-abiding citizens have a right to expect that the efforts of law enforcement officers in detecting and apprehending criminals will be followed by realistic punishment.

It is my opinion that when no shadow of a doubt remains relative to the guilt of a defendant, the public interest demands capital punishment be invoked where the law so provides.

Who, in all good conscience, can say that Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, the spies who delivered the secret of the atomic bomb into the hands of the Soviets, should have been spared when their treachery caused the shadow of annihilation to fall upon all of the world's peoples? What place would there have been in civilization for these two who went to their deaths unrepentant, unwilling to the last to help their own country and their own fellowmen? What would have been the chances of rehabilitating Jack Gilbert Graham, who placed a bomb in his own mother's luggage and blasted her and 43 other innocent victims into oblivion as they rode an airliner across a peaceful sky?

A judge once said, "The death penalty is a warning, just like a lighthouse throwing its beams out to sea. We hear about shipwrecks, but we do not hear about the ships the lighthouse guides safely on their way. We do not have proof of the number of ships it saves, but we do not tear the lighthouse down."

Despicable crimes must be dealt with realistically. To abolish the death penalty would absolve other Rosenbergs and Grahams from fear of the consequences for committing atrocious crimes. Where the death penalty is provided, a criminal's punishment may be meted out commensurate with his deeds. While a Power transcending man is the final Judge, this same Power gave man reason so that he might protect himself. Capital punishment is an instrument with which he may guard the righteous against the predators among men.

We must never allow misguided compassion to erase our concern for the hundreds of unfortunate, innocent victims of bestial criminals.

Very truly yours,
J. Edgar Hoover
Director

Mr. Speaker, Mr. Hoover is not alone the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Mr. Hoover is an outstanding Presbyterian churchman. In addition to this comment from Mr. Hoover, I have been in correspondence with Judge Weiss of the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County. Judge Weiss has told me that which you have heard stated heretofore by Mr. McCormack, that he was, for years, against capital punishment here in this House of Representatives and in the Congress at Washington, but that 15 years as a judge has reversed him completely and he now stands for capital punishment.

In summation, Mr. Speaker, I submit that 5,000 years of history has left man basically unchanged. On the 11th day, in the 11th month of the 40th year in the wilderness, Moses laid down the laws that one who would take a life should lose his own. This judgment was confirmed by Our Lord, subsequently, when He laid down the doctrine that a life that has taken another has lost its sanctity before God and man.

It could be a dangerous doctrine that murder will hurt you but it will not kill you.

Just as one can never know how many ships are saved by the lighthouse, so we can never know how many lives and tragedies are prevented by the law providing capital punishment.

Mr. Speaker, I submit that it would be gross error to cloak a murderer, to cloak a rapist, to cloak an arsonist who would take your life, who would take my life, who would take your daughter's life, who would take my daughter's life. I submit that it would be a mistake, it would be gross error, to cloak these people with legislative immunity. I respectfully, therefore, request the members on both sides of the aisle to vote against House bill 226. I thank you.

NOT VOTING—5

Kessler,

Tomasick,

Less than the majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the bill falls.

REASONS FOR VOTE

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr., filed the following reasons for his vote on House bill No. 226:

The proponents of capital punishment have no answer to the miscarriage of justice which may occur where the executed individual is later discovered to be innocent.

It is my belief that this Commonwealth has the opportunity to test the effect of the end of the death penalty. If after a period of five years or in fact at any time in the future we find that the effect has in fact been detrimental to public peace and safety we may restore the law to its present status.

Abolition deserves a chance—I hope that the end result will be a good one for our society.

Mr. HOLMAN filed the following reasons for his vote on House bill No. 226:

Mr. Speaker, I must say from the outset that capital punishment is an issue that must by its very nature be resolved by one's own conscience. The Joint Legislative Committee recognized this when it concluded in its report that it would recommend neither retention nor abolition of capital punishment.

The main argument for retention of capital punishment advanced by the proponents of the issue is the deterrent effect of such punishment. I am convinced from my own observations as an attorney and from the expert studies I have read on the subject that the deterrent effect is slight, even though, admittedly, it can never be established how many persons are actually deterred by the threat of punishment of any nature. Most experts agree that the chief deterrent to crime is not the severity of the penalty inflicted, but the certainty of detection and punishment.

I share the concern with the fallacies that exist in our pardon and parole system, for there are many. I also share the concern of those who point out the many atrocious crimes that have been committed in recent years; however, the facts show that fear of punishment does not deter the mentally ill or so-called "sex fiends." Furthermore, statistics show that lifers make the best parole risks. Contrary to popular belief, the average lifer in a Pennsylvania institution serves 18.7 years before parole. In the words of the Joint Legislative Committee "a mandatory life sentence, without hope of parole, represents an unjustified distrust of the future."

Mr. Speaker, since the taking of life falls within the providence of God and not within the right of man, and since the only forceful argument for retention, i. e., the deterrent effect, has been proven to be of only slight significance, I have voted "aye" on the final passage of House bill 226.

Mr. HELM IN THE CHAIR

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 28

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up on page 40 of today's calendar, House Resolution No. 28.

The resolution was read by the clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 14, 1961.

Legislation is now pending in both Houses of the General Assembly which if adopted will abolish capital punishment in this Commonwealth. It is imperative that the committees to which these measures have been referred have ample time for thorough study. It is also foreseeable that additional studies and public hearings will be necessary before action can be taken on such proposals.

While these studies are being conducted men are scheduled for and waiting execution. These executions should not be carried out until such time as the studies have been completed and the General Assembly has accepted or rejected the abolition of capital punishment therefore be it

Resolved (the Senate concurring) That the governor of this Commonwealth the Honorable David L. Lawrence is hereby urged to declare a moratorium on all executions pending final action by the General Assembly on legislation to abolish capital punishment and be it further Resolved That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Honorable David L. Lawrence.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

RESOLUTION RECOMMITTED

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this resolution be recommitted to the Committee on Rules.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE POSTPONED

Agreeably to order,

The bill having been called up from the postponed calendar by Mr. McCANN.

The House resumed the consideration on final passage of House bill No. 131, entitled:

An Act defining and relating to installment land contracts in cities of the first class and providing for and regulating the rights and obligations between parties to such contracts under certain terms and conditions.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I know that the men and women of this House have patiently and attentively listened to lengthy debate on the capital punishment bill and it is almost capital punishment to make them listen to even further debate. And I do not intend to sorely try their patience, but I would ask them to indulge me, if they would, for a brief moment or two on House bill 131.

I feel constrained to speak briefly about the bill simply because this is the second try on House bill 131 and I am inclined to believe it was because of some misunderstanding that the bill fell when it was first considered last week.

Now, Mr. Speaker, when the average person buys a home, he buys it usually in one of two ways. If they are left with enough resources, they usually buy the home with all cash. The average purchaser, however, usually makes enough of a down deposit which, when added to the mortgage he is able to obtain, enables him to pay for the entire purchase price.

Now there is a class of persons who do not fit into either of these two categories, people who do not have enough money to make a sufficient deposit which, when added to the mortgage, will complete the purchase price. They, too, want to become home owners. How do they go about it? They enter into what is called a lease-purchase arrangement, an installment-plan contract arrangement. And House bill 131 has for its purpose merely the clarification of the mutual obligations and rights of the seller and the buyer on these lease-purchase arrangements.

Now the reason we are seeking this type of legislation is because an evil practice has come into play in the large metropolitan areas of this Commonwealth which reacts to the disadvantage of these people who usually do not have enough money to engage the assistance of counsel. They enter into these contracts. They are not told what portions of the money they are paying is allocated to the principal, what portion is allocated to taxes, water rent, sewer rent, fire insurance. They are not told what kind of title they are going to get to this property. In many instances—and I know this from personal experience—I have represented many persons who have come to me and said, Mr. Fineman, I entered into a lease-purchase arrangement. I have been paying for two years under this lease-purchase arrangement and I still do not know how much money I have to pay yet before I can get title to the property.

I have had situations where people have come in and said, I lived in a property for two years, I have made my payments diligently for two years, and now I received a notice that because I have fallen into default in that I did not make some supposed repairs to the house that I was to make, I am now going to be evicted and all the money that I have paid in is going to be forfeited. What are my remedies?

Well, surely, Mr. Speaker, this is the type of person who needs some kind of assistance, some kind of legislation. Now I would like the members of the House to know that what we are doing for these people we are not doing as a corresponding sacrifice of any rights of the seller. As a matter of fact, House bill 131 in its present form was drafted with the cooperation of those attorneys who represent the realtors in the City of Philadelphia. All of the safeguards that the realtor and the seller could ask for are embodied in this bill.

This bill merely sets forth what the seller in good conscience and justice should do now. It imposes no burden other than it does at the present time. This is a bill that I can commend to every member of the House, a bill that should receive the faithful attention of every member of the House. It is meritable legislation. I ask for an affirmative vote on this bill, Mr. Speaker.

On the question, recurring,

The twenty year old beauty will represent the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania at the Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City in September.

The new Miss Pennsylvania, a 1958 graduate of Upper Merion High School, and now a Ursinus College coed in the junior class, displayed her talents for the judges by doing charcoal sketches and a pantomime dance. For her victory in the State beauty contest at West Chester, Pennsylvania, Miss Maloney was presented a four-year Governor's scholarship to one of three Pennsylvania universities; therefore be it

SENATE BILL FOR CONCURRENCE

The clerk of the Senate being introduced, presented for concurrence bill numbered and entitled as follows:

SENATE BILL No. 620.

An Act amending the act of March 30, 1937 (P. L. 115), entitled "The First Class City Permanent Registration Act," increasing compensation of the chairman and other members of the registration commission.

Referred to the Committee on Cities—Counties First Class.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. For what purpose does the gentleman from Mercer, Mr. Willard, rise?

Mr. WILLARD. Mr. Speaker, I have been trying to get recognized all day but without avail. I would like to submit my statement for insertion in the Legislative Journal.

JOINT STATEMENT OF MESSRS. DOWN AND WILLARD

"Last Saturday night in Sharon, Mayor Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia made some statements which were blistered yesterday in editorials in the Philadelphia Inquirer and the Harrisburg Evening News.

"Mayor Dilworth made the absurd charge that recent exposures of fraud and corruption in Philadelphia were a part of a nation wide conspiracy on the part of the Republican party whose purpose is to undermine the strength of the Democratic party in the big cities.

"If Mayor Dilworth is so sure that alleged corruption in Philadelphia's Democratic-controlled city government is just another 'Republican plot,' why has Mayor Dilworth so bitterly and even hysterically opposed the investigation of such charges by an impartial Grand Jury

"In 1948, Dilworth was literally shouting for the Commonwealth to lead a Grand Jury investigation into charges of Republican malfeasance in Philadelphia, because, as he then claimed the Republican party could not properly investigate itself.

"Up in Sharon last Saturday where Mayor Dilworth made statements described editorially by the Philadelphia Inquirer as 'nonsensical' and 'childish.' We are not taken in by that kind of talk.

"Because Mayor Dilworth did launch forth in Sharon on his fantastic charges, we wish formally to object to his insulting the intelligence of the residents of Sharon and of Mercer County.

"And we wish to read into the legislative record the article in the June 26, 1961 Sharon Herald reporting the Dilworth statements, editorials in the June 27, 1961 Inquirer and the Harrisburg Evening News which clearly state that the Mayor is fooling no one but himself.

SCANDAL GOP'S 'PATTERN,' SAYS DILWORTH

June 26, 1961.

The current scandal in Philadelphia's city administration was created as part of a "pattern of behavior" by Republicans attempting to wrest control of the big-city vote from the Democrats throughout the nation.

That was the contention of Philadelphia Mayor Richardson Dilworth at a press conference in Sharon after he had addressed the third annual banquet of the Mercer County Young Democrats Saturday night.

Dilworth, whose own chances for the 1962 gubernatorial nomination may have been dented by the big payola scandal, declared it his duty "to inform and defend the people of Philadelphia."

He said the Republicans' charges of graft, bribery and influence peddling, which are currently being aired at a hotly-contested series of hearings and which eventually may be carried to the state Supreme Court, would "have to be proven" before they could be accepted.

He declared that the Republicans, in an attempt to revive the party in large Democratic strongholds such as Philadelphia, New York City, Boston and Chicago, are relying upon Republican newspapers to play up the incidents to the discredit of the Democratic Party.

The scandal to which Dilworth referred broke in Philadelphia last month. As a result two city employees, one former city employee and a local contractor have been ordered held for the grand jury.

The charges against the four stem from alleged rigged bills and contracts. One official is on record as saying the city stands to lose possibly millions of dollars.

The mayor, queried about his own political future, stated he has "no specific plans" and his job at present is "to be a good mayor."

He pointed to the accomplishments of his administration, particularly in the areas of redevelopment, and the rapid rate of progress of Philadelphia in past years.

Earlier, as he addressed the 300 Young Democrats attending the banquet in the IUE Hall, Shenango Valley Freeway, Dilworth called for the creation of new jobs to offset the nation's unemployment; strong leadership, and a rebirth of spiritual strength in fighting the battles of the cold war and outer space.

He declared that the coming generation will be the "finest in our history," but will be dependent upon the need for "greatness" in America today, and upon strong leadership.

Mayor Dilworth, who was accompanied by his wife, arrived at the banquet at 7:10 p. m., 40 minutes late for the 6:30 scheduled event. Mrs. Grace Sloan, state treasurer, who was also to have been present, sent her regrets that she was unable to attend.

The event attracted guests of party faithful from other counties, including Beaver and Lawrence, in addition to leaders in Mercer County Democratic circles.

County Democratic Chairman Kirby Gould spoke briefly, calling for hard work by Democrats in getting good registration for the November general election.

THE PHILADELPHIA STORY—REFORM TAKES A WRONG TURN

Just about everybody in Philadelphia is calling for a grand jury investigation of the City Hall scandals. Not including the Democrats, of course, who just a decade ago this year ended 67 years of Republican rule with a campaign waged on the issues of graft and corruption.

The Republicans, as you would naturally expect, are saying the same things now about the Democrats that the Democrats said about them. And both of the GOP organizations (there are two, even if it appears there isn't even one when the November elections are held) formally have petitioned for a grand jury investigation.

At the opposite end of the political spectrum, the Americans for Democratic Action want a grand jury investigation, too.

So does the Committee of Seventy which pays tribute to the Dilworth Administration for "its very real accomplishments" in advancing the best interests of Philadelphia but which also points at the great need "that the public confidence be restored in the integrity of city officials, employees and legislators."

So do Philadelphia's newspapers, waging their own investigations and turning up information and charges which somehow escaped the attention of the authorities.

But the Democrats—from the powerful Green organization which circulated petitions against a grand jury investigation to Mayor Dilworth who interrupted a world tour to return and set up his own investigation and house-cleaning—say that they are vigorously and adequately taking care of the scandals themselves, via a Democratic controller who first exposed the wrongdoing and a Democratic district attorney who is prosecuting two city officials, a former municipal employee and a former official of the Philadelphia Transportation Co.

Yet the uproar just won't die down.

In addition to payola involving municipal officials and employees, grave charges have been leveled that there is a system of shakedowns.

And a prominent Democratic member of City Council has allowed that $3,000 given to him by a contractor as a "political contribution" somehow never was reported.

The more things change, the more they are the same? Well, maybe so and maybe not. But it sounds familiar just the same, echoing the outcry in the late '40s and early '50s when two young Democratic reformers, Richardson Dilworth and Joseph S. Clark, were calling for grand jury investigations of the corruption and graft at City Hall and urging Philadelphians to throw the Republican rascals out and put them in.

It just isn't realistic to expect the Republicans to investigate themselves, Mr. Dilworth kept saying then. Just this past weekend he looked back and said that "it is perfectly clear that the Republican Party, which then was in power, was absolutely incapable of cleaning its own house and so demonstrated."

Is it more realistic now to expect the "ins" to go after themselves and clean house just because they're Democrats?

Mayor Dilworth keeps saying, yes, it is. But he doesn't buttress his argument when he keeps proclaiming in speeches from Philadelphia to Sharon that demands for an independent investigation of the Democrats and his administration are all part of a "plot by the Republicans and Republican newspapers."

Mr. Dilworth has demonstrated over the years that he is a man of great talent, appeal and accomplishment. But he also has demonstrated in the past a tendency to go off half-cocked oratorically. He is talking through his hat again with all this political "plot" folderol. Only an independent investigation can clear the air in Pennsylvania's largest city.

Editorials

THE MAYOR IS PRESUMPTUOUS

Having scented a "Republican plot" behind the exposure of fraud and corruption in Philadelphia's city government, Mayor Dilworth has now expanded his nonsensical charge to embrace also the current outbreak of municipal scandals in New York, Boston and Chicago.

Not only does the mess at City Hall stem from a Republican plot to undermine the Democratic Party in this city, according to the Mayor, but GOP strategy calls for a breakdown of Democratic control in the other big cities—"because that is where the last Presidential election was won."

The Republicans, added Dilworth at a press conference in Sharon, Pa., are "unhappy" about the Democratic majorities in the big cities, and they are being abetted by "Republican newspapers," which are employing all possible means to "raise scandals."

At a time of world tension, when most Americans are anxious to support President Kennedy without regard to party affiliation, it is exceedingly presumptuous of Mayor Dilworth to blame the scandalous conditions in Democratic city administrations upon a Republican conspiracy to capture big-city votes in future Presidential and other elections.

The Mayor is displaying questionable loyalty to the National Administration when he seeks to drag the results of the 1960 election into the mess of corruption and wrong-doing that the Democrats have stirred up in Philadelphia, Boston, New York and Chicago.

To blame the misdeeds of Democratic city officials upon the Republicans, or upon the newspapers which publish the facts concerning the Democratic scandals, is not only a distortion of the truth: it is a childish fabrication that can delude no one.

There can be very few persons who will agree with Dilworth that Republican politics is responsible for Democratic crookedness in public office. In the case of the New York school scandals, the Democrats themselves revealed the outrages that were being committed on the public. As for Boston, it was the New York Times, a newspaper friendly to the Kennedy Administration, that published a series of articles that exposed Democratic misrule.

At the outset of the Philadelphia revelations, Mayor Dilworth, Democratic City Chairman Bill Green and other party leaders repeatedly emphasized that it was a Democratic official, Controller Hemphill, who first uncovered the mess the Democrats had made at City Hall. Republican groups accused by the Mayor of conspiring against him entered the case only after Democratic self-investigation was stalled and there were demands for a grand jury probe.

Dilworth was reaching far out when he decided to blame the pay-offs and frauds among his subordinates upon the Republican Party. He has not only over-reached himself, but strained the credulity of any sane person.

The big city Democratic bosses are the ones to blame. Why doesn't Dilworth come out and say so? Why doesn't he speak of the obligation of the bosses to the President and the shirking of their responsibilities? If his only defense for the crookedness uncovered in his administration is the whining complaint that the Republican Party is conspiring against him, then his is indeed a sad plight.

BIRTHDAY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would like at this time to make a very short statement.

Tomorrow happens to be the birthday of a very important cog in the legislative wheel of this House of Representatives. The present occupant of the Chair, in conjunction with the Speaker of the House, are together sponsoring a resolution concerning this birthday. I am sure that if I send it to the desk and ask for its approval, the gentleman in question would rule that it was not a privileged resolution. So I am offering the resolution at this time on behalf of Mr. Andrews and myself and am requesting unanimous consent of the House for its immediate consideration.

RESOLUTION

CONGRATULATIONS

Messrs. HELM and ANDREWS asked and obtained unanimous consent to offer a resolution and for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read by the clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, June 29, 1961.

Tomorrow is the birthday of our beloved parliamentarian, S. Edward Moore.

Eddie, as he is affectionately known, has been associated with this House for more than half a century. His knowledge of parliamentary procedure is probably greater than that of any other man. This may seem to be an extravagant statement, but to those who know his work it is exceedingly modest.

It was he who devised and developed our history of bills and resolutions, a publication so important to us, that few can imagine an orderly legislative process without it. His assistance has been invaluable to every Speaker who has served during his tenure. The individual members have found him a limitless source of understanding, guidance, and sage advice.

He has earned and enjoyed the respect, admiration and personal esteem of every member of this House; therefore be it

Resolved, That we congratulate S. Edward Moore on this anniversary of his birthday and express the fervent hope that he spends many, many more birthdays with us; and be it further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be delivered to S. Edward Moore.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I think it is very wonderful of the Speaker and yourself to offer this resolution this morning. I could not help but think as it was read and as I looked around at the walls of this House, at the beautiful paintings, Washington at Valley Forge, and so forth, you cannot but think of the great men who have departed from the scene in Pennsylvania, who have made a lasting contribution to this State. I feel that Eddie Moore has done the same thing and stands right along with the rest of those great men through the job he has done in this legislature in establishing the first State budget and in setting the moral tone here in this General Assembly that has made this General Assembly the great institution it is in Pennsylvania today.

I know we all honor and love him. It reminds me of the song, "When I grow too old to dream, I'll have you to remember, and you will always live in my heart." I think that bespeaks the feeling of every member of this House, that Eddie Moore is a wonderful person and a man of whom we can be very, very proud.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was unanimously adopted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would request the Speaker of the House to sign the original of the formal copy of the resolution and present it to the parliamentarian.

Mr. ANDREWS. Ladies and gentlemen of the House, it was in 1933 that it was my privilege, on an occasion or two, to preside during the deliberations of this House. That was when Turner was Speaker, and Eddie Moore was there. He was there with visions of greater and better things for this House, decorum, better facilities for the members. He had the dreams of the processes that would facilitate our working in this House and in all of the committees, all of the committees that have worked here and have established this House as one of the premier legislatures of the United States, from the standpoint of decorum and procedure. He has been a member of that committee.

Incidentally, it was in 1939, during the time of one of the really great Speakers of this House, Elwood Turner, that on one occasion when there was an appeal from his decision, the record shows that Turner asked the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Andrews, to preside during the deliberations regarding the appeal from the Chair, and Moore was there.

The record shows that I said some very wise things at that time and I am surprised as I read them. I think Eddie must have whispered them in my ear.

He was here when I came, but he has been here ever since 1933.

Edward, it is a pleasure for me to present to you this resolution which only faintly expresses what we would like to express.

The SPEAKER (Hiram G. Andrews) IN THE CHAIR

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the parliamentarian, and he is privileged to speak from this microphone if he will consent to do so.

I think we should sing happy birthday first. The Chair recognizes Mr. Dengler.

Mr. DENGLER. Mr. Speaker, I think we should all rise while we sing, "Happy Birthday, Dear Eddie." Sing it lustily so he knows we really mean it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the parliamentarian. Edward, this is a better microphone than that one and I sincerely insist and invite you to say whatever you have to say from this rostrum over this microphone.

THE PARLIAMENTARIAN (S. Edward Moore). Mr. Speaker, I am speechless. There are no words adequate to express my sincere appreciation for your thoughtfulness and kindness in remembering me on my birthday. I also thank you for the privilege of having celebrated so many, many birthdays in this wonderful House, in fact, almost all of them. I am sure you will agree with me that the time has now come that I celebrate no more birthdays. Thank you very much.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1555, entitled:

An Act amending "The First Class City Permanent Registration Act" approved March 30, 1937 (P. L. 115), further regulating the days hours and places of registration.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate one of the sponsors of the bill, Mr. Gallagher, of Bucks County.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Bucks County, Mr. Gallagher, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, I would be glad to be interrogated today but, however, I will yield to the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Bucks yields to the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky. The interrogation will proceed.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that this bill would give the right to the registration commission in Philadelphia County to send registrars in to the adjoining counties of Bucks, Montgomery and Delaware for the purpose of registering, I guess, members of both parties, independents and non-partisan, who reside in the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, that is correct. May I elaborate further and say to the gentleman that we have a companion bill on page 28.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I am only interrogating the gentleman with regard to House bill 1555, the only bill before this House at this moment.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, that is true. This is the only bill before the House. However, when we consider election matters and in the event that we move in the area wherein it covers the entire Commonwealth, I thought to save the time of the House, the next bill will be running then, I would answer the gentleman's question in reference to the package that is moving at this time, on the election laws. Would that be satisfactory to the gentleman from Bucks?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. No, it would not, Mr. Speaker. I would like to interrogate the gentleman only in regard to this bill.

Mr. PETROSKY. Fine. What is the question then?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, as I understand this bill, it would permit the registration commission in the city of Philadelphia to send registrars into the adjoining counties of Bucks, Montgomery, and Delaware for the purpose of registering electors, residents of the city of Philadelphia, in those three counties. Is that correct?

Mr. PETROSKY. That is correct, the adjoining counties.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, does this mean it would be entirely up to the registration commission in the city of Philadelphia to determine when and where these registration places would be established?

Mr. PETROSKY. That is correct, Mr. Speaker. May I cite the reason for a bill of this nature? We hope that, a little later in the day, we can talk upon this matter which reflects upon the other counties in the State.

Certainly I recognize that we are all interested in registering all the people we possibly can in a most efficient means. This is one more method of gaining additional registrations, providing the accommodations for registering people. Let us assume that there is a particular fair being held in one of the adjoining counties to Philadelphia. We know there will possibly be thousands upon thousands of Philadelphians going to this fair. This would permit the Philadelphia registration commission to set up a booth at this fair, and they would have, of course, according to law, a Democrat and a Republican registrar and the accommodation would be given to those thousands of people. Out of them, the voters who are not registered can stop at the booth at the fair and register. This is one of the areas in which it could be done.

Among other things that could be done, I submit to you, you could have set up registration places in the tremendous shopping areas right outside of the city of Philadelphia and accommodate thousands of Philadelphians while they go shopping there, an additional accommodation, and it would be most convenient for the people who would want to enroll in either of the parties or independent or non-partisan enrollment. Does that answer the gentleman's question.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Partially. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know in how many different locations in the city of Philadelphia they presently have established traveling registrar locations?

Mr. PETROSKY. I do not have the exact number. However, it is a considerable number.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, would it be in the hundreds?

Mr. PETROSKY. I could not give you the exact number.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Does the gentleman know whether the traveling registrars in Philadelphia sit in shopping centers, department stores?

Mr. PETROSKY. They do, yes.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Does the gentleman know the hours that the traveling registrars sit in the city of Philadelphia?

Mr. PETROSKY. The hours may vary. The act in itself allows the leeway to the registration commission. I would suggest that the more popular hours would be the same as they are in my county, possibly 1 to 9, or 3 to 10, whatever would be most convenient for the people who are concerned with getting on the register to vote.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman satisfied that the traveling registrars work hours which are presently convenient so that people who work during the day, or on the afternoon 4 to 12 shift, or on the 12 midnight to 8 a. m. shift have time to register?

Mr. PETROSKY. I agree heartily with the gentleman but I reiterate what I stated earlier, that we are pledged along with the foundations that are interested in actively having more people enrolled for registration making it as convenient as we possibly can. I would submit to the gentleman that we have found, in many areas of registration such as we are trying to bring about by the passage of this act, that it is most efficient too, where the cost factor is concerned, because we get a greater number of registrations in cities where we have a special event, and so on. This has been illustrated time and again within one great county. However, I do not think we should deny the possibility of, for instance in my area, Westmoreland County, being able to register at an Allegheny County fair, when we have thousands of our people going there, and we do not hold such a fair in our area.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman tell me whether or not it is a fact that the people who would register in these three suburban counties would in fact have to be legal residents of Philadelphia?

Mr. PETROSKY. Oh, yes, they would have to be legal residents of Philadelphia in order to register with the Philadelphia registration commission.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. And legally, Mr. Speaker, this would mean that they at least spend their sleeping hours in the city of Philadelphia, would it not?

Mr. PETROSKY. Agreed.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. So, these people are available in the city of Philadelphia for a sufficient period of time to reach a traveling registrar location, are they not?

Mr. PETROSKY. This is agreed as well.

Mr. A. W. WILLIAMS, Jr. Under the provisions of this proposed act, would it be possible to set up the registration location at, for instance, Sun Ship in Delaware County, in the city of Chester?

Mr. PETROSKY. Yes, it would.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. And at any other large industrial manufacturing plant located in any of these three suburban counties?

Mr. PETROSKY. Yes, it would.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know whether in fact there are at the present time any traveling registrar locations at large industrial sites in any of those three counties?

Mr. PETROSKY. No, not to my knowledge. I do not find anything wrong with this. I think it would be a good thing.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Will the gentleman admit that there have, at certain times, been people who have been fraudulently registered to vote in the State of Pennsylvania?

Mr. PETROSKY. Well now, I would submit to the gentleman that has been true in a degree in possibly every one of the 67 counties. But I submit that this does not provide for any fraudulent registrations. This provides for the same registration as the present act provides, with the exception that it extends the convenience to the people who want to register, as I indicated earlier.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman think that fraud is more likely to occur when a person attempts to register in the community in which he lives and in which he is supposedly known, or when he tries to register in a strange community?

Mr. PETROSKY. No, no, I would not agree to this. I think the gentleman is assuming something here which, I believe, our election laws and our Penal Code adequately take care of. I do believe that with the surveillance we have today on elections that nobody is going to go out there and purposely commit fraud in registration. You know what the penalties are in this area.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Do I understand the gentleman from Westmoreland to say there are penal provisions in the laws of Pennsylvania which would be applied to those people who do register fraudulently?

Mr. PETROSKY. I am not a lawyer. However, as I stated, there are sufficient penalties written in the Election Code for fraudulent registration. Whether they are specified in the Penal Code or not I would have to refer you to one of the able lawyers in the House to answer this question. As to the existing law, I would not know, just being a layman.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I do have a question which I think the gentleman can answer regardless of whether or not he is a lawyer. Is the gentleman from Westmoreland familiar with the fact that there are 67 different counties in Pennsylvania with 67 different district attorneys?

Mr. PETROSKY. Yes, that is true.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Would the gentleman tell me if an individual, allegedly a resident of Philadelphia, should register in the County of Bucks in a fraudulent manner, would this be a crime for which he would be indicted and prosecuted by a grand jury and a district attorney of the County of Bucks or the County of Philadelphia?

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is assuming that the act is set up to register people fraudulently. I maintain that no person would register fraudulently. This may be true in your area; however, I know it is not true in my area.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman willing to state on the floor of this House that nobody in Pennsylvania is registered fraudulently?

Mr. PETROSKY. To my knowledge, yes, I will state it that way.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. And that no one ever would?

Mr. PETROSKY. And I would state that I do not believe any of our citizens of the Commonwealth would so do.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. And, therefore, we need no laws to provide criminal penalties for fraudulent registration.

Mr. PETROSKY. I did not say that.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Would, then, the gentleman say that we do need laws that would punish fraudulent registration, is that correct?

Mr. PETROSKY. I would be willing to support such a bill if the gentleman would present it to the House here.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. And my question is, does House bill 1555 make such a provision, and does it tell us in which county this crime would occur?

Mr. PETROSKY. There is no question that the crime, in the event that it did occur, would occur in the county in which the registrars were sitting.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. And these registrars would be residents of Philadelphia, would they not?

Mr. PETROSKY. That is right.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Appointed by the Philadelphia registration commission?

Mr. PETROSKY. Again, the gentleman is assuming that the registrar is going to accept a fraudulent registration. I say that the bill does not indicate anything on this matter. I submit that the bill is set up mostly for the convenience of people working out of the city or who do their shopping outside of the city, and it would give them a convenient place to register so they could cast their ballots at the election.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

I would like to make a brief statement in regard to the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, the citizens of any party residing in the suburban or bedroom counties surrounding Philadelphia have for years feared the encroachment of the big city. Now this fear may be justified or not, but I thank the majority party, if they pass this bill, for giving the members of my party in these three counties their greatest campaign weapon I have seen in years. This is one more step by the Philadelphia city administration to increase their control and power in these suburban counties.

I think you are making a mistake if you pass this legislation.

Now I tried to point up the possible difficulties which would occur when Philadelphians, appointed by the registration commissions, come into these suburban counties to register people who are residents, supposedly, of Philadelphia. Those records will be kept in Philadelphia and yet the gentleman from Westmoreland states if the crime of fraudulent registration did occur, it would be a matter for prosecution by the authorities of Bucks County which would have limited access to those records.

This is a step in the wrong direction. I would support any legislation which would encourage and make more convenient the registering of the citizens of Philadelphia or in any other county in this State. I think we can open the registration offices for more hours, for more days, in more locations, but I think people should register to vote in the communities in which they live.

I think we should defeat this bill. Thank you.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from York, Mr. Gross.

Mr. GROSS. I would like to interrogate Mr. Petrosky, please.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland permit himself to again be interrogated?

Mr. PETROSKY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman to say there is always a Republican and a Democrat at the registrar's office to register prospective voters?

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I cannot hear the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman asked whether always a Republican and a Democrat is present when they are registering voters.

Mr. PETROSKY. Yes, I understand the question which the Speaker has repeated.

Mr. Speaker, yes. I can speak for my county. At every sitting of the registration commission we have a Democrat and a Republican and both have sitting registrars, Democrat and Republican, who select their own clerks when needed. Now in special instances, any one of our county commissioners, which serve as the registration commission, can sit individually on a scheduled registration.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I have long maintained that there is no better county in this Commonwealth than York County. Maybe I am wrong. But in York County this is not the case. As I get to these registration offices as I travel around, this is never the case. They are all 100 per cent Democratic, and of course, I don't like it.

One more question, Mr. Speaker. Is it State law that both parties be represented when they register prospective voters?

Mr. PETROSKY. This bill does not change the present law whatsoever. In my county we feel that we are doing a good job in a bipartisan effort, and I would advise the gentleman that our registration figures show that better than two to one are registered Democratic. This is the way we do it. We believe in being fair.

Mr. GROSS. I appreciate the gentleman's statement, but I understood him to say there is always a Republican and a Democrat present to register prospective voters. I ask him this question: Is that State law today?

Mr. PETROSKY. The State law today provides that the county commissioners, who are the registration commission, in 65 counties—the other two have registration commissions set up otherwise—that it is the prerogative of the county commissioners to set up the registration schedule of traveling registrars, or local registrars. In the event that you have such a condition, I would suggest to the gentleman that you work that out either locally or present a bill, and I would be happy to support your position.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, one more question. In your opinion, how many counties outside of your county, if any, have both parties represented on the registration board. Does the gentleman know?

Mr. PETROSKY. I have had no experience with other counties, but I would suggest to the other counties, especially the Democratic ones, that they use the same system as we do because it has done a terrific job for us in registration. We have gained continually in the last 30 years that I have been in the political arena, so to speak, and we have used this system. I would suggest that the other parties use it if they are not so doing.

Mr. GROSS. That is all. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I would be happy to check on the gentleman's motions, especially in York County. In York County this is not practiced; it is not followed; it is strictly a one-party setup. Why, I cannot tell you.

But the gentleman in his earlier remarks, made the remark that registration booths are manned by both Republicans and Democrats. I say it is not true over the State of Pennsylvania.

Thank you.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GALLAGHER. I wonder if the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams, would show me where in this bill it gives Philadelphia any powers over the suburban counties.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I do not believe that I at any time stated that this bill actually gave Philadelphia any power over the suburban counties. It gives Philadelphia the right to come into the suburban counties and do things which allegedly are for Philadelphia. It gives Philadelphia rights which Philadelphia does not presently have in Bucks County, in Montgomery County, and in Delaware County. These are new rights that this bill would give to them.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Will the gentleman show me in the bill wherein it provides any encroachment upon the rights and welfare of the citizens of Bucks, Montgomery, Delaware, or Chester Counties?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I think I have only to refer to last November's elections to show the gentleman that.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Would the gentleman repeat that? I did not hear him.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I think anything that we people in the suburban counties do to make it possible for Philadelphia to do an even better job, or worse, depending on how you look at it, would be to the detriment of the suburban counties, in fact, all the other counties in Pennsylvania.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Do I take it then, Mr. Speaker, that it is your opinion that if the people of Philadelphia continue to vote Democratic that is to the detriment of the people in suburban counties?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Well, of course, it would, but, Mr. Speaker, all I am trying to point out is that I think this is a basic home rule situation here, that people should register in the neighborhood and in the community in which they live. That is where the chances of detecting fraud are best. That is where, traditionally under our system of government, they were supposed to register, and I think this is a good system. It has worked and I think it should continue.

I am all in favor of making it more convenient for Philadelphians to register, because I hope that some of them will be Republicans, but I think you can do this within the city limits. We in Bucks will continue to register our people in our county.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has intimated that this type of registration would bring about fraudulent registration, I assume from his remarks, because the registrars would be sitting in an area not adjacent immediately to the area in which the person resides. Will the gentleman tell me, in Bucks County do we not have traveling registrars where the registrars themselves are not basically domiciled in the area in which they sit to receive registrations, and that they themselves do not personally know that a party who comes and offers himself, represents himself, as being a resident of that area is actually a resident of that area?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I would like to answer the gentleman.

First I want to clear up a misunderstanding in his statement. I did not say that this bill would cause fraud. I said that under this bill fraud could more easily occur and I think that is a truism.

The gentleman is correct that the traveling registrars in Bucks County or in any other county do travel throughout the County; obviously, they do not know everyone in the county. I say that fraud in voters registering is more likely to be detected if the person is forced to register in the community in which he or she lives and resides.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Will the gentleman show me how it is more likely to be detected under those circumstances?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I cannot tell the gentleman

how. I just know that it is a truism that when you are known in your community there is a better chance of people finding out things that are going on that are not right. I cannot say that the present system is perfect. I have not said that at any time in debate. I do say that this would make the present system worse.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Will the gentleman agree with me that the traveling registrars in any area are not expected nor can they know every person who comes before them whether or not they live in a certain area?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. The answer is simple. The traveling registrar sits in various places in the shopping center in Levittown. Now the traveling registrars may come from the northern section of Bucks County and have never met anyone who lives in Levittown. But the people who are there on registration day, if a good job is done by both major parties, are the local Democratic committeeman and the local Democratic committeewoman, the Democratic Party workers. Also there are the Republican committeeman, the Republican committeewoman, and I hope many Republican workers. It is these people in that community who are most likely to be able to detect the fraudulent registration and to object to it at the time it occurs. But if a person walks in who lives in South Philadelphia and says, "I want to register," there will be no one there to prevent that person from registering if in fact he does not live in Philadelphia.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Will the gentleman agree that the bill itself, as it is written, does not in any way jeopardize or encroach upon the rights and privileges, the welfare of the people of the suburban counties?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I will not, Mr. Speaker. I think that it does.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Will the gentleman show me where it encroaches upon or jeopardizes their rights?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I have done as well as I can. If the gentleman is not satisfied with my position, so be it, but my position remains as it has been.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman's position is very ambiguous if based on the assumption that this is some favor or effort to take over the counties surrounding Philadelphia. I think perhaps he protests too wildly.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, if I may reverse the interrogation with the gentleman from Bucks' permission, I would like to ask him one question.

Mr. GALLAGHER. I would be delighted to oblige.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Will the gentleman, who, I understand, is co-sponsor of this bill, explain to me how this bill helps Bucks County?

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, this is a package, and I must digress and speak about a companion bill that is coming along that will give us the same rights as this bill gives to Philadelphia.

I feel, personally, that this bill will benefit Bucks because it will give more people the opportunity to register and vote which always makes for good government in our Commonwealth. Apparently the gentleman is afraid of this because he is trying to put a deterrent in the way of possible voters in registering. I can see no problem and no harm if the traveling registrars sit up in, say, the Fairless works in the township to register the people who work there who live in Philadelphia. I see nothing wrong with extending every opportunity to the citizens of the Commonwealth to give them a chance to register and exercise their franchise. This dream or illusion that this is some scheme on the part of the city of Philadelphia to encroach upon the rights and welfare of the citizens of suburban counties is just what you said it was—a campaign speech. It is not fact. It is not the language of the bill; it is not the intent of the bill.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I understand the gentleman agrees with me that this is a campaign issue and I am satisfied with my side of this issue.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, this may be a campaign issue, or the gentleman may try to make it a campaign issue, but this comes back and might turn out to be a great tool to register more Democrats, I am certain. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I thank the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Fetterolf, desire to be recognized?

Mr. FETTEROLF. Mr. Speaker, I do. I would like to make a very brief statement.

This bill which we are now considering amounts to a deadly potion being offered the suburbs by the generous city of Brotherly Love. Later, when we consider another registration bill on this calendar, we will be offered the sugar.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, with the indulgence of the House and in the area of trying to save time, I would like to speak very briefly on this bill and the companion bill inasmuch as they do the same thing.

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection, the gentleman will be permitted to discuss the package of which this bill is presumably a part. The Chair hears no objection. The gentleman from Westmoreland will proceed.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, having worked together with several members of the Election Committee of this House, I believe that I was possibly, not primarily responsible, but responsible in parts for the suggestions of the contents that are contained in House bills Nos. 1555 and 1797, which, in effect, would permit registration commissions of an adjoining county to have registrars. It would be two or more registrars, and I want to single that wording out because this would, in essence, permit the sitting of a registrar that would be a Democrat and a registrar that would be a Republican, in an adjoining county, when such a sitting in an adjoining county would inure to the great convenience of a large number of citizens that could become registered to cast their ballots at the next and succeeding elections. I believe that this is a good idea. It is in line with all of our thinking, Republicans and Democrats alike, in an endeavor to most efficiently place upon the election registers the greatest possible number of electors which we all agree makes for better government and for no other purpose than just that.

This bill was not conceived with any thoughts of encroachment upon any adjoining counties, and by none of its wording can anyone infer that. I believe it is a step in the right direction; it is good government; it is in line with the thinking of both parties, and I would be hopeful, and I submit to this House, that you would think as I do on this matter and give it your favorable consideration.

Mr. Speaker, I ask both sides of this House to vote favorably upon the measure before us. Thank you.

Th SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. A. M. Lee.

Mr. A. M. LEE. Mr. Speaker, just briefly in connection with this bill, I would like to point out some things that may perhaps clarify some of the discussions we have had in connection with it.

In my legislative district, in the city of Philadelphia, which happens to be one of the fifty-nine wards, we in the course of a year have the traveling registrars in our ward for a total of somewhere between six and eight days, each and every year between the hours of 1 o'clock and 9 o'clock in the evening. On each one of those days, there are registrars at any place from four to eight different locations. In addition to that, in our general area, there is a permanent location which is located in town hall in Germantown, where, for a period of several months, anyone can go during appointed hours and register.

I would also like to point out that the registration commission in the city of Philadelphia provides for watchers in connection with registration. When I have registration in my community, I get a watcher's certificate signed by the registration commission and it points up the objections raised by the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. A. D. Williams, that if we are going to have this registration in the surrounding counties and surrounding areas, those watchers would have to travel a long distance to be there and they would have no assurance that the people who would be coming in to register would be the residents of their particular area. The point I am making is, that if we limit this registration to the local home community, it offers the best opportunity for preventing fraud.

Now I would like to point out one other thing about this bill. If we are going to have these locations in surrounding areas, the most important thing is the additional cost, as far as the registration commission is concerned in the city of Philadelphia. Within the city registration is very generally carried out by having the registrars in the local public schools, which entail no cost of any kind to the registration commission, because the school district makes these facilities available to them without cost. If we go out in the surrounding areas there is a possibility that payments may have to be made for a building or other suitable locations for these registrations.

Now it seems to me that it is very simple if we are going to have these additional locations in the surrounding counties, it is going to cost the registration commission and the taxpayers of the City of Philadelphia more money. If the registration commission tries to handle this within the limits of their present appropriation, it means that, in my area and every other area in the city of Philadelphia, they will have to cut down on the days and the locations in order to make this possible. I think the registration commission of the city of Philadelphia has gone to great lengths to try to make it convenient for everyone who wants to, to qualify to vote. As far as I am concerned, for the reasons I stated, I think this bill is wholly and absolutely unnecessary as far as the people of the city of Philadelphia are concerned, and I hope the members will vote it down.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dougherty.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, just to clear up one little thing that Mr. Lee said in regard to the chances of fraud. You can register in any part of Philadelphia. Mr. Lee's district is at the extreme lower end of Philadelphia and I am at the other end, and you can register in Mr. Lee's district and live in my district. Travelling registrars travel to the borders of these surrounding counties and it is not going to be much more of an expense for the one extra mile. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Holliday.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate Mr. Petrosky.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland permit himself once again to be interrogated?

Mr. PETROSKY. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, I believe the gentleman from Westmoreland said that it would be possible under the law for Philadelphia registrars to go into an industrial concern like Sun Shipbuilding, Chester, and register. Is that correct?

Mr. PETROSKY. This is correct. If they can procure the space in the building to set up for the registering of voters which would be a convenience for the people who work there.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, that industry is in the same county that Philadelphia is. Now, would the Philadelphia registrars have to get the approval of the commissioner of, say, Montgomery County or Chester County before they can come into their county to register?

Mr. PETROSKY. Not under this act, because we would not be registering the people of that county. We would be registering the people of their own county.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Well then, let us take the fair grounds. Supposing there is a fair in Montgomery County and Philadelphia decides to put registrars in that fair grounds for that day. Now supposing Bucks County, Chester County, Delaware County, and all the rest of the surrounding counties decide to put registrars in there the same day?

Mr. PETROSKY. There would be nothing wrong with that.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. I think you would have a fine mess. Everyone would be mixed up. You would have people registering from all sorts of counties.

Mr. PETROSKY. I believe that that is very far fetched because certainly a resident of Chester County would not register in Delaware County and a resident of Philadelphia would not register in Bucks County because then he could not cast his ballot.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, your registrar is from Philadelphia, say, in this industrial plant and they register both Republicans and Democrats, how do they know as to where the people live that they are trying to register? What precinct?

Mr. PETROSKY. They would use the same manner of registering the people that they do now. Mr. Dougherty pointed it out and the same prevails in my county. In the event that a resident of the second legislative district in the extreme northern tip of Westmoreland County would happen to be in the extreme southern tip which is the third legislative district and which is fifty-two miles away, all he has to do is go in, talk to the registrar, tell him where he lives, what precinct he is in, what city, borough or township he is in and he would so become registered. The same thing would prevail in a fair grounds situation. A booth would be set up as a Philadelphia registration booth. Now, if there would be one, as you say, involving a number of booths that will be registering voters and there will be a lot of confusion, each respective county would have its own booth and it would be marked. It is only natural, as it is within your own county today, that the person registering must indicate to the registrar his residence address, and the same would prevail if this bill became law.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. You would be registering them inside the plant, would you?

Mr. PETROSKY. Yes, you could if you could get the space to have the registrars. I see nothing wrong with it because it is a tremendous convenience for those people and we would get more people enrolled on our election registers to vote in the following election.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, we register people in our county and we register them at shopping centers, department stores, and so forth, but, if a person comes in and says that they are from another county, we do not attempt to register them. They have to be residents of Blair County before they are registered and the same thing holds true with any other section of the State. I do not believe that any registrar should come into any other county and try to register people even though those people are from that particular county.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, may I answer the gentleman and say that this bill does not allow anyone from Philadelphia to register somebody for Bucks County. This is not so. The registrar out of Blair County, under this bill, if he were sitting in the adjoining county of Cambria, say, he could not register anyone from Cambria County. He would only be able to register Blair County residents. We are a bit confused here.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. I cannot see any necessity for a registrar from one county coming into another county to register the people. Those people should be registered, should be made to register, in their own section where they are known and where the people know that they live in that particular section. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the lady from Philadelphia, Mrs. Pashley.

Mrs. PASHLEY. Mr. Speaker, I live in a section of Philadelphia, in fact, it is my own division, where it would be more convenient for the people in my division to register in Montgomery County because I live less than one block out of Montgomery County. It would be to their advantage to have something like this when they are shopping at the Penn Fruit or in the Huntington Valley to be able to register there than it would be in the city of Philadelphia.

The SPEAKER. The Chair was about to recognize the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Sherman, who had been asking for recognition for some time.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. SHERMAN. I shall yield temporarily to Mr. Tompkins.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Sherman, yields to the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I yield to the gentleman from Mercer, Mr. Down, who seems to have a question on his mind.

The SPEAKER. Mr. Sherman has the floor.

Mr. SHERMAN. I will yield temporarily to Mr. Down. Mr. DOWN. Thank you.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to ask a question. Could I interrogate Mr. Petrosky?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. PETROSKY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DOWN. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman to say that you could set up a registration place within a plant, for instance, under this bill?

Mr. PETROSKY. That is correct.

Mr. DOWN. In other words, I, not being a worker in that plant, could not register there?

Mr. PETROSKY. How is that, sir?

Mr. DOWN. Well, a plant usually has a fence around it and armed guards, and so forth, and I, as an individual citizen and not a worker in that plant, could not register there, is that right?

Mr. PETROSKY. This is correct although there would be other registration booths that could be placed that would be convenient to a person who did not work at the plant.

Mr. DOWN. Well, suppose I was in the district at that time and it might be convenient, could I get in there to register?

Mr. PETROSKY. No, you could not.

Mr. DOWN. That is the objection that I have to this bill. We went through this in Mercer County. The Democratic commissioners in Mercer County set up registration in a plant in Mercer County, and I was a party to an injunction to stop it, and the judge ruled that they could not register inside the plant because it was not open to the public.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, may I answer that in this way, that this arrangement could be made by mutual consent of the registration commission and the plant management, and certainly I am of the opinion that a plant management, feeling as we do about wanting everybody to be accommodated and to be given every possible opportunity to register, I believe that they would so agree, and the registration booth could be placed in such a location that a person from the outside coming in would not interfere with the operations of the industrial plant.

Mr. DOWN. The reason that I protest this bill is, you said that this could be done, but in Mercer County they set up a registration booth in the Westinghouse plant. I called the Westinghouse officials and said that I had a couple of people that I wanted to register, and could I register them. They refused to let me in the plant. That was the reason for the injunction.

I oppose the bill and hope that everyone in the House votes against it.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Sherman, still has the floor unless he again yields.

Mr. SHERMAN. I yield to Mr. Tompkins temporarily.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland once again permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. PETROSKY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, on page 3 of the bill, it says, beginning on line 2:

... provide one or more places of registration in each or any county city borough or township which is immediately adjacent to the city of the first class . . .

Now, my question is this: It is my understanding that the Garden City race track is located in a city adjoining Philadelphia, in the State of New Jersey. Could the registrars go over to the Garden City race track and register Philadelphia registrants?

Mr. PETROSKY. They could not.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Could they go the factories in Camden, such as Campbell's Soup and RCA, and conduct registration?

Mr. PETROSKY. They could not.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I thank the gentleman.

The bill reads differently, however; it does not limit it to Pennsylvania.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Sherman.

Mr. SHERMAN. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

I do wish the members of the House would have a little more brotherly love and consider it as such.

We often hear arguments about passing state lines, city lines; eventually, we will not even be in a position to pass our own house if this keeps up.

I am not as familiar with conditions and with the registration commissions, for registration outside of Philadelphia as I am in Philadelphia, but I sincerely state, and those who are familiar with it know, that the registration commission in Philadelphia consists of both Republicans and Democrats, that the registrars who are sent out are both Republicans and Democrats. We also have a situation, not only in Philadelphia and in Bucks, Delaware and Chester Counties, but other counties, that when the newspapers advertise in Philadelphia, they advertise a store, whether it is in Delaware County or Montgomery County or Bucks County, and I am sure that conditions are the same as far as the other counties are concerned. We should not have these regional breakdowns, as such.

Also in Philadelphia, to prevent any possible fraud, the registration commission, after a party has identified his signature and the card comes back, and his signature is noted on the books, a special card is sent out by the registration commission, which card cannot be sent to any other address than the address given, to verify the particular party to see whether he resides at the particular address he has given in the city of Philadelphia.

Now with all these restrictions and others that go on at the present time in an effort to eliminate any possible fraud, and also at the same time declare that a party may pass his own house, pass his own street, pass his own ward and go into another county, if necessary, and bring a little brotherly love in there, I can see no reason for opposition to a bill of this kind.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE WITHDRAWN

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Heffner.

Mr. HEFFNER. Mr. Speaker, before the roll call vote is taken the leave of absence which was requested for me earlier this morning may now be cancelled.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 1596, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 30, 1917 (P. L. 21), entitled "An act defining optometry and relating to the right to practice optometry in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and making certain exceptions * * *" conferring additional power on the State Board of Optometrical Examiners prescribing additional grounds for refusing cancelling revoking or suspending licenses further regulating and providing for the licensing of offices and branch offices of optometrists the renewal of licenses biennially and license fees to be charged therefor and their utilization.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. PETROSKY asked unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The amendments will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Title, page 2, third, fourth and fifth lines of Title, by striking out "prescribing addi—" in third line, all of fourth line, and "licenses" in fifth line of Title.

Amend Sec. 3 (Sec. 9), page 6, lines 4 and 5 by striking out "or ophthalmic materials"

Amend Sec. 3 (Sec. 9), page 6, lines 6 to 10 by striking out "[.]; (11) violation of any of the provisions of" in line 6, all of lines 7 to 9 and "citizens to become prey to professional exploitation," in line 10.

Amend Sec. 4, page 7, lines 16 to 19; page 8, lines 1 and 2 by striking out all of said lines.

Amend Sec. 5, page 8, line 3 by striking out "5" and inserting: 4

Amend Sec. 6, page 8, line 17 by striking out "6" and inserting: 5

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, very briefly, the bill before us at the present time is House bill No. 1596, which amends the act of 1917 defining optometry and the act which provides in section 9, on page 5 of the bill, the specifically outlined categories in which the optometry board may refuse to grant a certificate of licensure to any applicant, as well as act upon cancellation, revocation or suspension of licenses.

Under the act there are ten provisions which in the wisdom of the legislative body were written in to provide the type of optometrical service to our people which would adequately safeguard their health and welfare. But the proposal before us goes further and in its amendatory language adds as number 11, violation of any rule or regulation promulgated under the authority of the board.

It further adds number 12 and states, "unprofessional conduct detrimental or dangerous to the public health, safety morals and welfare or of any form of pretense which might induce citizens to become prey to professional exploitation."

I submit that my amendments take out proviso numbers 11 and 12, which I have just read for this reason, that we adequately have in the act the necessary limitations to provide for the safety, the health, morals and welfare, such as contained on page 5 of article 1, section 9, concerning (1) the peddling from house to house or person to person, (2) the establishment of temporary offices contrary to the provisions of this act, (3) the use of misleading advertising, (4) gross incompetency, (5) the obtaining of money by fraud, (6) misrepresentation of the optometrical profession in which untruthful statements are made, (7) the failure to deliver the certificates provided for in section six of the act, (8) the conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude, (9) habitual intemperance, and so on, and (10) the advertising of prices for professional services or glasses.

I submit that these are sufficient safeguards. Now we are being asked to delegate our legislative authority to allow the denial, the suspension or the revocation of a license because of any rule or regulation that might be placed by the board however outlandish that rule may be or however infinitesimal it might be. I do not believe this House wants to give up this prerogative in this area.

I submit to you further, Mr. Speaker, that the amendments go further. We find on page 7, under the main head of section 4, subsection 9.1; "The board shall have the power subject to the provisions of this act to promulgate such reasonable rules and regulations governing and promoting the professional practice of optometry as it deems necessary."

My amendments strike out in entirety section 9.1.

Why do I do this, Mr. Speaker? I submit that many of our people, basing this primarily on economics, or basing it upon the fact of what our people want to do, who want to go to an optometrist, go to an optometrist. The person who wants to go to an ophthalmologist, goes to the ophthalmologist.

Why should we, in effect, Mr. Speaker, provide the possibility of a rule or regulation by the board that would deny a person from going to a department store to a registered optometrist and having his refraction or examination, whichever you would call it, which is a simple matter to perform, why should we allow the possibility of such a rule being passed to deny this? We have so many of our people who want to walk into a store, have their examination, be given proper service and procure their glasses, or whatever service they need. We too have many people who will walk into a five-and-dime store, and is it not so that 95 or 99 percent of the examination is by the individual himself for the glasses that are continually put on?

Let us take a newspaper. A person walks into a store, takes a newspaper and selects some glasses and continually looks at the newspaper until they can have the best possible vision with that glass and this is the way those people want to do it. Why then should we deny them the privilege to go and procure this service in this manner because there would be a possibility of some rule or regulation which would deny the practice of optometry in this order or the sale of the ophthalmic materials in one of the stores?

Basically that is economics. I think we have sufficient safeguards written into the act to protect the health and welfare of the people. We know it is professional service and I submit to the House I have not in one instance been accused in this area of services to our people of the Commonwealth. Not one have we got on record. Therefore, I would suggest that I do not believe there is a necessity for delegating the powers of this legislative body for the allowance of rules and regulations that could deny or harass any optometrist who was operating in other than a private office.

Mr. Speaker, this measure has been before this Assembly and measures of a like nature have been before other Assemblies. They have failed to pass because I believe, first, of the basic economics that prevail. Secondly, they failed to pass because I believe that our people would want less interference in the manner in which they would want to procure the services they need rather than a greater interference. Thirdly, I would submit it would be wrong in this field for this legislative body to delegate its authority to a board to promulgate rules and regulations which may harass the great majority of optometrists who are now practicing, for in effect there is approximately only one-third of the optometrists of the State of Pennsylvania who are registered optometrists, who belong to the association that sponsors this legislation. Out of all the 1,700 registered there are less than 600 that belong to the organization.

I would submit to this House that you do not delegate those powers to the board, that you continue to maintain those powers, and any regulation that is to be spelled out, let us spell it out in the act of the assembly and let that be a reason for revocation rather than give the board powers of rules and regulations.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House on both sides, I ask for your favorable consideration of the amendments I offer.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Boies.

Mr. BOIES. Mr. Speaker, this bill is a very simple bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question before the House is the amendment offered by the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky.

Mr. BOIES. It is designed to do two things which these amendments are designed to rip out. If you pass these amendments there is no purpose to the bill, Mr. Speaker.

The bill says that it will give the board the power to enforce their own regulations and it sets up additional standards of professional conduct. These amendments are the most flagrant example of indirect assassination that I have ever seen, because they are designed for the purpose of protecting somebody's profit and designed to kill this bill.

The portion that the gentleman from Westmoreland wants to remove, in part says, 'dangerous to the public health safety morals and welfare or any form of pretense which might induce citizens to become prey to professional exploitation.' Now, I wonder if the gentleman from Westmoreland is in favor of professional exploitation and pretense detrimental to the safety, morals, and welfare of the citizens. That is what he is doing by this amendment. He is ripping that off so that the amendment gives the board power to promulgate and enforce such reasonable rules and regulations governing the practice of optometry as they set up.

I appeal to the House, ladies and gentlemen, this is nothing more nor less than giving the State board of optometry the power and the authority to enforce reasonable rules and regulations. I ask your support.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Stimmel.

Mr. STIMMEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the position of Mr. Boies and oppose the amendments as offered by Mr. Petrosky. The gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky, has read into this bill as it exists, a number of superstitions and apprehensions that I just cannot read into the bill. I cannot for the life of me see how he can presume what reasonable rules and regulations a board might make when they have not that power at this particular time.

I want to call to the attention of the members that it is spelled out very clearly in this bill that the board should have the power to promulgate such reasonable rules and regulations governing their own business.

I would further like to call to your attention the fact that you are dealing with a professional board. All other professional boards in this Commonwealth have the right to promulgate those reasonable rules and regulations so the conduct of their members is above reproach. This bill is in the interest of the eye health of the public of Pennsylvania. These men are high-principled, they want to raise the level of their profession. This bill will do just that, nothing more. These are not good amendments, in my considered opinion, and I hope you will vote against the amendments. Thank you.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, M. Auker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I had not intended to speak on this bill, but the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky, has raised a very vital question here, that is, when it comes to bureaus and departments to be given certain powers and certain things to do under an act. Now, as the question arises, and this affects practically all segments of the people of Pennsylvania, not only in this particular bureau, but in all your professional bureaus, practically all your departments and all your commissions, practically every bill when we give or create a commission, or we give a commission or bureau new powers and set them up, we have this sort of a provision in it. Possibly it is necessary to give them that power so they can promulgate the rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of the act. The question is: How far should we go in giving them those powers to create rules and regulations? We do know that it is an inherent characteristic of the executive department of any government, whether it is local or State or Federal, that they are liable and tend to stretch their rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of the act to the nth degree. Of course, the only recourse then to any of these persons when they seek to exercise those powers and it works a hardship upon any person is, of course, through the courts which they always have and which they have under this act.

If you are going to curb and I repeat, if you are going to curb the power that bureaus and commissions and departments have to promulgate rules and regulations to carry out the powers given them under this act, then you are going to have to start and revise a lot of acts and laws in this Commonwealth if you are going to limit them.

I have read this act very carefully, and I believe the way these bans are spelled out in this act, you have given to every person in this Commonwealth the most reasonable power that you possibly can give them so that no one would be aggrieved under this act. Now if you are going to start to ban, if you are going to start to ban to these bureaus and commissions and departments the power to enact rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of the act under which they operate, then let us start to clean house from top to bottom. That is what you are going to start to do if you pass these amendments. This is only in line with everything else that was done.

It may be a step in the right direction. I have often taken offense, and rightfully so, and so have many other people, with the usurpation of power by bureaus and departments and commissions under which they seek to supplement, beyond reasonable degrees, the powers that have been given to them under the act. Maybe we should start, maybe the legislature should start, to curb such things as usurpation of powers by these bureaus and commissions. But unless you are ready to cope with every bureau and every department and every commission in this Commonwealth, then do not start with this act. If you want to move from here into every bureau, commission and department in this Commonwealth under the executive department of government, then let us start by passing these amendments. But do not stop here. Let us go into every bureau, every commission and every department under this Commonwealth and under the executive department of this State and curb them as they should be curbed, and let the legislature take its rightful place and say what should be done and what should not be done. I repeat, you have a vital issue here: Whether you are going to start with all of them, or whether you are going to try to let them go along and then let the aggrieved person have the right of appeal to court if they are aggrieved by these powers that are given to them under this particular act and other similar acts affecting all bureaus and all commissions.

I think it is a good bill as it stands, and I intend to vote for it. But if you are going to start to rip out, then let us start ripping from top to bottom. Maybe that would be a good thing. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, there is one point I would like to bring out.

We have continuously tried to upgrade all the professions in this Commonwealth. We have tried to give them all powers, rules and regulations to protect their own professions to keep out the misfits and the ones who are unethical. We have done this, not to protect the profession as a profession but to protect the average individual of this Commonwealth who is not well enough informed on the average public health matters to protect himself.

Also, keep this in mind, any power that this legislature may grant to any board, if that board abuses that power, this legislature can then take that power away. We have the right to give and we have the right to take away.

In closing, may I ask the members to keep this in mind: It seems to be exceedingly difficult to promote any type of health legislature for the protection of the citizens of this Commonwealth when we step on some manufacturer's toes or when we cause somebody to lose a buck because they cannot exploit the public.

Mr. PETROSKY. Very briefly, Mr. Speaker, I would submit in rebuttal to several statements that were made here, the following:

One of the speakers indicated that the promulgation of reasonable rules and regulations was contained in section 9. The reasonable part of the rules and regulations governing and promoting the professional practice of optometry is contained in section 9.1, but in the section that deals with the refusal, denial, suspension or revocation of licenses, in subsection 11, on page 6, it indicates any rules or regulations promulgated under its authority. Sufficient for that.

There was an indication that anybody submitting these amendments would be working detrimental to the safety laws and the welfare of the people. I submit again, that contained in this act and present law, and I pointed them out clearly, are sufficient safeguards for the protection of the people.

I submit further that when you project your thinking, the exploitation of the people is what I am concerned about in the economic phase of this problem, and I submit that, when you narrow this field down with these rules and regulations and set up a preferred position for certain individuals, you then have the exploitation of the public and that is the reason I would like you to vote for these amendments.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. PETROSKY and JIM and were as follows:

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 57

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution No. 57 on page 42 of today's calendar.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 12, 1961.

Upon the one hundredth anniversary of the Civil War the various states which took part in that epic struggle are commemorating the historic events and locations associated therewith. The vital role which Pennsylvania played in the Civil War is known by all. Our Commonwealth was among the first to take a firm stand in defense of the Union and by many brave deeds and noble efforts fully kept that pledge in addition thereto the most decisive battle of the Civil War the Battle of Gettysburg was fought within our boundaries

U. S. Highway Route 15 served as the major route for the armies of both the North and South to reach that battle. It is fitting that this highway be officially named as a tribute to the men in blue and gray who marched so gallantly into battle thereon, therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby respectfully requests the Governor and the Secretary of Highways to officially name and designate U. S. Highway Route 15 in Pennsylvania as "The Blue and Gray Highway" and be it further Resolved. That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the Governor and the Secretary of Highways.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 60

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution No. 60 on page 43 of today's calendar.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, April 24, 1961.

In 1957 the State Planning Board of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania conducted a study to determine the practicability of a canal joining Lake Erie and the Ohio River and the effect of such a canal on the future economic status of the area it would serve. It was the conclusion of said report that the construction of such a canal was not practicable at that time.

For more than seventy-five years the Federal Government has made numerous studies for a Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal. Once again the Federal Government has made on allocation of funds for studying such a project.

In order that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania may be properly apprised of the impact a canal joining Lake Erie and the Ohio River would have on the economy of Western Pennsylvania and our State as a whole particularly if the proposed Beaver-Mahoning Rivers Route is decided upon it is important that the aforementioned study conducted by the State Planning Board be reactivated. We will then be in a better position to substantiate our position in relation to such a project therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby requests that the study and report of the practicability of a Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal be reactivated by the State Planning Board in order to determine if the conditions existing at the time of filing the original report in 1957 which report found that such a project would be detrimental to our Commonwealth still exist and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the State Planning Board and to the Governor

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 67

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution No. 67 on page 43 of today's calendar.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, May 4, 1961.

The Pennsylvania Constitution Article IX sections 1 and 2 provides

"All taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax . . . but the General Assembly may by general laws exempt from taxation public property used for public purposes actual places of religious worship places of burial not used or held for private or corporate profit and institutions of purely public charity and real and personal property owned occupied and used by any branch post or camp of honorably discharged soldiers sailors and marines . . . [Emphasis supplied]

"All laws exempting property from taxation other than the property above enumerated shall be void."

Acting under the authority of Article IX, sections 1 and 2, the General Assembly by general laws has exempted valuable real property from local taxation. The evidence suggests that recent absolute and relative increases in the value of real property exempt from local taxation have placed disproportionate burdens upon the owners of property subject to taxation therefore be it

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission in order to establish the pertinent facts and to facilitate the evaluation of the problems presented by the exemption of certain properties from local taxation is hereby directed to ascertain

1 The value of tax-exempt property by the categories prescribed by the Constitution the laws in local tax revenue consequent upon the exemptions and the increased tax burdens imposed upon the owners of taxable property by virtue of the exemption.

2 The use or uses made of tax-exempt property with a view of facilitating a legislative determination as to what extent the exemptions are in fact confined to actual places of religious worship and institutions of purely public charity.

3 The practices which obtain in other comparable states with respect to the exemption of certain types of real estate used for the purposes specified in Article IX section 1 of the Pennsylvania Constitution and be it further

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission report its findings and recommendations to the General Assembly at the Session of 1963.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 68

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution No. 68 on page 43 of today's calendar.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, May 8, 1961.

In the immediate future public hearings will be conducted by the United States Army Corps of Engineers in conjunction with a preliminary survey and report on the advisability and desirability of a development program for the Susquehanna River watershed The survey and report being conducted by the Federal Government deal not only with every conceivable phase of flood control but also reforestation water transport hydroelectric power tourism and recreation

The Susquehanna watershed development program can be of immeasurable value in the economic advancement of our Commonwealth It is therefore imperative that we do everything within our power to cooperate with and assist the Federal Government in this project therefore be it

Resolved That the House of Representatives hereby directs the Joint State Government Commission to conduct a preliminary study of the Susquehanna watershed development program for the purpose of rendering information and assistance to the Federal Government in carrying out this project and be it further

Resolved That the Commission make a report of its findings from such study to the 1963 Session of the General Assembly

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 69

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution No. 69 on page 43 of today's calendar.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, May 8, 1961.

It has been the policy of the Pennsylvania Legislature to periodically review and revise the various codes of our Commonwealth in order to keep pace with the times

"The Game Law" was adopted in 1937 and during the period of twenty-four years which have elapsed since that time many changes in conditions relating to wild birds and wild animals have occurred including but not limited to plentifulness of various species of game beneficial or detrimental effects of different birds and animals changes in feed and cover conditions and advanced methods of hunting or trapping These changes in conditions have required numerous and extensive amendments to "The Game Law" It is also possible that many of the basic premises upon which "The Game Law" was based have so changed through the intervening years that an entirely new approach to the law governing wild birds and wild animals would now be beneficial therefore be it

Resolved That the House of Representatives hereby directs the Joint State Government Commission to review and study "The Game Law" with a view toward modernizing and revising the same and be it further

Resolved That the Commission make a report of its findings and recommendations with drafts of legislation necessary to carry the recommendations into effect to the 1963 session of the General Assembly

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 71

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution No. 71 on page 43 of today's calendar.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, May 22, 1961.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is presently considering joining into an interstate-Federal compact to be known as the Delaware River Basin Compact for the purpose of making possible the unified development and control of the water resources of the Delaware River basin

There can be no doubt that the purposes of this project are laudable and well-worthy of our cooperation and participation It is imperative however that the rights of property owners in areas which may be subject to eminent domain proceedings be fully protected

If the preliminary plans of the United States Army Corps of Engineers are followed dams will be constructed on the Aquashicola and Pohopoco Creeks and elsewhere with a resultant inundation of many acres of land

Any compact or action taken under such compact should take into consideration the many hardships to which persons who will be displaced from their homes and businesses will be subjected

Displaced families should be granted their moving costs up to a reasonable limit There should be a fairer means of assessment of property so taken than the present "market value" approach based on values depreciated by proposed condemnation announcements Property owners should receive a portion of the payment at time of acquisition with no jeopardy to their right to contest the overall settlement There should also be provision for reimbursement of local taxing bodies for monies lost through these non-taxable projects this being particularly important in counties such as Carbon County where several large reservoirs already exist therefore be it

Resolved That any compact which the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania enters into concerning development and control of the water resources of the Delaware River take into consideration the problems faced by persons whose property will be taken under such project and that these persons be given every possible benefit to adequately compensate them for their losses and be it further

Resolved That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the Governor and to the Secretary of Forests and Waters

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 74

Mc. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution No. 74 on page 43 of today's calendar.

In the House of Representatives, May 24, 1961.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 84

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution No. 84 on page 43 of day's calendar.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, June 13, 1961.

The numerous departmental rules regulations and decisions determining what items are taxable and what items are not taxable under the provisions of the act of March 6, 1956 (P. L. 1228), known as the "Selective Sales and Use Tax Act" make it extremely difficult for individuals or businesses attempting to comply with the law to properly collect the taxes due Failure to provide such individuals and businesses with adequate information is very likely causing a considerable loss of revenue to our Commonwealth

It is also extremely difficult for members of the General Assembly to intelligently legislate on taxes unless they are supplied with specific listings of items which are presently taxable or exempt from tax If the Legislature had before it for its use and study a complete listing of the commodities which are subject to tax and of the commodities which are not subject to the tax either by the law itself or under rules regulations or decisions such information would assist greatly in determining now sources of revenue and in determining what additional exemptions if any would be beneficial to the well-being of our Commonwealth therefore be it

Resolved That the House of Representatives hereby requests that the Bureau of Sales and Use Tax of the Department of Revenue prepare and issue a listing of specific items which are taxable and specific items which are not taxable under the provisions of the "Selective Sales and Use Tax Act" and rules regulations and decisions pursuant thereto and be it further

Resolved That such listing shall be prepared and copies thereof made available for use of the General Assembly not later than two weeks after the adoption of this resolution

SENATE MESSAGE

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION SERIAL NO. 111

The clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, March 13, 1961.

The act of June 4, 1901 (P. L. 431), commonly referred to as the "Mechanics' Lien Law," was enacted subsequent to the adoption of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in 1874 and in so far as the provisions thereof are not divergent from preexisting law, is not in violation of Article III, Section 7, of the Constitution as a special law. However, many sections and amendments to the act have been held unconstitutional by our Supreme Court.

There is great confusion with respect to the construction and application of the act and the General Assembly requires for its use comprehensive factual information relating to the laws concerning mechanics' liens so that they may be codified, simplified, and clarified in keeping with the constitutional limitations, as to their construction and application; therefore be it

Resolved (the House of Representatives concurring) That the Joint State Government Commission be directed to study the laws relating to mechanics' liens with a view of codifying, clarifying and simplifying such laws; and be it further

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission report to the General Assembly, its findings and recommendations, together with drafts of legislation necessary to carry its recommendations into effect.

Ordered, That the clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?

It was concurred in.

Ordered, That the clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION SERIAL No. 122

The clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, June 5, 1961.

Whereas, The laws of this Commonwealth relating to agriculture and its related fields are numerous. Many of them are obsolete since we have entered into the era of modern farming and animal husbandry; and

Whereas, Local governmental agencies and other law enforcement agencies are unaware of existing statutes and in many cases duplicate ordinances or ordinances in conflict with existing state laws are sometimes enacted; and

Whereas, Inquiries are always being presented in reference to the laws relating to agriculture and many times there is misunderstanding and confusion which results in unnecessary expenditures of the tax payers money; and

Whereas, There is no codification of the agriculture laws and the acts dealing with farms and farming; therefore be it

Resolved (the House of Representatives concurring), That the Joint State Government Commission be directed to investigate the scope and the cost of a project which would result in the revision, modernization and codification of the laws relating to agriculture; and be it further

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission report its findings to the General Assembly as soon as possible.

Ordered, That the clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for its concurrence.

On the question,
Will the House concur in the resolution of the Senate?
It was concurred in.
Ordered, That the clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. SCHAAF asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, my purpose in standing here today is to reply to the remarks of the gentleman from Blair, Dr. King, on Tuesday, I believe.

Mr. Speaker, as a past master of having put one's foot in one's mouth, I feel I am privileged to so stand here.

When the gentleman first started to address this House, Mr. Speaker, I took no particular note of what was being said because frankly he was in the main concerned, as I understood it, with the Department of Highways' failure to use a specific type of limestone, which, again, as I understood it, was produced in his area. He demonstrated, I thought at first, a multitude of local pride and for that I commend him, Mr. Speaker.

However, in the course of his remarks to this House, he made the statement, and I believe I am correctly quoting him, wherein he said that it would be best if the Secretary of Highways would, and I quote, "investigate complaints which I have received concerning payoffs between State highway inspectors and road contractors." Those remarks, Mr. Speaker, were made in the context of additional remarks concerning the Erie County Thru-Way.

Mr. Speaker, he also made the observation, and I cannot quote him directly, to the effect that the taxpayers stand to lose thousands of dollars because of this type of activity. Mr. Speaker, these are serious charges. I, personally believe, and I do not think any member of this House will seriously dispute this, that the present Secretary of Highways is a man of great integrity. This is a reflection on his department and certainly on him.

Consequently, Mr. Speaker, I feel it is incumbent upon the gentleman to come forth with these complaints which he has allegedly received concerning payoffs by contractors to inspectors in connection with the Erie County—Thru-Way, and if he cannot come forth, or if he will not come forth, then I believe he owes the Secretary of Highways an apology, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I have reason to believe that he has been asked by the duly authorized representatives of this Commonwealth to furnish the information requested and he has, as of this time at least, declined to do so.

In Erie County, Mr. Speaker, and I think I can well speak for my colleague, Mr. Polaski, we do not countenance what the gentleman alleges. Mr. Speaker, I am certainly positive the Department of Highways does not countenance what Mr. King alleges, and Mr. Speaker, I am certain from the record of this State administration and the prior State administration that this administration nor the prior administration countenances this type of activity.

It is regrettable that it has been said. It is regrettable that the public, perhaps, will have a misconception. I am the first one to admit that the construction of the highway in Erie County had its difficulties. For example, Mr. Speaker, last October, or actually during the month of September, asphalt was laid on the shoulders of that highway and when spring came that asphalt did buckle, and did stretch, and did crack, and did heave, but Mr. Speaker, the important part to recall and to note, and this is for the protection of the general public, the taxpaying general public, is that there is a bond which protects the Commonwealth.

The bonding company is obliged to underwrite, if necessary, the mistakes, the lack of diligence on the part of the contractor. Not only that, Mr. Speaker, but I am reliably assured that the contractor who performed this particular segment of the contract has not been paid in full, so that the taxpayers of this Commonwealth, the people of Erie County stand to lose absolutely nothing.

Mr. Speaker, I regret the necessity of my standing here this afternoon. I simply had to make the record straight, and again I urge the gentleman from Butler County, if he has specific information that would be of assistance to this Commonwealth and to this administration in rooting out wrong-doers, then I encourage him. I pledge him my personal cooperation.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. KING asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I agree with the gentleman whom I consider to be a very good friend of mine from Erie County, that these are indeed serious charges. I want this House to know that before I gave my talk on Tuesday I spent considerable time and a considerable amount of traveling checking the authenticity of the facts.

I would like to suggest that the gentleman from Erie County, Mr. Schaaf, join me in introducing a resolution asking for full investigation of the allegations which I have received.

The people of Erie will welcome the news that one of their great progressive newspapers, the "Erie Morning News" has disclosed to me that it is about to run a series of articles concerning the Erie Thru-Way. I am certain that these articles will not only back up my charges, but in all events may enhance them.

I would like to end by saying that at no time in my remarks did I cast any uncomplimentary reflections upon the Secretary of Highways. I consider him to be an honorable gentleman and I believe I only asked him to investigate these allegations which I have received. I believe the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Schaaf, has missed the point. I ask that the record be set straight.

I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

INTERROGATION

Mr. SCHAAF asked and obtained unanimous consent to interrogate Mr. King.

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman if, whether or not following the making of his remarks on Tuesday, a representative of the Department of Justice contacted him?

Mr. KING. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman then if not Mr. King was asked to divulge the nature of his information to that officer?

Mr. KING. I would like to answer that but first I want to make this remark: I would like to compliment the Attorney General. She certainly has good communications with her office. Fifteen minutes after I made my talk she called me from Pittsburgh and within a matter of minutes she had her chief investigator over here to speak with me.

Now I have been asked if I could substantiate these charges. My reply was that I had these allegations and all the Attorney General's office had to do was to get the list of the contractors involved and subpoena them.

Mr. SCHAAF. Well, do I understand the gentleman to say then, Mr. Speaker, that he has no specific information?

Mr. KING. As I reiterated here in the beginning of my remarks, when I first answered the gentleman, I have spent considerable time checking the authenticity of the facts which I have presented—

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, again I think I am correctly quoting the gentleman in his Tuesday remarks: "complaints which I have received concerning payoffs between State highway inspectors and road contractors."

Do I take it from that, Mr. Speaker, that the gentleman does have bona fide, substantial complaints?

Mr. KING. I would like to say this, Mr. Speaker. In my discussion with the gentleman from the Attorney General's office, he himself told me of some of the cases which they were investigating at this time. One example was payoff in the form of gasoline between contractors and inspectors. A payoff does not have to be money.

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to beleaguer this issue, and I do not want to take the time of the House. I simply ask the gentleman again, did he give the information that he allegedly has in his possession to the representative of the Justice Department?

Mr. KING. I failed to hear the gentleman.

Mr. SCHAAF. I will repeat, Mr. Speaker.

Did he give the information in his possession, the complaints which he has received, to the investigator or officer of the Department of Justice?

Mr. KING. The only thing I gave the gentleman from the Attorney General's office was a copy of my speech.

Mr. SCHAAF. Very commendable, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I would then ask the gentleman if he is satisfied that this administration, whether it be the Department of Justice, the office of the Attorney General, or the Department of Highways—is he satisfied that they are pursuing his complaints diligently?

Mr. KING. I certainly am. As I reiterated, I have never seen faster and more prompt action than I did from the Attorney General's office.

Mr. SCHAAF. Am I not correct, Mr. Speaker, that when he mentions a contractor paying an inspector off in gasoline he refers to the act of filling the inspector's automobile with gasoline from the pumps of the contractor? Is that correct?

Mr. KING. Would you repeat that, sir?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would suggest we are really not trying this case in this forum.

Mr. SCHAAF. All right, I will desist, Mr. Speaker.

I thank the gentleman and would like to make one small statement before I sit down.

Mr. Speaker, again, I think this is regrettable that the allegations were made. I do not want to criticize unduly, but I think the criticism that was made on Tuesday was unjust under the circumstances. I think the gentleman has demonstrated his satisfaction with the conduct of this administration in this particular area. I ask for nothing else.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. VARNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that a certain myth has been built around Park Martin because he happens to be a registered Republican in a Democratic state administration. I think, in my own mind, that this is a sort of neat political trick if you can do it and it is being done.

I would like to crack that myth briefly, if I might. On May 24, that is over four weeks ago, I wrote to Mr. Martin and asked him for some information for one of my constituents in regard to getting some money from a contractor up on the Erie Thruway, believe it or not. I am not making any allegations, but I am just pointing out, Mr. Speaker, that today I received by messenger a letter from Mr. Martin, dated June 26, in answer to my letter of May 24.

I do not know what kind of service the highway department gives the other members, but if they do not get around to answering their letters any quicker than they answered mine, they certainly must be busy over there building roads.

I just wanted to bring this into the discussion here to try to explode the myth that seems to be—the halo that seems to be—around poor old Mr. Martin.

INTERROGATION

Mr. FULMER asked and obtained unanimous consent to interrogate Mr. Polen.

Mr. Speaker, during the past several weeks or months there have been quite a few comments as to the status of the Pennsylvania State University in relation to moneys that might be received from the Commonwealth for the operation of this institution.

Only yesterday another question was raised, and that is why I would like to direct this question to the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Polen. Is it the opinion of the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations that the bill which is designed to provide funds for the Pennsylvania State University is an appropriation bill?

Mr. POLEN. It is an appropriation bill, yes sir.

Mr. FULMER. Then can we assume that House bill 773 is an appropriation bill?

Mr. POLEN. It is, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FULMER. I would like to have the gentleman turn to the calendar on page 11, if he will, to the series of bills beginning with 771 through 774. If we just read the first five words in each one:

House bill 771 says, "An Act making an appropriation;"

House bill 772 says, "An Act making an appropriation;" House bill 773, which refers to the land grant of the university says, "A Supplement to the act of 1863;" But House bill 774 then goes back again to say, "An Act making appropriations."

Is there any reason why the wording of these should be different if they are all appropriation bills?

Mr. POLEN. Yes, Mr. Speaker. It is my understanding that all the appropriations that we make to Penn State University are supplements to a specific act of the middle 1800's. They are not appropriations as we currently make to other institutions. I think it is due to the fact that the University was then a land grant college, and that each year we make supplemental appropriations to that act. While I designate it as an appropriation bill, which it is, it is my understanding that there is a difference between the appropriations to Penn State and other appropriation bills. There are a few similar situations where you will find that the appropriation is also a supplement. I cannot recall them at this time, but I do know that there are some.

Mr. FULMER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for answering these questions. Now, Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire of the Chair if it were my purpose to introduce at this time a bill to provide funds for the operation of the Pennsylvania State University, could I do so under the resolution which we passed some time ago?

The SPEAKER. The answer, in the opinion of the Chair, would be "yes." In the opinion of the Chair it could be done in two ways, a new bill or an amendment to existing legislation.

Mr. FULMER. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate your position on this and, therefore, I would like to beg the patience of the Chair to advise me, as a member of this House, how I can proceed.

I made an inquiry at the Legislative Reference Bureau to have a bill drafted to provide funds for the Pennsylvania State University, and thinking that I was following out the wishes of some of the membership of the House—I should say with the consent of the Pennsylvania State University—I desired to put down how these moneys could be spent.

I find that I do not have the permission of the Legislative Reference Bureau to do that.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would observe that the request of the member would be controlling with the Legislative Reference Bureau, just as the acceptance of the measure would be controlling with the members of this House. You had a perfect right to go over there and ask to have a bill drawn if you like.

Mr. FULMER. I would like to follow this point further, if I may, because—

The SPEAKER. Under the resolution which we passed as to the last day for the introduction of bills, "except raising revenue, making appropriations and reapportionment."

For what purpose does the gentleman from Philadelphia rise?

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, may I intervene to interrogate the gentleman from Centre, Mr. Fulmer?

The SPEAKER. If the gentleman yields for interrogation, the gentleman from Philadelphia can intervene. It will be up to the gentleman from Centre as to whether he desires to yield to him.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, just for the purpose of asking a question.

Mr. FULMER. I will be glad to yield for a question.

Mr. McCORMACK. Would the gentleman have any objection to taking this business up after we complete the calendar today?

Mr. FULMER. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. The gentleman has the floor. The door was opened for miscellaneous discussion outside the purview of the calendar, and the Chair does not propose, except at the command of the House, to close the door. The Chair originally, had it been to its discretion, would not have opened that door at this time.

Mr. FULMER. Mr. Speaker, I want to point out to the members of the House that the matter before us, or what I am discussing today, is not only important to me; it is important to every member of this House and it is important to the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

I have in my possession a letter from the director of the Legislative Reference Bureau, Mr. Hershey, who says this about the Pennsylvania State University appropriation, and I would like the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Polen, to listen to this, as well as the rest of the members of the House:

"... the bill requested by you is not an appropriation bill since, if you will check a similar bill in 1959, you will find that it became Act No. 567 in the Pamphlet Laws of 1959 (P. L. 1585). If this act would have appeared in the appropriation Acts Volume of 1959, I would properly classify it today as an appropriation act."

The SPEAKER. I will answer that very directly. It is not within the province of the Legislative Reference Bureau to decide the propriety of the bill. That will be decided by the Chair as to whether the bill does or does not come under the rules. You have a right to get the bill drawn any way you want.

Mr. FULMER. I thank the Speaker.

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House bill No. 1421, printer's No. 1711 was passed over at the request of Mr. McCANN.

INTERROGATION

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognies the Minority Leader.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I want to ask the Majority Leader, does he intend to call up Senate bill No. 104 which is on today's calendar on final passage on page 9?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to call up Senate bill No. 104 today. We intend to discuss it and call it up on Monday, July 10.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. I thank the gentleman.

STATEMENT BY MINORITY LEADER

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I would like the opportunity to address the House with unanimous consent.

The SPEAKER. The minority floor leader and the majority floor leader are always privileged to address the House. The Chair recognizes the minority leader.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, at the beginning of this week we notified the majority leader that we had amendments that we wanted to offer to Senate bill 104. He knows what the amendments are. The amendments are to incorporate House bill No. 1095 which would permit the trailers of trucks, the forty-foot trailer bill, which industry in this State is crying for. Every day this week I have asked him to call up Senate bill 104 and, for some reason, it has been put aside and put aside. There is never any time for the minority to do anything on this side. I have had members of this side of the House this week who wanted to make speeches, policy speeches. They have not been allowed to do it. The majority leader says he will object if they do it. Now I am sick and tired of this kind of treatment. I think the majority party is being unduly unjust and arbitrary today. We were promised that this bill would come up today and now they say it is not coming up. The people of industry in this State want these amendments and they want this bill passed. There is a plant that has just closed down in York, Pennsylvania, because of dilatory tactics here in this Commonwealth. The only reason you are not calling up Senate bill 104 is because there is a person in Philadelphia who does not want those amendments, and his long arm is reaching in here and is shutting you up and you know it just as well as I do. I, therefore, make a motion that Senate bill 104 be made a special order of business immediately.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the Majority Leader.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I am deeply hurt by the fact that he says I object or have objected to members making policy speeches or speeches at any time. I have asked for cooperation, and rightfully so, that speeches be made at a certain time, and yet there has been no objection to either Mr. Johnson or anyone else making any speeches just as they did today.

Now then, he talks about the amendments to Senate bill or the amendments to Senate bill 192, if I have the right number, in this field, and he says the objections are only from a man in Philadelphia. Well, it is funny that I have also received objections and have asked the Secretary of Highways, Mr. Park Martin, the Pennsylvania Railroad, that has objected to this situation, and we say that we are going to bring it before our caucus on Monday. There is no question that there are people divided on both sides of the aisle.

But if, at this point, you are trying to pin-point and say that the only objections to the proposed amendments to this bill are presented by someone from Philadelphia, you are mistaken. You know quite well, as do others, Mr. Speaker, that there is an objection on our side and your side; that there are people who are for the amendments, I assume on this side and your side, and yet rightfully so. Our caucus has indicated that we would take this subject up on Monday, July 10. I am not trying to hold down anyone from making any speeches. In fact, I hope we will always have the kind of cooperation that we had on Monday when every arrangement that could be made was made for you people, and rightfully so, to attend our Past President's and Mr. Nixon's, your Presidential candidate's, dinner at Hershey. God forbid that we be here in September. We hope to have President Kennedy here at our dinner and if we would be in session you would grant the same to us.

Therefore, I know that there are members whose tempers are flying, but may I say to the gentlemen, and say it honestly, because I am accused of having one of the worst tempers around the House, I would never do that to you and I hope no one would ever do it to me.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman desire to make the motion in full and in proper order at this time?

MOTION TO MAKE SENATE BILL NO. 104
A SPECIAL ORDER

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I move that Senate bill No. 104, printer's No. 955, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 29, 1959 (P. L. 58), entitled "The Vehicle Code" granting the power to the Secretary of Highway to establish speed limits on page 9 of today's calendar, bills on final passage, be made a special order of business immediately.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Westmoreland rise?

Mr. PETROSKY. To speak on the motion, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, from the inception of this session I know as well as each and every member sitting in this House on both sides of the aisle knows, that we have extended the courtesy to members on each side of the aisle, that whenever a particular issue before this House was not fully discussed in each of the respective caucuses, or in the event that issue was not analyzed by the people concerned, we did extend the courtesy to individual members, as well as to each party caucus, of putting a measure over in order.

Mr. Speaker, on the issue that is before us for making Senate bill 104 a special order of business, I would reiterate the word of the majority leader and submit to this House that I, too, have had a number of requests to hold this bill over in order until such time as the issue that is going to be brought before this House would be fully discussed in the caucus.

Therefore, I ask the membership of both sides of the House to support this position that we have held from the inception of this session. We must admit that we have gone far and accomplished much for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by observing these rules of courtesy to each other.

I ask the membership on both sides of the House to continue this practice, this courtesy, by at this time voting down the request for a special order of business on this bill. I ask you to vote "no" on the motion.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams, desire to be recognized at this time?

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Petrosky, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. PETROSKY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, do I understand the gentleman to say that on Senate bill 104 he has had many requests to have that bill held over?

Mr. PETROSKY. I have had.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman check his House history and tell us when this bill went on the House calendar?

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, the requests for having the bill go over in order is not relevant to the time it has been on the calendar. It is relevant to the move that has been publicized in the last couple of days—as to the import of the material that will be attempted to be placed in this measure.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, then I understand, it is not Senate bill 104 which is controversial but the amendments which will be offered to it which are controversial?

Mr. PETROSKY. I think the gentleman is well aware of the fact that they are controversial on both sides of the House.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, is it my understanding, then, that all Senate bills having to do with amendments to the Motor Vehicle Code will, therefore, be held over? Is that correct?

Mr. PETROSKY. I did not suggest this. I suggested that on any matter of controversy on any Senate bill, we will ask for a postponement until such time as the membership of our caucus could go into the matter in full. If the gentleman's caucus has done so, we have not had an opportunity to do this as yet.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Then, Mr. Speaker, I understand that a vote not to make this bill a special order of business is a vote not to consider the 40-foot trailer amendments at this time.

Mr. PETROSKY. I would say this is true because this is the controversy and this is the law upon which I would like our side of the House to caucus upon before we come into the hall of the House to express our opinion.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman aware of how long these amendments have been in the hands of the majority and the minority leaders?

Mr. PETROSKY. No. I would be happy to be advised by the gentleman.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. They have been in their hands at least two weeks.

Mr. PETROSKY. In answer to the question, I would say this: I can point out to the House any number of bills that have been on the calendar at least two weeks or longer on which we have not had the opportunity to caucus.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, will the majority leader permit himself to be interrogated?

The SPEAKER. Will the majority leader permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I wish to know whether or not I heard the majority leader correctly yesterday when he said that we would consider Senate bills on the calendar today?

Mr. McCANN. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Will we consider all Senate bills, starting with the lowest in number and proceeding to the highest in number today?

Mr. McCANN. I would say that would not be correct, because there would be a considerable number of bills that would be marked over, Senate bills, that is, some of which would be amended and some on which motions would be made to recommit. At least, some members want to recommit them.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, the reason for my question is that we have been voting on House bills and I understood the majority leader to say we would concentrate on Senate bills today. I wonder if we are about to begin concentrating on Senate bills?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, we certainly intended to finish up on as many House bills as we could and go on to the Senate bills. In fact Mr. Speaker, you are well aware that it was our assumption when I called up capital punishment yesterday—I believe that from the time I called the bill up until the roll call was announced, the time was 2 hours and 30 minutes, if I remember correctly. It was our honest estimate from the discussion that occurred the previous day that the debate would not exceed one hour until it would be voted. We counted on it to be roughly an hour. So at that point yesterday, if you recall, we completed one other bill, I believe, after 226. I think I am correct in that, and we at that time were already past the 6 o'clock d.s.t. period at which time we had been in session continually since 11 a. m.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr., Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. I would like to make a brief statement with the permission of the House.

Mr. Speaker, I personally would like to commend the majority leader for the gentlemanly manner in which he handles debate in this House and in which he handles requests by members of this House. The gentleman has been entirely fair with me as an individual member of the House.

I presented amendments to Senate bill 104 to the majority leader about two weeks ago and he told me that the bill would eventually be called up. Then because I realized this was a controversial matter, I prepared amendments to Senate bill 192, as the majority leader stated a few minutes ago. Both of these amendments are the same and, of course, would allow 40-foot trailers in Pennsylvania. This is a conversial issue. We in the minority have only the rights of a minority party, but we think that having waited two weeks to get this issue before this House, having been promised that it would be brought up today, I think we have every right to exercise the right of the minority to force this issue, if we have to do that.

I, for one, as an individual, can do very little, but I intend to ask that every motor vehicle bill that is called up for a vote be passed over, unless I have amendments prepared for it. If I have amendments prepared for it, I assure you those amendments will allow 40-foot trailers.

Thank you.

The SPEAKER. The Chair wonders whether the two floor leaders cannot agree upon a definite date when we would resolve this issue?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, first I would like to answer the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams.

I cannot recall, up to the present date, that ever a single bill which has been agreed to be voted on and just one person asked for it to go over for any reason, that that request has not been granted. If I am wrong, I want to be corrected now.

I stated very clearly the situation. I would be glad if the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Williams, would ask for each bill dealing with the Motor Vehicle Code be passed over. That request would be granted.

I am aware of this problem as well as anybody else in this House and I am aware that in our caucuses we have had many problems to discuss in addition to the calendar, and that we tried to set a time next week when we would discuss this. In fact, some of the questions were already answered, I believe.

I have asked simply, and the minority leader has made the motion, that it be passed over until Monday. I notified our caucus that we will caucus at 1 o'clock promptly on Monday, July 10, and I asked every member to be there to complete these issues and the other pending issues that will be reported from the Education Committee, I assume, after their meeting on Thursday and Friday of this next week.

Therefore, I will abide by whatever is the wish, or the motion, because I have asked the Speaker and the parliamentarian as to what the parliamentary procedure is and what the votes are that are required. I have been informed by the Speaker and the parliamentarian how it can be handled or cannot be handled, and in each case it takes a simple majority until such time as voting on a constitutional question and a constitutional majority for the bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would point out that our parliamentary position is this: That on any bill designed to amend the Vehicle Code, the Chair would be required to rule on the subject of amending the Vehicle Code and they would be pertinent amendments. So that any bills on the Vehicle Code are subject to amendments along the line. So that there would be no tumult and harassment, the Chair would suggest, if it is possible, for the two floor leaders to agree on a definite date when this particular issue would be resolved. As it now stands, it will be quite possible every time a bill amending the Vehicle Code was proposed, to present this particular set of amendments. That would be a constant delay and would ruffle, no doubt, the temper of the House. So the Chair, although it is not in the province of the Chair to determine, would urge the two floor leaders to agree on a definite date when these particular amendments would be disposed of.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Bucks.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS, Jr. Mr. Speaker, I want it clear that I agree with the majority leader, that what he says has been the practice. When an individual member asks that a bill be passed over he has, as has the minority leader, done just that.

I want it also clear that I think if there is any unfairness here, it is not on the part of the majority leader. I think there is no question but that he has been caught in the middle. The vast number of legislators on this side of the aisle want to consider this question, and a substantial number of the legislators on the other side of the aisle want to consider this question. The question is merely whether we want to have this matter postponed because of the special wishes of a very few.

The SPEAKER. Never having quarreled with anybody, any time, any place, the Chair is all for quietude and peace.

The Chair recognizes the minority leader.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, we would like to have something done about this today and we would certainly be glad to yield for some 15 minutes while Mr. McCann calls a caucus on these amendments and the bill and come back up here.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Berks, Mr. Adams.

Mr. ADAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to speak upon the urgency of considering this motion at the present time and the need for getting action on it right away.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order if he confines himself to the necessity for immediate action.

Mr. ADAMS. The necessity for immediate action is concerned with the serious unemployment situation that has developed and is further developing in Berks County where a large number of trailers and trailer frames are manufactured. One plant in particular down there, I believe, has already closed due to the hampering restrictions on trailer manufacture. Many people are out of work. The Parish Pressed Steel Company, which manufactures trailer frames, has curtailed operations and many people are laid off and are being laid off because this legislation has been pending without action.

It has been pointed out that industry is clamoring for this, but more than industry, unions have written letters to me clamoring for action on this, union members have come to me clamoring for action on this legislation. For the most part they are not members of the minority party, they are members of the majority party, and I wish it to be on the record that it is not the fault at this time, of the minority party that action is not being taken on this legislation and let the blame be placed where it belongs, if it is not where it should be, if this bill is not going to be taken up at the present time.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Lippincott, rise?

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. What is the order of business at this time?

The SPEAKER. The order of business is the motion made by the minority leader.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. After the motion is voted upon and assuming that it is defeated, what would then be the order of business?

The SPEAKER. The bill is on final passage or third reading, depending upon subsequent action.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Is there a particular sequence to be followed, under the rules?

The SPEAKER. In the order in which bills appear on the calendar or the selection made with the consent of the House by the majority leader.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. I thank you, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. A. W. JOHNSON and PETROSKY and were as follows:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, could I have the attention of the membership of the House?

I have received a telephone call, and, in checking very carefully, I find that Senate bill 201 was passed yesterday. I would like to know if the bill was delivered to the Senate at this point. There is in one place, I believe, the words "hospital aged," and it should say "hospital and aged" because it means a world of difference in the program, I am asking if we could, before the session is over, reconsider the vote to amend the bill so it could be complete. Otherwise, it is a Senate bill going back. They would have to non-concur and have it go to conference committee to correct the one word to come back.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has requested the chief clerk to ascertain the status of the bill. If the Senate were in session we could ask permission to recall the bill.

Mr. McCANN. It is in their possession now?

The SPEAKER. The chief clerk will ascertain just where it is and report later.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, then I will call up House bill 1484, printer's No. 1817.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, that the clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate bill No. 114, entitled:

An Act reenacting and amending section 13 and Article VII of Chapter II of the act of December 15, 1959 (P. L. 1779), entitled "The Fish Law of 1959" removing the requirement that fishermen be licensed in order to fish in certain regulated fishing lakes further regulating the issuance of permits or bills of sale for fish caught in such lakes changing penalties relating to such lakes and harmonizing language of existing law.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Renwick.

Mr. RENWICK. Mr. Speaker, I want to call the attention of the House to this bill.

As you know, back in the session of 1953, the fish commission came here and asked us to increase the fishing license fee. They asked us, for one reason, because they said they did not have enough money to operate a good fishing program in the State of Pennsylvania. After much debate and a lot of things were done, we decided we would go along with them.

Again in 1957 they came back here and told us they had to have another increase, they had to have more money. We went along with a 75-cent increase in license. Now, here today we have a bill in which they are giving a free fishing license to anyone who fishes in a free lake. I say this: It is going to cost the fish commission a lot of money if this bill passes and I am going to ask you what is going to happen to the fishing in the State of Pennsylvania. We do not have enough money now to operate a good fish commission, so here we are giving certain people, class legislation, class people, who operate fishing lakes the right to have fishermen fish in these lakes free.

Now I am going to say this: What will happen to the game? We have a lot of game land, which of course is privately owned, they are private reserves, and why is it all right for them to hunt in those reserves without a license? It comes under the same category, so I am asking every member of this House to consider very seriously this bill.

I happened to attend the meeting of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs when the resolution was presented that affected this bill, and I want to say this: at that meeting there were a lot of pros and cons, and, if I recall, the vote was something like 23 to 21. You can see there are a lot of people who represented sportmen's clubs who were opposed to this and they are fishermen. They are people who like to fish.

I am asking every member on both sides of the aisle to vote this bill down.

Mr. FETTEROLF. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Elk I would agree with him that at the outset of the enforcement of this act that the fish commission may lose some money, but I believe in the long run the fact that there are no licenses required in private preserves might very well be beneficial to the fish commission in creating additional interest in fishing generally among the public, and I think that in the long run the early losses will be more than recouped by the added interest created by allowing people to fish in these private preserves without a license.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Renwick.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Renwick, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. RENWICK. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, do I understand that the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs endorsed this bill?

Mr. RENWICK. They did, by a very close vote, I might add.

Mr. BRETH. At the same time they endorsed this bill did they take any other action regarding the lack of funds for the fish commission and in any way try to alleviate the situation and obtain more funds for the fish commission?

Mr. RENWICK. They certainly did, and I would like to say this to every one in this House, that the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen endorsed a program whereby they would obtain revenue by licensing children between the ages of 12 and 16, I believe are the ages, thereby obtaining revenue in that manner to offset this loss.

Mr. BRETH. Does the gentleman know of any measure that was introduced to cover the resolution, that was adopted by the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs to make children 14 and 15 pay a full $3.25 fishing license? Does the gentleman know of any legislation or an attempt to introduce legislation on this?

Mr. RENWICK. There is legislation in the House right now.

Mr. BRETH. But for a dollar that covers children from 12 to 16.

Mr. RENWICK. That is right, but the Sportsmen's Club, in their resolution, said they would obtain the full fishing license, $3.25.

Mr. BRETH. Now, since the gentleman comes from a fishing territory, has he been feeling the effects of lack of funds in the fisheries' program in Pennsylvania?

Mr. RENWICK. Definitely, there is a lack of funds. They do not have the money right now to rehabilitate some of our streams. We have brought up the question at different times that our streams are in bad shape and the commission does not have enough to improve these streams. The people from all over the different counties can see that the streams need to be fixed up, and, of course, they do not have the revenue to do it.

Mr. BRETH. Does the gentleman have any way of estimating the loss of revenue to the fish commission if this bill passes?

Mr. RENWICK. It is hard to estimate, but I would think it safe to assume it would be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Mr. BRETH. That is all, and I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I hate to be placed in the position of trying to stem the streaming tide and I do not think I am going to succeed, but essentially when a department of state has to depend upon the legislature in many, many instances to acquire funds sufficient to keep it going, a bill of this kind can be dangerous.

We have had before us in the past measures to raise the fishing license. It is only a few years ago that we raised it 75 cents. Two years before that we raised it 50 cents. Today I assure you the fish commission will seriously lack funds. Now any other department in the State can run a deficit. The Pennsylvania Fish Commission cannot run a deficit because its funds are entirely sacrosanct and we cannot vote general funds to the Pennsylvania Fish Commission. Therefore, the only thing the fish commission can do when it does lack funds is curtail fishery services as it has in the past four or five years. The production and stocking of trout alone has dropped from 2,800,000 legal trout to below 2,000,000. This very year, the in-season stocking of trout is away below even what it was last year, and last year it was below what it was before that. As a result, licenses have been dropping seriously. We are down 150,000 licenses to 200,000 licenses over four or five years ago.

I think it is rather a singular compliment to the forces who favor this type of legislation, who want this privileged legislation, who want this class legislation, in convincing this legislature to pass such a bill as this is.

More than that I cannot say. Just a moment ago we saw the board light up with green. That should have been the tip-off to me and to the gentleman from Elk County to cease fire, to pull in our shots, to beat a retreat, as it were. But I do not see it. I say the thing is the men of this House who know and should know the facts of these matters are perhaps voting on this without sufficient information as to the full and complete effects of this bill.

As the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Renwick, said, next year we will be asked perhaps to dole out hunting licenses for the public shooting grounds. The end is not yet. This is establishing, I believe, a serious precedent at a time when the fish commission truly needs funds.

I say that no one, no one in this House can estimate the number of licenses that will be sacrificed with this bill's passage.

No one can tell you or me whether the fish commission will suffer $50,000, $100,000, or even a greater loss of its funds.

I do not really expect this bill not to pass, but I do think that you should give it serious consideration, and I do say that perhaps this is not the time to pass this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I look up at the ceiling of this beautiful hall, I see written up there, "And Ye Shall Know The Truth And The Truth Shall Make You Free."

I am so happy at this time to hear the changed tune, the different song and dance on this bill regarding the expenditure of fish funds against my objection to the $100,000 annually being taken out of the fish fund and given to the General State Authority in connection with a lot of programs that went through this House earlier this year.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Curwood.

Mr. CURWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I am going to make the shortest speech of this House. I am going to congratulate my colleagues for their stand and I know that everybody in the House knows exactly how I was going to vote. I would suggest—let's vote!

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

BILL ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House bill No. 156, entitled:

An Act amending the "Municipal Employees' Retirement Law," approved June 4, 1943 (P. L. 886), including officers and employees of certain associations within the act.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey.

Mr. GAILEY. Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding of this bill that it permits certain employees of associations to become members of the municipal employees' retirement act.

It seems to me that by no stretch of the imagination can these employes of associations be said to be municipal employes. It seems to me that this is a group which the legislature certainly did not want to encompass within the act when it was originally introduced and the whole crux of the act as it is now on our books, we are opening the door to inclusion within a retirement group, in effect a group of people who are completely unrelated to the group that normally should be included therein.

I think this is bad legislation. I think it sets a very bad precedent for including within retirement groups people who are not related to the group for whose benefit the system is set up. I would ask members on both sides of the House to vote against this legislation.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The amendments will be read by the clerk for information.

Amend Bill, page 2, by inserting after line 8:

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, that the bill as amended lie over for printing.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate bill No. 522, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 12, 1951 (P. L. 90), entitled "Liquor Code" further regulating the issuance of new hotel licenses.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Greene, Mr. McCann, the majority leader.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the reason we are calling up Senate bill 522, even though I believe the other group did not get to caucus on it, is that 522 is an amendment to the liquor code dealing with the issuance of new hotel licenses. In the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania licenses are issued twice a year only, the dates being May 1 and November 1.

A hotel is built and completed in Pennsylvania, ready to be opened in the period of around July 12 to 15—I forget the date. The liquor board cannot issue any hotel license, even though it is a very large hotel, except on the first day of November.

This amendment to the liquor code gives the liquor board the right to issue the hotel licenses as indicated in there, and I believe if some people are willing to come into the Commonwealth and build a large hotel that we should grant them this right because of their investment and so they may open at the time when the hotel is properly completed.

I ask your support for the bill because of the one hotel that has now been built and will be ready on July 12, complete. It could not open any of its operations in the field of handling liquor, beer and wine before the first day of November, even though the hotel would be open in July.

Therefore, I ask you to vote "aye" on the bill, and I hope it will pass so that it may be enacted into law to take care of the hotels.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 58.

An Act Amending the act of November 19, 1959 (P. L. 1548), entitled "An act to provide temporary supplemental retirement benefits for certain annuitants of the Public School Employees' Retirement System creating a special fund in the custody of the State Treasurer imposing duties on the Public School Employees' Retirement Board and making an appropriation" extending the time for receipt of benefits and including disability annuitants and making an appropriation.

With the information that the Senate had passed the same with amendments in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The clerk will read the amendments.

The clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Title, page 1, next to last line by inserting after the word "annuitants" the following: "and making an appropriation," Section 1, page 2, line 1, by striking out after the word and figure "Section 1" the word and figure "Section 1" and inserting in lieu thereof the words and figures "Sections 1 and 4"; line 6, by striking out after the word "appropriation" the word "is" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "are"; line 12, by striking out after the word and figures "June 30" the figures "1962" and inserting in lieu thereof the figures "1963"; line 15, by striking out after the word and figures "June 30" the figures "1962" and inserting in lieu thereof the figures "1963"; page 3, line 1, by striking out after the word and figures "June 30" the figures "1962" and inserting in lieu thereof the figures "1963"; line 4, by striking out after the word and figures "June 30" the figures "1962" and inserting in lieu thereof the figures "1963"; and by striking out line 17, as follows: "Section 2 Section 4 of the act is amended to read"; page 4, by adding Section 2, as follows:

Section 2 This act shall take effect immediately.

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I request that the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I want to make a statement. I wish the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Polen, would listen and see if I make this statement correctly.

The amendments to the bill as it left the House only extended the benefits for 13 months and the appropriation for 13 months.

Mr. POLEN. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TOMPKINS. The amendments inserted by the Senate, as I understand, extend the benefits for a period of 25 months, which leaves the appropriation for only one year and we, therefore, can, in 1962, provide for the appropriation for the fiscal year of July 1, 1962, to June 30, 1963.

Mr. POLEN. That is correct, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, we have not caucused on these bills and I understand the payments run out for these people involved in this. So, therefore, we will concur.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, that is correct and that is the reason we are concurring, so that when the Senate comes here it will be complete, because the payments cannot be made unless this is enacted into law. I ask that the members do concur.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

STATEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair notices quite a few people standing in the rear aisle of the Senate. If there is a seat available, please take a seat. We must maintain order in the Senate.

Also, as I look forward, I see a Great Dane dog. This is still the Senate Body and we must have order. I would suggest that in order to maintain proper decorum in the Senate, the dog be removed from the Chamber and kept in the outer corridor. We are doing this more or less as a precautionary measure and, therefore, so as not to create any incident in the Senate, the owner of the Great Dane dog is requested to remove the animal. We are all lovers of dogs, but we must maintain the proper respect and decorum in this Body.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, the animal you just referred to is an identifiable lobbyist who is here in the interest of his own bill. He is the only lobbyist who, I am sure, is here and who has not made a sound so far, nor has he importuned anyone. I think he is maintaining decorum and order at the moment. I do not know how his bill is going to fare, but I think that is the purpose for which he is here.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. In order not to go too far afield, although the Great Dane dog has been removed from the Senate, I see another dog in the rear of the Chamber. Maybe there are two dogs with us today.

Ladies and gentlemen who are in the audience, we must proceed with our business. As I stated before, it is merely a matter of precaution, so as not to create incidents in the Senate, that I ask you to kindly remove the animals to the outer corridor. Will the Sergeant-at-Arms please act accordingly?

The Chair continues to notice quite a few guests standing in the rear of the Senate. There are a number of seats in the balcony. We will be here for another few hours and, therefore, those who desire to partake of our proceedings will kindly ascend to the balcony where you will find seats.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. STIEFEL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I am about to offer a resolution, on behalf of Senator Hays, Senator Chapman and myself.

This resolution, indirectly, is a tribute to Pennsylvania State University. In order to save time and not impose upon the Clerk to read the resolution, I will state the gist of it and then ask for its unanimous adoption.

All of us who visit Pennsylvania State University and come upon the "Old Main" are impressed by the immortal frescoes of the great American artist, Henry Varnum Poor. These frescoes now come to the fore in connection with the centennial of the land-grant colleges. Pennsylvania is blessed with several centennials.

In order to give due recognition to this centennial of the land-grant colleges, this resolution suggests that those magnificent murals, which each of us has seen when we visited Pennsylvania State University, should be printed in the forthcoming edition of The Pennsylvania Manual.

Therefore, Mr. President, I am submitting this resolution and requesting the Senate to direct the editors of The Pennsylvania Manual to insert, in the forthcoming issue for 1961, reproductions, with proper explanations, of these magnificent pieces of art.

I ask for the immediate adoption of this resolution.

SENATE RESOLUTIONS

REQUESTING THAT A NEW SECTION, ENTITLED "PENNSYLVANIA'S CENTENNIALS," BE INSERTED IN THE NEXT PENNSYLVANIA MANUAL

Messrs. STIEFEL, HAYS and CHAPMAN offered the following resolution (Serial No. 78), which was read as follows:

In the Senate, July 6, 1961.

It is indeed symbolic of Pennsylvania's genius and its resultant leadership, in the very vanguard of the progress of our Nation, that in the year 1863, while on one side serving as the "Arsenal of the Union" in contributing to the crushing defeat of the Confederacy at Gettysburg on July 1, 2, 3, 1863, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania at the same time did not neglect its contributions to the agricultural and industrial growth of the Nation. Thus, in 1863, the General Assembly of Pennsylvania designated the Farmers' High School of Pennsylvania as the land-grant institution of the Commonwealth, thereby establishing one of the first Schools of Agriculture and Industrial Arts in America. The Farmers' High School was destined to become the Pennsylvania State University, which was housed in its early days in a single building, "Old Main," built of limestone quarried from the front campus.

The lobby of the "Old Main" was chosen as the site of what was to become one of the most significant works of art in America; a mural by Henry Varnum Poor, symbolically depicting the founding, aspirations and the labors, as well as the people of a great university—the Land-Grant University of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Poor, one of the Nation's leading artists, started work on the monumental mural of the North Wall in April 1940, painting in fresco, a technique which consists of applying water-mixed pigments to freshly troweled plaster so that the pigments are absorbed and become a part of the wall as the plaster dries.

Growth is the main theme of the North Wall fresco. Although the artist intended the North Wall fresco to be complete in itself, nevertheless he envisaged it as the focal picture of a series. He deliberately used the columns at either side of the staircase as a frame for the central and most important part of the work.

In 1862, Abraham Lincoln signed into law the Morrill Land-Grant Act, which provided for the establishment of institutions of higher learning where "the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts."

In the foreground of the center section, Abraham Lincoln hands a young tree, the symbol of growth, to a student. Both Lincoln and the student are depicted on a heroic scale. Poor said: "I want Lincoln to be a symbol of hope and faith and more than just a part of the design because of his historic signing of the Morrill Act. I want his face and figure to express also doubt and tragedy, and (I want) the full fruit of what he hoped to be expressed in the figure of the young student."

In the background, the original "Old Main," still under construction, can be seen. Immediately to the left of the central group, two students examine a plot of winter rye, while several others stand in contemplation behind them. A young man on horseback says farewell to his family before leaving for school; two younger boys wrestle in the foreground. In the old man standing over the wrestlers, the artist foresaw himself at the age of seventy. In the distance, agricultural students work in the fields against a background of rich farmlands and rolling hills.

To the right of Lincoln, students are gathered around a table with Dr. Evan Pugh, the first President of the University. At his feet, a mineralogy student examines a specimen from an outcrop of coal. Directly behind this group, three students in military uniform reflect the provision of the Morrill Act concerning military training. In the distance at a forge, students fashion the parts of an early machine. The background, extending to the long mountain ridges in the far distances, depicts the mining and industrial regions of Pennsylvania.

At the extreme right, student engineers on a scaffold study a blueprint. An old workman, standing before a partially completed bridge, rounds out the design by directing the eye back toward the center of the fresco.

As the Pennsylvania State University lies in the heart of the Commonwealth, leaving each year an everlasting imprint upon thousands of young Americans who drink from the pellucid waters of its learning, the Poor frescoes should be of incalculable inspiration to all Pennsylvanians, especially as we are about to celebrate along with the Centennial of the Civil War, and Pennsylvania's contributions to the victory of the Union, also the equally-significant Centennial of the Pennsylvania State University.

The "Pennsylvania Manual" is a veritable depository of important information pertaining to Pennsylvania and its great institutions. It becomes a sine qua non Vade Mecum for a student interested in the various phases of Pennsylvania's history, culture and civilization.

It is self-evident that the inclusion of a new section in the forthcoming editions of the "Pennsylvania Manual" in 1961, 1963, and 1965, entitled "Pennsylvania's Centennials," would be conducive to enhancing the cultural, spiritual and patriotic background of our citizenry.

Be it therefore resolved, That the Senate of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania directs the editors of the "Pennsylvania Manual" that a new section be initiated in the "Pennsylvania Manual," as aforesaid, entitled "Pennsylvania's Centennials" which should include inter alia reproductions of the Poor frescoes in the "Old Main" at Pennsylvania State University, as well as ample explanatory notes describing the gist of same.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I believe that the purpose of this resolution is salutary. However, there may be many other things that ought to be printed and reproduced in the Manual.

Therefore, I would suggest that the resolution be sent to the proper committee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. In view of the objection by Senator Berger, the resolution will be referred to the Committee on State Government.

DiSilvestro, on the signal honor bestowed upon him by the Sons of Italy, on Sunday, June 25, 1961. Tony was presented with a gold medal as "The Man of the Year."

BILL OVER IN ORDER

HB 197—Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Mr. WEINER.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE DEFEATED

HB 227 (Pr. No. 2303)—And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I understand this bill would permit persons who are members of credit unions to assign as security, up to the sum of $600, their interest in their retirement.

Mr. President, I do not believe it was ever the intention of the Legislature, in setting up retirement plans for State employees, to permit assignments of those interests prior to the employee's actual receipt of his retirement money. I do not believe, Mr. President, that this is in the best interest of those persons who are the beneficiaries of retirement funds. Therefore, I intend to oppose this bill.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to point out to the Members of the Senate that this bill is today the law. All we are doing in this measure is increasing the amount from $300 to $600.

I believe there has been a little bit of a change in the cost-of-living, the cost of operations, and so on and so forth, that would entitle these people to borrow more money or have more money or ask for a greater assignment. Credit unions are the one way that people of limited means can borrow money to take care of their needs at a minimal expense or minimal interest. Credit unions are set up by employees for the employees. That is the basic purpose of this.

I think this measure was up before the Senate once before and it was defeated. I think that was due to the fact that some of the people misunderstood some of the provisions of the bill.

I would respectfully ask that the Senators give consideration to this matter. It is helpful to the people who must resort to this means of obtaining money. It does not affect their retirement and it does not affect anything that they have. It merely allows them to assign this amount of money, due to the increased amount they might borrow to meet the ever-increasing cost-of-living and also the increases some of these people might have had in their expenses.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I do not intend to belabor this matter in any way. The fact that they are now permitted to borrow $300 against their retirement may or may not be good law. However, there is no reason that I can see why we should compound the error. While we agree thoroughly with the principle of the credit union, nevertheless the assignment of retirement interest is not, in my opinion, a proper matter of security for such loans.

Mr. MULLIN. Mr. President, we have allowed the credit unions to raise it to $600. We also have increased the amount of loans in practically every other small lending institution in Pennsylvania. A credit union such as this is a nonprofit organization, and I think that we should not deprive the employees of the State from receiving the benefit of their own organization on a sum of money which is more in accord with present day conditions.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL ON THIRD READING, DEFEATED ON FINAL PASSAGE

SB 261 (Pr. No. 948)—Read at length the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, I would like to call to the attention of the sponsors of this bill something which I just noted.

On page 2, as part of the title, the pertinent section relating to the amendments read as follows:

"... imposing permanent restrictions on the taxing authorities of political subdivisions affected by the provisions of the act . . ."

However, Mr. President, if you turn to the provisions of the Act, which are found on pages 3 and 4, and take from line 19, on page 3, to line 2, on page 4 of that section, you will read as follows:

"... and beginning with the year 1962 such tax rate increase shall not exceed five per centum per year for the next five succeeding years . . ."

I am calling to the attention of the sponsors the fact that there is an obvious conflict between the title of the bill and the provisions of the bill. In one case, according to the title, the restrictions involved in the bill are made permanent whereas, by the most recent amendment to the bill, as I have read it on pages 3 and 4, there is a limitation of five years. In view of that fact, it seems to me that the bill in its present form is not a feasible bill. Therefore, I would respectfully suggest to the sponsors that before proceeding to vote on this bill, we should put it into such form as is proper in order for us to vote on the merits of the bill.

For that reason, Mr. President, I would suggest that the bill go over in its order until such time as amendments may be made to bring these two points into alignment.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I object to the bill going over in order. Of course, I also noticed the conflict in the title. In the event that this legislation passes, that can very easily be corrected under the Statutory Construction Act.

Mr. President and Members of the Senate, I did a lot of studying before I sponsored this legislation. Under the provisions of the Permanent Assessment Act of 1951, we were led to believe that this would be a permanent assessment system and would not be used to gouge the taxpayers of Pennsylvania. I have found that where this legislation has been placed into activity by the various counties, the mortality tables have risen considerably as far as the commissioners are concerned. I have also found, Mr. President, that there has been a considerable hodge-podge when it comes to the proper evaluation of real estate in counties of the fourth to the eighth classes.

I believe we will all agree that we operate under the premise here that a man's home is his castle and his land is his courtyard. He should be protected by a legislative body from being gouged by political subdivisions.

Under the present Act of Assembly, as written, Mr. President, it provides that no political subdivision can, for real estate purposes, have a budget in excess of five per cent over the preceding year when the Act was placed into effect. It also provides that there should be a budget of no more than 110 per cent of the prior year's budget, as far as school districts are concerned. That is the only protection for the taxpayers which is contained in this Act of Assembly. The result has been that certain political subdivisions have taken advantage of this legislation and I will explain this in the following way:

Once the properties are appraised by competent appraisers, I hope, the county commissioners, by resolution each year, set a ratio of the market value which was determined by the appraisers. In some cases, they use the term of maybe twenty, twenty-five, thirty or thirty-five per cent of the market value. That market value is applicable to every political subdivision within that county. It is applicable to every city and every school district within that county. Therefore, as a result, there is a latitude as far as millage is concerned.

For example, if the Permanent Assessment Act would triple the duplicate—when I speak of the duplicate, I am speaking of the duplicate which is issued by county governments—from about $100,000 to $300,000, you will note there that there is a $300,000 evaluation. Therefore, the ultimate result is that the political subdivisions themselves have the advantage of adjusting their millage. They must adjust it downward the first year because their budget cannot exceed five per cent over the prior year. However, after that, they have a field day. Who suffers? The home owner is the man who suffers because he is stuck with a permanent assessment. That assessment, which the commissioners devise each year, is permanent. However, as I said before, they adjust the ratio of the actual value of the assessment. The result is that the political subdivisions can, if they so desire, keep a high millage, or continue increasing their millage with a high assessment and the result is that the taxpayer is the one who is punished.

I believe it was back in 1945 or 1947 that we passed the "tax everything" law; namely, Act No. 481. I also recall, Mr. President, that when we passed Act No. 481, we had political subdivisions and school districts which were taxing picket fences, if you please. You will recall that we had a case in the Supreme Court with reference to the coal which was taxed under our real estate. They were taxing coal not only as real estate, but they were taxing it under Act No. 481. That leads me to believe, Mr. President, that if we had to place restrictions on Act No. 481, we should also place restrictions on this legislation.

I feel the way the bill is written it is quite liberal. I do not believe it is going to put any political subdivision in any handcuffs at all. It is merely going to provide that the political subdivisions cannot take advantage of this bill and use it to gouge the taxpayers or the small home owners.

Therefore, Mr. President, I have provided in the amendment here, after the first year, as follows:

"Thereafter the total amount of the real estate taxes levied by any political subdivision including school districts shall not exceed one hundred and twenty per centum"—as a matter of fact, they are getting a one-fifth increase in that case—"of the total amount it levied on such properties the year preceding the establishment of the new assessment system notwithstanding the increased valuations of such properties under the new assessment system and beginning with the year 1962 such tax rate increase shall not exceed five per centum per year for the next five succeeding years . . ."

Therefore, the ultimate result is that they have a ten per cent increase the first year; they have a twenty per cent increase the third year; and then they have five years at five per cent. That then will be the ceiling. I believe any official of any political subdivision, if he is honest with himself, will agree with me that this is more than sufficient. It will give the taxpayers some confidence. The way it stands now, the field is wide open and after the first year, they can do as they see fit.

I realize that some will say that we are interfering with local government activities. I have heard that argument many, many times. However, just the same, we interfered with local government activities when we placed a ceiling under Act No. 481, and we had a difficult time in doing that. I know, in some cases, I opposed some of the ceilings, but I found that I was wrong and the opposition was right at that particular time. There is a protection there now for the taxpayers.

Therefore, Mr. President, I feel that we, as Members of a legislative body, have a responsibility here. This is not a political question. This is a question as to whether or not we feel it is proper to put a ceiling on the amount of taxes which can be levied by political subdivisions. I think this is very fair, and I ask the gentlemen on both sides of the aisle to support this legislation. I feel sure that it carries considerable merit. I also know, Mr. President, that the taxpayers of Pennsylvania will have a lot more confidence if we pass this legislation.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, I regret that the sponsors do not feel inclined to consider my advice with respect to amending this bill to put it in proper form. I do not agree with the gentlemen who just spoke, in believing that the conflict between the title and the substance of the bill is of such minor consequence as he stated. I believe, to the contrary, that if the bill is passed in its present form, it will certainly be declared unconstitutional because of that conflict. For that reason alone, if for no other reason, I would be constrained to vote against this bill.

Now, Mr. President, I would like to speak briefly on the merits of the bill. During all the time since I have been in the Legislature, it seems to me that this is the most drastic attack upon the principle of home rule that I have ever observed. At the moment, I am not concerned with the limit of the restriction. If the limit were fifty per cent or 100 per cent, as far as the principle is concerned, it seems to me it would still be a very bad piece of legislation.

The Commonwealth has its various types of municipalities and local governments. These governments are operated by men who are elected by the people of their respective communities. Presumably, they are a better judge of the needs of their communities and of the wishes of the people of their communities, as far as the amount to which they desire to tax themselves to provide those services, than we, sitting here in Harrisburg. All of these people are elected. Any school board, any borough council, any township commissioners or supervisors, or any city council, which goes beyond the desires of the people of the community, is certain to find that the people of the community will let them know very promptly that they have done so. They are closer to the people of those communities, Mr. President, than we sitting here in Harrisburg. If there is any merit at all in operating our local communities by local elected boards, then certainly we must leave these people the discretion to provide the services which the people of their communities need and want. If we continue the principle outlined in this bill of placing restrictions upon the powers of local, elective municipal bodies to provide those services, then we are striking a fundamental blow at the principle. We might as well start running everything from the Capitol and just abolish our local, community municipalities and school boards.

Therefore, Mr. President, I think this is a bad bill in principle. In practice, however, this is also a very bad bill. It is my conviction that if this bill is passed in its present form, the result would be to throw a large percentage of our school districts—which is just one type of local government covered in this bill—into the courts with their present and future budgets. In other words, there are many districts in this Commonwealth, anywhere from one-fifth to one-third of our school districts, which, if this bill would become law, would be forced to take their school budgets into the courts during the next year. I say this would be a calamity for the Commonwealth and it would be a blow at the provision of proper educational facilities.

Therefore, Mr. President, in view of the principle of this and in view of its practical workings, it seems to me that this is a very unwise piece of legislation and one which Members, who are interested in the relationship between local and State government continuing on its present healthy basis, should vote against.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I wish to advise the gentleman from York that the courts were mentioned in this bill prior to this amendment because there is a proviso in the bill that in the first year after the assessment system is installed, the local, political subdivisions have the right to go to the courts. If they can justify the increase in their budget from real estate taxes, the courts, of course, will use their discretion. That is answer number one.

Answer number two, Mr. President, is that most of you know—and I am quite sure that all of you know—that a few years ago, we passed legislation which would provide that the political subdivisions shall receive the sum of not less than $30,000,000 per year for the maintenance and construction of their roads. That is an outright gift from the Liquid Fuels Tax Fund to the political subdivisions.

On top of that, we placed a ceiling in Act No. 481, which, it is agreed, is good legislation. There is no reason in the world why we should not place a ceiling on the levying of real estate taxes on properties.

Therefore, I feel this is good legislation. I have talked to quite a number of officials of political subdivisions who are very happy with this legislation because they can take the position that they cannot start a lot of new projects because the Legislature has placed a ceiling, and this is as far as they can go. That is going to be a protection for the councilmen, the township supervisors and the school directors because they can tell the public that the Legislature has passed a law and this is all of the money they can spend I think it is good legislation.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, I presume to take the floor again only to answer a couple of points made by the gentleman from Washington.

In the first place, he mentioned the fact that substantial State-aid is given to local municipalities and school districts. Of course, this is true. However, I hope the gentleman also realizes that if you place a restriction on the power of those municipalities to raise money from local sources, your total effect is to drive them to Harrisburg more often to seek more money to supplement the money you no longer allow them to raise locally.
